COUNTY SET TO OUST CHESTER

Road Head Linked in Asphalt Probe by Auditors

Ousting of Frank J. Chester, director of the county department of highways, bridges and tunnels, along with a grand jury investigation, loomed today as a result of an auditors' probe of the "asphalt racket."

Chester, until appointed to his present $8,000 post, was the representative of the Barber Asphalt Company, disclosed by the county audit as having sold hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of asphalt to the county under the Armstrong-Babcock regime.

For years the county had purchased "lake asphalt" from the Barber company at about twice the price of oil-base asphalt until a year ago, when Controller R. G. Woodside refused to make further payments on contracts. He contended there was no superiority in the product the county was buying over the other.

Chester will be given his choice of resigning or being discharged, according to reports from reliable sources in the City-County Building today.

Chairman C. C. McGovern, of the County Commissioners, and the minority member of the board with Armstrong and Babcock, recently pronounced the buying of asphalt by the county as "the greatest racket of them all." He said:

Information gleaned by M. C. Conick, of Main & Co., is reported to have disclosed circumstances justifying a more comprehensive inquiry into the buying of asphalt. Such an inquiry, it was said, could be done properly only by a grand jury probe empowered to subpena books and records of all transactions, as well as witnesses.

Carol Pleads With Helen to Share Throne

PRINCESS HELENE

BUCHAREST, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Pleading "for the welfare of our son," King Carol II of Rumania today appealed to his divorced wife, Princess Helen, to consent to a reconciliation.

He asked at least for resumption of "formal wedded life" and for her participation in a joint coronation as King and Queen of Rumania.

Princes Helen, who returned to Bucharest unexpectedly yesterday after a year's absence, was reported favorable toward the reconciliation on condition that Mme. Magda Lupescu, Carol's favorite for many years, disappears from the scene, at least while she is in the capital.

In addition, it was understood, Princess Helen asked for a private residence in Bucharest.

ROOSEVELT FOR EXTRA SESSION

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 24.—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt is so confident he will be elected to the presidency that he is planning to call Congress into special session immediately after March 4 to set machinery in motion for restoring prosperity to the nation, it was revealed today by his advisers.

The Democratic presidential nominee has pledged himself to a "new deal" for the "forgotten man" and he has let it be known he intends to carry that pledge into action promptly after his inauguration.

MODIFICATION DEMAND

He will demand modification of the Volstead law with a federal tax on beer to aid in balancing of the federal budget, and he will suggest legislation to put the farmer back on his feet. Other measures to reduce the cost of operating the federal government also will be proposed by Mr. Roosevelt to the special session, it was indicated.

Gov. Roosevelt feels that if he were to wait eight months for the regular session of Congress much valuable time would be lost in getting the country back on the road to prosperity. He is confident he will have a Democratic Congress to work with him in carrying out his program of rehabilitation.

Touched by the enthusiastic receptions given him on his courtesy trip into Dixie, Gov. Roosevelt was to confer here today with the chief executives and Democratic leaders of six southern states.

While the primary purpose of the conference was to discuss the presidential campaign, it was generally believed that Mr. Roosevelt

W. R. Hearst Tells Why People Will Elect Roosevelt

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24.

The following interview given by William Randolph Hearst at the Cleveland Clinic Hospital on Saturday was published by the Cleveland Plain Dealer in its Sunday issue:

GENTLEMEN, I have had a surgical operation, and I do not quite feel like undergoing the strain of an interview.

The surgeons say the operation was not important, but whenever folks begin ploughing around in my interior, the situation becomes important, as far as I am concerned. If you want any details of the operation Dr. Crile can supply them.

All I want to say is that Dr. Crile is a most marvelous surgeon. I never felt the slightest pain during or after the operation—some discomfort perhaps, but no pain whatever.

I cannot understand it yet; I can hardly believe it.

Dr. Crile says he has been doing operations like mine for years and has never had a fatality.

Of course, I did not want to spoil such a good record and am particularly pleased to say that I did not.

I am now on my way to California, where I live on a hilltop overlooking the mountains and the sea.

CLEVELAND is really a splendid city, and not even California could produce a finer day than we are enjoying today.

Still, I am anxious to get home, for a while at least. Then the routine of business will carry me around the country, and I wish I had a paper here so that I would have business occasion to come often to this fine city.

That seems unlikely, however. You have excellent papers here, and I do not see how I could improve on them.

Yes, I think Roosevelt will be elected and more overwhelmingly than anyone anticipates.

I think the people of the United States are calm, sensible people, and are regarding the political situation from a sound business standpoint.

If you and I had a newspaper and it had been under the control of a certain managing editor for four years, and during that period the circulation had gone to pot, and the advertising had disappeared, and almost all we had left was the machinery we would want to change the managing editor.

We certainly would not want to give him an irrevocable contract to go on mismanaging our business for another four years.

If anybody told us we might do worse, we would say: "We don't think so, but at any rate we are not going to do worse."

WE HAVE found a man who has a record of success in administrative position, a man who made a constructive, but conservative success in his executive position, and who was rechosen to the position by the public, his employers, by over twice as big a majority for his second term as he had received for his first term.

If anyone should ask us if this man Roosevelt whom we proposed to install in control of our business was not too radical, I think we would say: "Well, he never did anything radical in his administrative office, except expose and oppose the power trust; and events have proved him to have been absolutely and incontrovertibly right in that attitude."

The Chicago branch of the power trust first robbed the people and then swindled them. It finally failed for hundreds of millions of dollars, depriving hundreds of thousands of people of their life savings.

The eastern branch of the power trust has done everything that the western branch has done except go into bankruptcy.

The whole institution is a menace not only to the business stability of the country, but to the

$10,000,000 Jewelry Robber Battles Kidnap Charge

International News Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—Arthur Barry, "the cleverest crook in America," seemed not at all perturbed today by the fact that he will probably spend the rest of his life behind prison walls, but he did appear to be worried over the fact that he must convince police authorities that he was nowhere in the vicinity of Hopewell, N. J., on the fateful night of March 1.

It was on that night that the Lindbergh baby was kidanped. Barry today was being questioned by Acting Chief of Police Heller and Chief of Detectives Frank Brex as to his movements before and after the wind-blown night when a crime was committed that shocked the world.

INDIGNANT AT CHARGE

Mild-mannered, debonair and slightly proud of his various jewel robberies and cleverly-maneuvered jail break, Barry is nervous, confused and staunch in his denials that he had anything to do with the death of the Lindbergh baby. He resents the fact that his footprints are to be compared with those found in the soft earth below the window from which the child was abducted. He is indignant because his handwriting is to be compared with the writing on the ransom notes.

He was questioned about the abduction because a ladder was found at the scene of the kidnaping, and because the footprint left by the abductor showed it might have been that of a lame man.

O'BRIEN GIVEN YEAR IN BRIBE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—George O'Brien, 49, former port appraiser at Philadelphia, was sentenced in Dauphin county court today to a jail term of six to 12 months and was fined $500 as a result of his conviction on a charge of attempting to bribe Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish.

O'Brien offered the bribe in connection with the award of a contract for 800 voting machines to be used in Philadelphia.

O'Brien was convicted at the June term of court of offering Beamish a $20,000 bribe. Recently, a motion for a new trial was denied.

KILLS PARENTS, ENDS OWN LIFE

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Slain by their son, who later took his own life, Samuel W. Patterson, wealthy coal operator, and his wife were found dead today by servants in their home in an exclusive residential district of Huntington.

The body of the son, Thomas C. Patterson, 27, a university graduate, was found by police after climbing through a window into his locked bedroom.

Coroner F. X. Schuller said the deaths obviously were double murder and suicide and that the son killed his parents before locking himself in his room and slashing his wrists.

Slumped over a desk, Patterson's body was found in his study. His wife, Mrs. Mary C. Patterson, was killed while listening to a radio in the living room.

Gas Company Balks at Rate Cut

The Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, in a letter to Council, today stated a reduction in rates at this time was impossible.

George W. Ratcliffe, president, in response to a communication from Council, stated only a small part of the company's business was in this city and that gross receipts had declined $3,000,000 from 1926 to 1931.

Sinn Fein Angered By Visit of Wales

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The forthcoming visit of the Prince of Wales to Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, has aroused members of the Sinn Fein (Republican) party.

A statement issued from party headquarters said the standing committee was considering "steps to be taken to voice the national resentment at this latest English act of defiance of the rights and liberties of the Irish people."

THOMAS OPENS CAMPAIGN HERE

Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, today launched his campaign in the Pittsburgh district, at a mass meeting in the McKeesport Elks Temple, shortly after noon.

Approximately 500 persons gathered to hear him state his platform, following a motor caravan of 50 machines which carried the Socialist standardbearer from West Park, North Side, through Homestead and Duquesne.

Thomas, tall, affable, said in his booming voice that he had been misquoted regarding his remarks on Father Cox's decision to support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee.

THOMAS EXPLAINS

Thomas said:

"What actually happened was this: Socialist party workers told me after Father Cox's St. Louis convention that Father Cox had said to them that they GADSDEN, Ala., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The bodies of Miss Velma Groover, daughter of a Methodist minister, and Tom Russell, a married man and the father of three children, were found in a field near here today. Close by lay a gun somebody had used to shoot him in the chest and beat her to death.

7 Sail 1,500 Miles, Escape Devil's Island

WILLEMSTAD, Curacao, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Five Frenchmen, a Spaniard and an Italian, apparently escaped from the French penal colony on Devil's Island, have arrived here in great distress. They had made the trip of 1,500 miles in a sailing canoe.

HOOVER LIKELY TO GO TO COAST

By ROBERT BARRY
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—President Hoover may end a whirlwind campaign for re-election with a trip across the country to the Pacific Coast.

Although some of his advisers are urging him to go to California to close the campaign, the President, it was said today at the White House, has not definitely made up his mind to do so. If he goes to the coast, he plans to return to Washington after the election on a battleship by way of the Panama Canal.

The President is more pleased than disturbed by the booing which greeted him in Detroit Saturday night.

He let it be known that he felt the reaction to the unpleasant incident throughout the country would be favorable to him.

Poll Indicates Safe Roosevelt Margin

By COLE E. MORGAN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Gov. Roosevelt has a reasonably safe margin of 30 electoral votes over the 266 necessary to elect. In addition he has a slight advantage in states with 54 electorial votes, giving him a possible 350.

President Hoover appears to have but 57 reasonably safe votes with a slight advantage in states holding 124 more, a total of 181.

This is the way the situation sizes up two weeks and two days in advance of the election, on the face of returns to date in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph nationwide poll being conducted by the co-opueration with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States.

These returns represent a total of 527,191 Hoover-Roosevelt ballots, not taking into account the several thousands for Socialist and other minor candidates. The 527,191 divide Roosevelt 297,836 and Hoover 229,355, a Roosevelt majority of 68,781.

BANKER GIVEN YEAR SENTENCE

John H. Grafe, Jr., 37, was sentenced to a year and a day in a federal penitentiary today after he had pleaded guilty to embezzling $2,000 from the Carnegie National Bank.

Grafe, a former teller in the bank, said he had used the money for family expenses. He is the father of two children.

He was sentenced by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson.

Policeman Saves Two From Leaking Gas

After investigating a leaking water pipe flooding the Ludwig Floral Company shop at 502 Federal street early yesterday, Patrolman Sam Jones led Mrs. Gus Ludwig and her grandson, William, 15, to safety from asphyxiation in their second-floor apartment.

The water and gas pipes, the patrolman said, had been broken when a water heater in the Ludwig apartment exploded. The occupants failed to hear the blast.

Left $50,000, Widow Fights 5-Million-Will

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—Florence Jane Foreman, former screen actress and widow of the multi-millionaire clothier Winfield A. Foreman, must file a bill of particulars within five days in her contest of Foreman's will, it was learned today.

Cut off with a $50,060 trust fund for life, she insists the estate will exceed $5,000,0000. The bulk of the estate was left to Foreman's two adopted children.

U. S. TO IGNORE DUCE'S DEBT PLEA UNTIL AFTER ELECTION

Universal service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24. Benito Mussolini's dramatic plea to the United States for drastic reduction or cancellation of the war debts met with stony silence in Washington.

Although the Italian dictator is the only head of a great European state to come out publicly for virtual cancellation, his attitude, expressed in the speech at Turin, is not new. He has been urging debt reduction all along.

So far as the administration is concerned, Mussolini's plea, it was indicated, will go unheeded until after the November elections. Debt reduction is a sore spot in the administration's political scheme. Republican leaders want as little said as possible about the debts until after the American people have voted.

It has been understood all along, however, that the Hoover administration after the election will come out into the open with the negotiations for drastic reduction or cancellation of the debts.

Mussolini to Back Germany on Arms

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 24.—Premier Mussolini, of Italy, has officially launched Europe's campaign for reduction or cancellation of war debts owing to the United States.

In an eloquent address yesterday that was enthusiastically heard by nearly 500,000 of his Fascist followers, Il Duce made his long-awaited statement of Italy's international policies.

In addition to a fervent plea to America to pity impoverished Europe, the Premier made these two important revelations:

1—Italy will support ultimate arms equality for Germany, but holds that the time for this is not ripe as long as the disarmament conference is still in existence.

2—Italy regards the League of Nations as "very sick," but will not abandon it at this time.

THOMAS DENIES CHARGING DEAL

should see me and arrange a ticket on which he would be the presidential candidate and I the candidate for Vice President.

"After I read of Father Cox's decision to support Roosevelt, I told Washington newspapermen in a rather joking fashion of this incident. I did not say there was any exchange between Father Cox and me."

"I wish to take this occasion to ask Father Cox why he so suddenly reversed himself. Was it, perhaps, financial exigencies after the breakdown of his campaign which forced him to seek financial aid of the Democratic party? I have no quarrel with Father Cox. I have admitted, in the past, his interest in the relief of the unemployed, but what he has done is an inglorious ending of a great crusade."

PRIEST'S DENIAL

Asked what he thought of the action of the University of Pittsburgh in demanding that [illegible] its sign a "pledge" of allegiance, Mr. Thomas said:

"The only similar pledge I know of is that exacted by Mussolini."

Thomas arrived at the Pennsylvania Railroad station from Baltimore this morning and was met by an Allegheny County delegation headed by Dr. William J. Van Essen, Socialist county chairman.

The Socialist candidate is scheduled to speak at 8 p. m., in Carnegie Music Hall. The party was to parade back to West Park after the meeting through Wilmerding, Turtle Creek, East Pittsburgh, Braddock and Rankin.

1 Man Dies, Women Faint As Duce Talks

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Pietro Colonnetti, an aged functionary, was stricken with apoplexy yesterday while listening to Premier Mussolini's speech. He died in a room not far from where the Premier was speaking.

Several women in the crowd fainted.

that he had been captured so easily by the detectives who lured him from the quiet farm house of Otto Reuber, where he has lived since shortly after his sensational escape from Auburn Prison in 1929. Proudly, he admitted all of the charges made against him as police dug up one then another jewel robbery of which he had been suspected. But disdainfully and contemptuously he snarled defiance at his persistent questioners who were trying to link him to the kidnaping.

GRILLED ON BOAST

An underworld boast of his had come home to roost. Just before the kidnaping, he had told underworld friends that he was going "to a certain place for a chance to make the biggest grab in history—something bigger than Jewels. Brex thundered at him:

"What did you mean by that?"

Barry was evasive. He didn't remember. Brex and Heller, two master "goat getters," turned to something else, but always they came back with "What did you mean by that?"

Police first heard of this boast early in March, and Col H. Norman Schwarzkopf, in charge of the case, sent men scurrying into Pennsylvania and to upper New York state looking for Barry. They found that they were always a day or so behind him. At Easton, Pa., they just missed him.

ELUDES LONG SEARCH

He had checked out of a Philadelphia hotel two nights before they arrived there. Phillipsburg said that he had been visiting there, but he had just left. Relentlessly, the search went on, but they never caught up with Barry. Col. Schwarzkopf today said:

"We had nothing definitely against him. We were just checking up on every known criminal who might have the remotest connection with the kidnaping. We are pretty well satisfied now that Barry is innocent of the kidnaping.

Newark police officials also protest that Barry had nothing to do with it, but they keep hammering at him, resolved to find out everything he knows.

Affable, cultured, yet well versed in the jargon of the underworld, Barry pictured himself as a sort of modern, romantic Robin Hood who robbed only the wealthy, from which he confessed, police said, of thieving between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 in gems.

The notorious thief said his rich hauls netted him a fortune, a quarter of a million dollars of which he lost in the stock market crash.

Safely hidden away somewhere, he disclosed, he had enough of the proceeds of his criminal career to yield him an income of nearly $100 a week.

ROBBED RICH WOMEN

Long Island, Miami, Palm Beach and Key West were the most profitable fields for his thefting operations, Barry told inquisitors, adding:

"The fat old matrons there loved to play handball with me. I'd find out where they lived and then put on a surprise party for them.

"I robbed only the wealthy. If a woman can carry around a pearl necklace she knows where her breakfast is coming from.

"She knows where she can get strawberries and cream on December 10, even if that pearl necklace is gone."

Since his bold break from Auburn, Barry said, "I haven't had my fingers in anything."

FATAL PRISON RIOT PROBED

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—Investigation into Saturday's fatal riot among prisoners on Welfare Island began today.

U. S. District Attorney Medalie said he had been informed a quarrel over leadership in handling the prison dope traffic caused the bloody battle that lasted for hours and resulted in the fatal stabbing of George Holshoe. Medalie said:

"This is a very serious case. Here were some 1,700 men behind prison bars and walls, supposedly protected against the drug evil. We have sufficient knowledge that drugs were smuggled behind the walls to go ahead with a vigorous investigations. It will not be a wishy-washy affair."

Four assistant district attorneys were assigned to prepare the case for presentation before the Federal Grand Jury.

Warden McCann denied dope had anything to do with the riot, saying enmity between two racial factions was released when Holshoe struck Joey Rao, a gangster, on the jaw.

Forty-one police were added to the regular prison guard. Eight prisoners implicated in the disturbance were sent to Hart's Island and 12 others placed in solitary confinement.

Amerita Club Fined For Sale of Liquor

The Amerita Club, Fernando street, today was fined $200 in Federal Court for "sale and possession of liquor and maintaining a common nuisance." The sentence was imposed after the club, through its secretary, D De Sanda, had pleaded guilty to the indictment growing out of a raid made last June.

Two employes, Michael Grande and William Lazzarine, were placed on probation for a year, upon their pleas of guilty to a similar indictment.

GOVERNORS TO ATTEND

Governors who will sit down around the conference table with the Democratic presidential nominee include Richard B. Russell, of Georgia; O. Max Gardner, of North Carolina; Henry Horton, of Tennessee; T. C. Blackwood, of South Carolina, and B. M. Miller of Alabama.

Reports that Al Smith would be offered a cabinet post by Gov. Roosevelt in the event of the latter's election were not taken seriously in the Roosevelt camp. The Governor indicated he had not given any thought to it. He said:

"Any discussion of cabinet posts is highly premature."

Another report that Roosevelt intends to resign the governorship of New York in the event of his election and that of Herbert H. Lehman, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, was discounted by persons close to the Governor.

Gov. Roosevelt will speak here tonight before starting on the last lap of his campaign tour, which has taken him through the Middle West, several of the border states and into the South. He may anwser the attack made on him Saturday night by President Hoover at Detroit.

Roosevelt's Wife Flies Back to Work

NEW YORK, Oct. 24 (Universal.)—Flying back to New York to resume her school teaching duties today, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived at Newark Airport late yesterday after a plane trip from Atlanta Ga.

Mrs. Roosevelt joined the Governor's party in Indianapolis last Thursday, and remained with it over the weekend on the trip through Kentucky and Tennessee into the South.

PASTOR FLAYED AS POISON CASE NEARS JURY

Prosecutor Assails Friendship With Young Girl

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Declaring the Rev. S. A. Berrie "has lost all the decent faculties the man ever had," County Attorney Phil K. Oldham made his closing argument in the preacher's wife murder trial today with a bitter arraignment of Berrie's friendship with the young Sunday school teacher he later took as his second bride.

"I wonder if the defendant ever preached a sermon on the 'Wages of Sin is Death.'"

Defense attorneys objected vigorously, but were overruled. Oldham shouted:

"If I had the hypocrisy in my soul that this defendant has, you bet I'd pray to God. I don't have that hypocrisy.

"What was it when he went to a rooming house with an 18-year-old girl?

"There sits the wife—not one single witness has taken the stand to deny these relationships.

"She could have taken the stand."

The 52-year-old defendant appeared nervous, as Oldham spoke. His young bride, whom he married less than two months after the first Mrs. Berrie allegedly was poisoned last March, sat by his side, fingering a small paper sack.

public welfare, and political independence of our people.

WE WOULD want a managing editor who would have intelligence enough to see the danger of such evils and courage enough to try to protect the people from them.

We would not call such a man a radical. We would call him a patriot.

Columbus was a radical to those who did not believe there was any western side to the Atlantic Ocean.

Jefferson, when he wrote the Declaration of Independence, was considered a radical—in England.

Lincoln was considered a radical by those who did not understand or believe in freedom.

Theodore Roosevelt was considered a radical.

Any man who has the brains to think and the nerve to act for the benefit of the people of the country is considered a radical by those who are content with stagnation and willing to endure disaster.

LET US not be afraid of honesty and sincerity and bravery and energy. It is out of these that the American nation has been built.

The tree flourishes when the roots are watered; not when merely the top is wet.

And, when the roots die the tree dies, including the top and all the branches.

Even the most selfish concern for our own personal interests should make us realize that the welfare of every interest, the prosperity of every business, depends upon the welfare and prosperity of the nation.

Mr. Roosevelt's idea of building up prosperity for the mass of the people means prosperity for us all.

HEARST LEAVES OHIO HOSPITAL

CLEVELAND, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—William Randolph Hearst yesterday left the Cleveland Clinic Hospital, where he has been for the past three weeks. He came here from California for an operation which was performed by Dr George Crile, who issued the following statement:

2 DEATH TRIALS STARTED HERE

[illegible]erry Paderewski, 42, of Versailles Township, went on trial before visiting Judge O. C. Kent today charged with the murder of Frank F. Kaminski, 41, of 309 Sarah street, McKeesport, in a drunken brawl in the former's garage, June 14. The defense contended after Kaminski fired at Paderewski and missed, the latter struck Kaminski with a wagon shaft.

Jeff Whitaker, Negro, of 81 Longworth street, also was placed on trial charged with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Pearl Duckett, 29, a boarder.

ARMS DEADLOCK UNBROKEN

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, revealed today that a European deadlock continues over the proposed four-power emergency disarmament conference because France and Germany still are unable to agree on a meeting place.

Pressed for a statement concerning the possible danger of Germany's re-arming while the disarmament conference is progressing, Sir John said the purpose of the emergency conference was to prevent such a course but that no definite statement of German policy has been made.

Norman Davis, American disarmament representative, was in conference at No. 10 Downing street today with Prime Minister MacDonald and Sir John.

Man, Woman, Girl Die in Auto Fire

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 24.—(INS.)—A speeding automobile loaded with cans of paint and oil was turned into a flaming inferno in which a man, woman and young girl were burned beyond recognition when it hit a traffic marker near here today.

The man was identified as Hershal Brown, about 35, a salesman for a Los Angeles paint company, the other victims were believed to be his wife and daughter.

Eaton Orders Study Of Penn Central Accounts

HARRISBURG, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Temporary shifting of the State Senate Public Service Commission inquiry to Altoona, Pa., and possibly into the Insull interests, was indicated today by Oliver K. Eaton, counsel for the Senate investigating committee.

Important developments not yet privileged for publication today prompted the committee to send W. D. Rush, accountant, to Altoona, to investigate affairs of the Penn Central Light and Power Company, Eaton said.

Rush is to look into the sale of stock, dividend payments and rates and he is carrying subpenaes to obtain necessary books and records.

Eaton explained he was informed the affairs of the Penn Central may be so intertwined with holding companies that it may be necessary to inquire into these concerns.

Such developments, he said, would lead the inquiry into the Mid-West Utilities Company of Chicago, one of the Insull systems said to be a holding company of the Penn Central.

Bank deposit records of two men named last week in the investigation have been subpenaed.

The committee has asked for deposit records of the late W. D. B. Ainey, former commission chairman, and A. W. Thompson, former president of the Philadelphia Company, of Pittsburgh.

The records are to be produced when the committee resumes its sessions Thursday.

INSULL BACK IN ATHENS

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Samuel Insull who is under indictment in Chicago for larceny in connection with the receivership of his companies, returned last night from a trip to Corinth.

Two plainclothes policemen attended him. Insull previously had been advised by the police to tell them of any trips he planned, after he had reported learning of a plot to kidnap him.

Cristos Ladas, Insull's attorney, indicated he was unaware of any new action in regard to the uncompleted extradition treaty between Greece and the United States.

Dispatches from Istanbul, Turkey, said unofficially that the American embassy there had asked the Turkish government to refuse a visa for Insull, but this was not confirmed from Washington.

PENN LANDING FETE AT CLIMAX

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—"The High street" up which William Penn walked when he disembarked in October, 1682, echoed today with the footsteps of Philadelphia crowds observing the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Quaker colonizer's first arrival in America.

The occasion was a tour of "Old Philadelphia," opening event of a full day of activities climaxing a week's celebration of the anniversary, and the crowds viewed early landmarks of the "Greene Countrie Towne" that was Philadelphia when Penn landed here.

The tour included the site of that first house, named for Penn's daughter and now preserved in Fairmount Park; memorial to Gulielma Maria Penn, first wife of the colonizer; the site of the first Friends' Meeting House, erected in 1683, and the site of the home of John Penn, grandson of William Penn and last colonial governor of Pennsylvania. Bronze tablets were unveiled at these places.

Liquor Plant Seized On Estate of Penn

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—While the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of William Penn's landing was being observed at "Pennsbury," state police seized a 1,000-gallon still and 20,000 gallons of mash on a nearby farm that was once a part of Penn's country estate.

"Pennsbury," a 12-acre tract, presented to the state for dedication as a national shrine to Penn's memory, was the country home of the Quaker colonizer.

Shots Fired as Two Mine Unions Clash

ZEIGLER, Ill., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Several shots were fired, a tear gas bomb was thrown and a man was struck over the head with a revolver and injured here yesterday during a fight between members of the newly-formed Progressive Miners' Union of Illinois and the United Mine Workers at a meeting called by the former.

The fighting occurred after two officials of the United Mine Workers had mounted the speakers' platform. The shots were fired into the air by men in the crowd.

WOUNDED CHILD SOBS STORY OF HORROR

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—Eight-year-old Anna Kleinhandler, who was kidnaped, came home to her parents today.

DENIES GIRL'S CHARGE

Sam Morris, of Newark, was detained by authorities after Anna had identified him as her kidnaper, according to police. The girl had previously denied he was the man, but later said he had threatened to kill her if she "snitched."

Morris quarreled with the girl's mother shortly before the kidnaping, police said.

Morris denied the girl's charges.

While every available detective and state trooper searched for the pretty little girl who was kidnaped by a well-dressed man as she played in the street last night, she walked out of the woodlands near Springfield, N. J., eight miles from here, and knocked on the door of the farmhouse of George Woschitz.

She was bleeding from the numerous jagged cuts on her body. There were bruises, too. She sobbed:

"Please take me home."

TELLS STORY OF CRIME

They gave her something to eat and something to warm her and she told her story.

He offered her 25 cents to mind a mythical baby.

Anna, remembering things her mother said, told the man he was a bad man. Anna said:

"You have been drinking and my mother said not to talk to strange men."

Wife, Radio Chief, Even in Divorce Row

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—Joan Lawton Rich, formerly of the "Follies," reported half a victory today in her marital disagreement with her husband, Freddie Rich, Columbia Broadcasting director. His divorce suit, which was to have been tried in Supreme Court today, has been postponed until November 15. The husband succeeded in defeating her attempt to have his suit tried simultaneously with her suit for separation. The actions should be tried separately, Justice Vic Goldrick ruled.

VESTRY FIGHTS BISHOP IN RACE FEUD

Manning May Face Action for Crashing Into Church

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Vestrymen of All Souls Protestant Episcopal Church intended to consult a lawyer today as a result of Bishop William T. Manning's action in forcing his way into the church, where he preached a sermon declaring Negro and white churchgoers should be admitted on an equal basis.

A 7-to-4 vote of the vestry had locked the church "for repairs" after the Rev. Rollin Dodd, rector, refused to hold separate services for Negroes or resign.

DEFIES THREATS

Defying threats to have him arrested for trespass, the bishop appeared at the church yesterday, caused a locksmith to smash the lock on heavy iron gates, and ordered services to go on. He said:

"It is the plain duty of All Souls Church to minister to the people of the community, white and colored alike."

He rebuked the vestrymen for what he termed "indefensible" action.

OPPOSITION VOICED

George F. Nelson, another vestryman, said Negroes were always welcome as guests. He added:

"But it seems to be the policy of the present rector to build up a large Negro congregation and turn the church over to them. We do not think it is fair to turn over to the Negroes the church and its endowment which it took the white congregation more than 40 years to build."

RACKET KILLING CLUE SOUGHT FROM WIFE

Gangster Guns Blaze Death to Tube City Racketeer

Detectives turned to the young widow of 24-year-old Tony Sorci today to learn why gangland guns blazed death to her racketeer husband as he strolled in Fifth avenue, McKeesport, shortly before noon yesterday.

Trapped by gunmen, Sorci, police-styled bootlegger, and said to have been a close friend of the late James and John Volpe, was shot down as he sought refuge in the doorway to the E. I. Clark hardware store by one of two men who stepped from a parked automobile and fired two shots into his back.

GUNMEN FLEE

The gunmen escaped before either of two witnesses could learn the license number of the automobile. Sorci was dead when police arrived a few minutes later. One bullet lodged in the back of his neck and the other in his right shoulder.

Philip Petrulli, 14, of 527 White street, who witnessed the killing, told police Sorci darted into the doorway when a dark touring car nosed into the curb. He said one of two men, described as short and stout, stepped to the street, two shots rang out, and Sorci crumpled to the sidewalk.

FOUR QUESTIONED

Four men, arrested within a few hours after the killing, were being questioned by detectives. They are Dominick Surace, formerly of Liberty, said by police to have been a former partner of Sorci; Walter Saylor, of 941 Indiana avenue, and Sam DeAmbrosio, of 825 Delaware avenue, both of Glassport, and Alex Rosner, of near Port Vue.

Saylor, described by police as a "delivery man" for DeAmbrosio, was arrested with the latter after detectives said they learned he accompanied Sorci early yesterday to the Rosner farm near Port Vue. Police said Sorci and Saylor brought back a load of whisky for distribution in the McKeesport district.

Saylor told police, they said, that he saw a mysterious touring car containing four men parked near the farm early yesterday, that he told DeAmbrosio, and that they went to Sorci and warned him.

DENY KILLING

They denied knowledge of the killing. Police said an automatic pistol found in a search of DeAmbrosio's home will be examined by ballistic experts to determine whether it might have been used in the slaying.

Both men were held, together with Rosner, in violation of the Snyder act after police Lieut. James Gray, of McKeesport, led County Detectives Patrick Trainor and Patrick O'Brien and Constable Alfred Markens, in a raid on the Rosner farm, reported finding 110 gallons of moonshine whisky.

Surace's presence was assured, too, when he was charged with arson in connection with the burning of his home at Portvue last week.

Serum Supply Fails, Man Loses Life Fight

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Modern science lost a battle against death here yesterday as Fred Daugherty, 27, kept alive for 21 weeks after his condition was first pronounced critical, died from a streptococcus infection.

Physicians said he showed improvement after injections of a new goat serum. The supply, however, was exhausted and laboratory experts said it would require a year to cultivate more.

BOMB WRECKS BOND OFFICE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—A heavy home-made bomb shattered the interior of the Logan and Bryan office building at Plaza and Third streets here at 5 a. m. today. No one was hurt.

George J. Elliott, manager of the stock and bond sales office, estimated the damage offhand at between $1,500 and $3,000. Fall told police:

"I wish I could have done this on Wall street itself. These stock dealers and companies are the curse of our nation."

Weather Conditions.

There was a rapid movement of the pressure units during Saturday and Sunday. The low that was centered over Colorado on Saturday morning was centered over Missouri yesterday morning, and the rain had advanced eastward over the Ohio Valley states to Western Pennsylvania. This morning high pressure occupies the Northeast and the Far West, while centers of low pressure are located over Manitoba and Oklahoma, and separating the two highs. The low pressure is producing considerable cloudiness over the country, but little precipitation, except snow over the Rocky Mountain states and North Dakota and northward. Temperature is mild over the eastern half of the country, while over the Rocky Mountain states and northward over Canada cold weather prevails.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling. Stage at Franklin is minus 0.1 foot; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 11.1; Pittsburgh, 11.1; Dam No. 4, 8.8; No. 6, 6.7; No. 10, 7.9, and No. 12, 7.9. The dams are up.

BEARS IN DEATH BATTLE IN ZOO

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The jungle law asserted itself in a clash of claw and fang in the Milwaukee zoo and today children have one less black bear at which to toss peanuts.

The black bear was responsible for the act that disturbed the state of armed neutrality which allowed himself and mate, two polar bears, two grizzly bears and two timber wolves to occupy the same den. He fell into the polar bears' pool and for his clumsiness he died. The polar bears drowned him.

Film Pair's Wedding In Germany Delayed

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Letters received here said the wedding of Lupita Tovar, screen actress to Paul Kohner, Universal Film Corporation executive, scheduled this month in Germany, had been postponed until next month because of the death of Kohner's uncle.

The ceremony probably will take lace in Berlin she wrote friends.

More Economists Ask Slash of Tariff

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—The petition asking President Hoover for a downward revision of the tariff has been signed by 203 additional economists, the National Progressive League announced today. The petition was originally circulated by James C. Bonbright, finance professor at Columbia University, and bore the names of 180 economists.

PLANS FLIGHT WITH 'CHUBBIE'

LIVERPOOL, England, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The British aviator, Capt. William N. Lancaster, the central figure in a recent Miami (Fla.) murder trial, arrived today from the United States aboard the liner Scythia and said he intended to make another long-distance flight. He added:

"I have not yet decided when I shall make my next flight and I shall have no other pilot than than Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller."

He referred to another figure in the trial, known as "Chubbie," who is due in London later today aboard another vessel.

Referring to the trial in Miami in which he was acquitted of the murder of Hayden Clarke, a companion of Mrs. Miller's, Capt. Lancaster said he had received the fairest possible trial and had been accorded the most generous and sympathetic of treatment by the American people.

Banker's Son Hits Immortality Belief

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Corliss Lamont, son of Thomas Lamont, financier, told a meeting of the Society of Freethinkers of America yesterday that the theory of immortality as taught by major religious sects is false and that the "surrendering of the belief will, on the whole, be a good thing for the world since it will concentrate all attention on bettering the conditions of this life."

Strikers Clubbed By Mounted Police

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—A squad of 30 mounted police swung clubs as they charged into a milling mass of striking clothing trade workers today who were attempting to picket a factory.

Convicts' Garden Crop, Grown for Needy, Stolen

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 24.—The Washington County Prison Board is short 4,000 heads of cabbage and about 200 bushels of green tomatoes, taken from a garden cultivated by jail trusties.

It was advertised that green tomatoes would be given away at other gardens cared for by trusties due to an extra supply. Residents in the Meadowlands district thought the invitation held good in the garden cultivated there on property donated by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, so they helped themselves. The board planned to distribute the vegetables to needy folk.

LEAPS TO DEATH FLEEING POLICE

As police approached the home of Michael Prada, 38 Bigelow street, last night in response to his wife's call that her husband was intoxicated and creating a disorder, Prada jumped from a second floor window, police said, suffering injuries which caused his death early today in Mercy Hospital.

Police arrested Michael Fitzurka, 25, of 53 Bigelow street, where they said Prada had attended a christening celebration. Fitzurka was held over at a hearing this morning in Oakland Police Court.

5 Inches of Snow Reported in Denver

DENVER, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—A wet and clinging five-inch snow today was piled upon Denver, breaking down trees and shrubbery and seriously impeding traffic. Reports indicated the storm was spreading northward.

BIG PAY BRINGS WYNN NO JOY

Ed Wynn: The man who earns $10,000 or more a week and isn't content.

The "Fire Chief" of the radio, in Pittsburgh for a week, interrupted his busy program long enough to declare with disarming candor:

"I've just signed for another year on the air at $7,500 a week. (His income from his show is at least $2,500 a week). But I'm busy. I never have a minute to myself.

"Now, don't misunderstand me. I like radio. I'm glad the people like my program. But—well, let me tell you what happened last week. I was eating in the diner on the way from Washington to Baltimore. And a lady sent over a piece of toast—toast, mind you!—and asked me to autograph it. So I bit the toast and sent it back.

"And one day on the street a truck driver stopped and asked me to autograph his truck.

"I'll be in this room all week. Sure! I'm making lots of money, but I can't enjoy it. There's no sense making three or four million. Why, I was having a better time when I was drawing $75 a week in vaudeville when Senator Harris had the old Davis years ago."

Tomorrow night Wynn gives his radio program from the Nixon Theater, the regular performance of his show being cancelled for that night. With him will be Graham McNamee and Don Vorhees' band. Proceeds of this radio show will go to charity.

Hundreds saw the "Fire Chief" made an honorary member of Pittsburgh's Fire Department this afternoon in Grant street. Mayor Kline conferred the decoration, aboard a fire truck.

PACKED STREETS IN LOUISVILLE . . . . . GOV. ROOSEVELT RIDING A LANE OF CHEERS

KREUGER ALIVE, FRIEND INSISTS

LONDON, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—The oft-heard rumor that Ivar Kreuger, Swedish match king, is still alive, despite his apparent suicide, cropped up with renewed vigor today.

The London Evening Standard, in a dispatch from Stockholm, reported that Mme. Ingeborg Eberth, for many years Kreuger's closest friend, had recently received a letter from him. She was quoted as saying:

"I firmly believe Ivar is still alive. I have recently received a letter from him. It bore no stamp, but I believe it came from Russia. I recognized his handwriting."

Mme. Eberth, the dispatch said, refused to disclose the letter's contents.

PASTOR'S SON FOR ROOSEVELT

The Rev. S. W. Corcoran, superintendent of the Pittsburgh Methodist Episcopal Church Union, learned today that his oldest son, Sanford, is leading a "Roosevelt-for-President" group at Allegheny College, where he is a student, but declined to say whether the son's political views differed from his own. Mr. Corcoran said he had not known previously of his son's activities in behalf of the Democratic candidate.

Regarding his own views, he said:

"I am a Methodist minister and not in politics. As for my personal views, I would rather not be quoted."

Cougar Clubbed To Death by Woman

REEDSPORT, Ore., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Intrigued by the strange antics of her dog, Mrs. E. C. Vader went to investigate the occupant of a hollow log near her home. The intruder was a cougar, sometimes called a mountain lion. Mrs. Vader grabbed a club and with the assistance of a daughter-in-law, killed the animal. The cougar was four feet long.

MALONE BOLTS TO HOOVER

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—Calling it "the high duty of citizenship to stand by the President who has seen us through the past three dreadful years," Dudley Field Malone, international lawyer and an independent Democrat, announced yesterday he will vote for President Hoover. He will also vote the Republican state ticket, he said.

In the Wilson administration Malone served as assistant secretary of state and as collector of the port of New York. He was a Democratic delegate at the Chicago convention.

In a letter to President Hoover, Malone outlined his long record as a Democratic worker, but declared that:

"The comfort and fate of millions of workers and merchants in this country must not now be held subject to the danger of political change."

TRIPLE SLAYING BARED BY FIRE

BLOOMFIELD, Ky., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Nelson County authorities under Sheriff T. B. Peake today sought evidence which might aid them in their investigation of the killing of three persons whose charred bodies were found yesterday in the ruins of a farmhouse near here.

That robbery was the underlying cause of the tragedy that took the lives of an unidentified man and Mr. and Mrs. Lud Ingram, recluse farm couple, was the belief generally expressed by authorities.

Neighbors of the Ingrams, both of whom were about 70 years of age, found the bodies after the four-room frame home occupied by the couple had been badly damaged by fire.

Authorities said the Ingrams were reported to have drawn their savings of approximately $8,000 from a bank only recently. It was this report that caused them to advance the robbery theory.

2 IN GERMAN RIOTS SLAIN

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Two persons were killed and many injured in week-end political clashes, as preparations for the November 6 general elections grew intense.

A National Socialist storm trooper was slain in a battle between Nazis and Reichsbannermen at Castrop-Rauxel.

Another Nazi was slain at Lungstab, Dortmund, in a fight over handbills in a hostile neighborhood. Five Nazis were seriously injured in Dortmund encounters, and Communist casualties were at least 12. Clashes also occurred at Connewitz and Dewitz.

Adolf Hitler, the Nazi leader, last night declared in an address at Zwickau, that he would take nothing less than full leadership of the German government after November 6.

GIRLS AT P. C. W. FAVOR HOOVER

In a presidential poll in which 260 voted, President Hoover was given a majority of 140 votes over Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate. Hoover got 184 ballots in his favor and Roosevelt 44.

As for Socialists, there seem to be plenty of them at P. C. W. Norman Thomas, candidate for the Socialist ticket received 30 votes. Communistic tendencies, on the other hand, are lacking among the girls. William Z. Foster, Communist nominee, was not mentioned.

G. O. P. PRESSED AT KANE

KANE, Pa., Oct. 24.—For the first time in years, the Republican organization in this section is finding real opposition, party leaders announced. Meetings by both parties are being held and the Democrats claim they are making inroads on the Republican majorities.

The bonus and beer are not stressed, speakers for both parties urging more jobs and better business. Friends of Dr. Paul A. Rothfuss, Democratic candidate for Congress, claims he has a good chance of unseating Robert F. Rich, of Clinton County. In the twenty-fifth senatorial battle, G. M. Owlett, Wellsboro attorney, Republican, is being pressed by R. R. Lindsley, Smethport publisher.

ALESSIO WINS NEW TRIAL

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 11.—A prosecutor's testimony today aided Tony Alessio, Monessen ward politician, convicted of first degree murder, in obtaining a new trial. Judge C. E. Whitten ordered a new trial for Alessio, whose petition was argued on October 14 at which time P. K. Jones, New Kensington, minister-attorney, one of the special prosecutors, appeared for Alessio.

Jones testified that the widow of Ralph Mansco, for whose murder Alessio was convicted and recommended to life imprisonment, had changed her story on the witness stand from the original story she had related to him. Jones said Mrs. Masco told him she did not recognize Alessio as the man fleeing from the scene.

At the trial Mrs. Masco identified Alessio as the man she saw leaving the district and climbing into a parked auto after her husband had been shot, in his Morgan avenue home last May.

It also was contended that Patrick McKague, one of the special prosecutors, had made improper remarks in his closing address to the jury.

Merchant Forgave Debtors, Loses All in Fire

RYERSON STATION, Pa., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Edward McCracken, village storekeeper, who started the year 1932 by wiping from his books nearly $10,000 owed him by farmers, lost his home, his store and filling station by fire yesterday.

McCracken said he let fire insurance policies covering his property lapse last week. He estimated his loss between $8,000 and $10,000.

The fire apparently spread from the kitchen stove in his home. The village has no fire-fighting equipment.

Mix to Resume Film That Caused Fall

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Tom Mix, western screen star, who suffered two broken ribs and other injuries when Tony, his famous horse, staged an unexpected "loop-the-loop" and landed on the actor during the filming of a picture, returned to his Beverly Hills home yesterday to recuperate. The star said:

"I'm still sort of banged up, but I'll be as good as new in a few days and then we'll start work on the picture again."

R. F. C. LOANS OVER BILLION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The Reconstruction Corporation announced today that up to September 30 it had loaned $1,016,328,228 to banks, trust and insurance companies and building and loan associations.

Loans totaling $853,406,289 were authorized to 4,973 banks and trust companies.

Eighty-eight insurance companies with 14,898,000 policyholders received $75,193,000.

Advances of $87,638,738 were authorized to 736 building and loan associations, with 1,544,000 members.

The statement said that 3,482, or 70 per cent of the loans for banks, amounting to $14,729,867, went to towns of less than 5,000 population.

OFFICIAL SLAIN, WOMAN SHOT

SEATTLE, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—A woman who identified herself as the wife of Col. William M. Inglis, 58, World War veteran prominent in Republican state politics, declared today he had shot her and then killed himself in his apartment because he was "dissatisfied" with life.

The woman, known as Miss Mary C. Nash, a government employe, was at a hospital in critical condition with two bullet wounds. Inglis was found dead on a bed, with a bullet wound in the head.

Declaring she and Inglis had been married secretly because she was employed by Inglis in the United States Veterans Bureau, she said Col. Inglis had declared he was "dissatisfied with life."

He had been drinking heavily several days, she said, the climax coming when, without warning, he fired twice at her and she fell. Then, she said, he shot himself.

1932 Crop Dried Fruit

Dried fruits valued as a food for 3,000 years

In every land that has grown fruit, from ancient days down to our own, dried fruits have been known and prized. Egyptian writings are full of references to them. They are mentioned in the lists of foods eaten by the kings and those laid before the gods as offerings.

Consider them for their food value. Within each prune, each peach and apricot is the concentrated food value of the fresh fruit. Only the juice is evaported. Consider them for their economy. They are infinitely cheaper than fresh fruits and every bit as delicious. Consider them for their versatility. They can be baked into upside-down cakes; put into custards; stewed for breakfast; baked into pies; cut up in fruit salads. McCanns offers you variety, quality and price. Utilize dried fruits in your menus.

Bake your fruit cake early. Aging makes it better.

THIS WEEK officially opens the dried fruit season at McCanns. Here is a complete line-up of 1932 crop dried fruits awaiting your selection: peaches, apricots, pears, prunes, dates, figs . . . everything. Approximately a half million pounds of these fruits are sold every year at McCanns. To the best of our knowledge that's more than any other food store sells in Pittsburgh. And that, you know, indicates McCann customers know that here they get first quality dried fruits . . . and that they are clean and in perfect condition . . . right in every way. Dried fruits are economical, and deliciously healthful. By all means, utilize them in your menus.

Santa Clara Prunes, 4 lbs. 29c

Forty to fifty of these prunes to a pound and a pound makes eight generous servings at about one cent each. Economical? Yes, and delicious, too.

Extra Fancy Peaches, 3 lbs. 38c

Vitam C is one of the most important vitamins so far discovered, and dried peaches have a vitamin C content as high as that of any other food yet reported.

Blenheim Apricots, 3 lbs. 49c

This is the "extra fancy" grade. One hundred and thirty-seven pounds of fresh apricots must be dried to produce twenty-five pounds of them.

Seedless Raisins . . 4 lbs. 29c

Made from Thompson Seedless Grapes. Use them generously . . . they have an alkaline effect in the body . . . better than candy for children.

Hallowee Dates . . 2 lbs. 35c

New crop dates. We sell them so fast they couldn't be anything but clean and moist. An inexpensive sweet for the whole family.

Pitted Dates . . . . lb. 25c — Fard dates with the seeds removed.

Smyrna Figs . . . 2 lbs. 55c — The layer variety. Delicious as is. Fine for dessert making.

WIFE FORGIVES SCHOOL HEAD WHO ELOPED

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24. (AP.)—The hoax of Elliot B. Thomas, Redondo Beach school superintendent, has ended in exposure and confession.

With a wife who volunteered forgiveness, Thomas was in seclusion today, repentant over his attempt to end his own personality and create another under the name of E. T. Sherwood so that he might marry Sylvia Wilson, of Seattle.

SCHOOL JOB ENDS

His 12-year school career in Southern California was at least at a temporary end. His attorney said:

"The resignation of Thomas from his position at Redondo Beach will be forthcoming in a day or so."

As for the police who hunted him for nearly a week since his disappearance last Monday the case was closed with the statement that no charges would be preferred.

Bewhiskered, clothes unpressed from constant traveling and eyes red-rimmed from lack of sleep, the 36-year-old school head voluntarily appeared at the sheriff's office here Saturday night after a trip by automobile and airplane from Seattle.

He had driven there after leaving a meeting with his school board at his home last Monday, ostensibly to go to his office to obtain some papers. His offices were found in disorder. At first police hunted for him on a theory he had surprised burglars and had been abducted, possibly slain.

JOB 'TOO GOOD'

But, police explained, he had done "too good a job," and the deception was revealed.

Thomas said he was sitting in Miss Wilson's home when he heard a radio broadcast of the search for him under the name of Sherwood. He said:

"I knew it was all over."

They were not married. He met her last July on a vacation trip.

Mrs. Thomas met him at the sheriff's office upon his return. She said:

111TH TO HOLD REUNION

The One Hundred Eleventh Infantry, "Pittsburgh's Own" regiment during the World War, will hold its annual Armistice Day reunion here November 9, 10 and 11. Officers will be elected at a meeting next Sunday in the Gen. Albert J. Logan Armory.

"Family Night" will be November 9 under auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary. The annual banquet will be November 10 at the Fort Pitt Hotel with Col. E. L. Kearns, toastmaster, and Gen. E. C. Shannon, wartime commander of the regiment; Gen. Logan, Col. C. C. McGovern and Chaplain J. V. Simone, speakers.

The regiment will participate as a unit in the Armistice Day parade and the annual military ball will be held November 11 in Islam Grotto Temple.

Long-Wearing Furs

Are a Great Feature in the October Coat Sale

Furs that will give a coat long life are most important in this season of economizing. And in this sale we are featuring those furs which are long-wearing by nature, and we are making the most of them by seeing that the skins are fresh and new.

Mink Kolinsky — Beaver Hudson Seal (dyed muskrat) — Kit Fox Persian Lamb

Those are the furs we've picked for wear, in fine Horne qualities, furs which we will not be able to duplicate in coats near the special October prices. They are used in collar and sleeve treatments, which are engagingly new without being so tricky that they will limit the life of your coat by dating its style too obviously to the present . . . BEGINNING TOMORROW

Table Setting Exhibit

By Pittsburgh Club Women

Several score of socially prominent women, all accomplished hostesses, representing eleven women's clubs of the city, have vied to show their skill and originality in table setting for various occasions in this exhibition which opens here tomorrow and will continue until Saturday.

The furniture, linens, silverware, china, glassware and other accessories are from the stocks of the Joseph Horne Co., and the committees representing the various clubs participating were given carte blanche as to subject and materials. Delightfully original and artistic effects have been achieved, which women will find interesting.

Help to Pick the Winner

Two chests of silver have been presented by the International Silver Co. as prizes for the best tables. The first to be awarded by a committee of judges consisting of Miss Harriet Glendon, Head of Department of Home Economics, Carnegie Institute of Technology; Miss Grace Ely, Art Consultant, Retail Training Bureau, University of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. R. B. Gardner, Editor and Social Director, Wm. Penn Hotel. The second by popular vote. Every visitor is invited to vote.

Whiteman and Guest Stars In New WCAE Program; Smith Broadcasts

Paul Whiteman and his celebrated orchestra, with a long list of noted guest stars, present the first of a new weekly series of symphonic programs from the stage of the New Amsterdam roof theater in New York over an NBC network, including WCAE, tonight from 9:30 to 10 o'clock. The broadcasts, known as the Buick Travellers and witnessed by audiences of about 1,000 persons, occupy the period formerly held by the "Parade of States."

Mr. Whiteman

The Marquess of Reading, British statesman and former ambassador to the United States, discusses "The British Empire of Today" over KDKA at 7:30 tonight. Lord Reading came to this country two weeks ago to represent the British Bar Association at the annual meeting of the International Bar Association in Washington.

Alfred E. Smith, former governor of New York, makes his first political radio speech of the Democratic campaign over a coast-to-coast NBC network, of which WCAE is the Pittsburgh outlet, tonight from 10 to 11 o'clock. The address is picked up in Newark, N. J.

E. F. Hutton, financier, speaks under the auspices of the Republican Radio League over WCAE at 8:30.

Program Pointers

With Don Ameche in the title role, "Captain Jack," a new five-a-week adventure feature for children, has its premier over a Columbia chain and WJAS today at 5:15 p. m. . . . The story concerns a flying soldier of fortune and his attempts to aid a boy and a girl in a search for their father, an explorer lost in the jungles. . . . Gen. A. J. Logan is guest speaker during KDKA's "Pittsburgh Industries" broadcast at 7:45 tonight . . . On the same station at 6:15, a salute to Morgantown, W. Va., is heard during the Westinghouse Parade. Roy Yoke, alumni secretary of the West Virginia University is the speaker.

An hour of mystery is listed on WJAS . . . From 8:45 to 9:15 another episode of the chilling Dr. Fu Manchu" stories by Sax Rohmer is offered, followed at 9:30 by a dramatization of further fiendish pursuits of "The Octopus," the weird villain of "Mysteries in Paris."

A medley of Rudolph Friml favorites is a highlight of the Gypsies' program on WCAE at 9.

The Boswell Sisters, reminiscing a bit, sing "Sentimental Gentleman from Georgia," and Nat Shilkret's orchestra features the new romantic tune, "Alone Together," on WJAS at 10.

Variety is the keynote of Morgan L. Eastman's "Contented" presentation over KDKA at 8 . . . Included among the selections are "The Birth of the Blues," "Hallelujah," from "Hit the Deck," "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Sanctus," from Gounod's "St. Cecilia Mass."

For late dancers: William Scotti, WCAE at 11; Maurice Sherman, WCAE at 11:30; Johnny Hamp, KDKA at 11:30; Roger Wolfe Kahn, WCAE at 12:05; Clyde McCoy, KDKA at 12:15; Bellevue-Stratford Hotel orchestra, WCAE from 12:30 to 1 a. m.

A new miniature grand opera series by the Neville Opera Singers, under the direction of J. L. Rodrigues, prominent Pittsburgh musician, is inaugurated on WJAS from 10:30 to 11 tonight, when a concert edition of "Faust" is heard. Neal Mowry, tenor, Hilda Cook and Lois Wiley sing the leading roles.

Listening In—

Radio's Newest Star. What, No Bagpipes? Just a Skeptic.

Eighteen-year-old Jean Fay, who used to sing over WLW and earned fame as a dancer before her voice was discovered, made her debut as a regular NBC star Saturday night over KDKA . . . all because a few weeks ago she persuaded her mother to take her to New York for an NBC audition . . . She has curly red hair, is only 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 116 pounds . . . A group of bagpipe enthusiasts expressed skepticism the other night after hearing the three X Sisters' bagpipe imitation on the air, saying that it sounded too real—so they've been invited to attend a performance and see for themselves.

Miss Fay

Speaking of skepticism. . . . It seems to be the trait of one leading Broadway theater manager. . . . As he was making a last-minute call for an understudy to speak the lines of an actor who was ill, a back-stage visitor tapped him on the shoulder and asked if he could help. The manager explained that the ill actor had one line in the show: "Where is the ice?" . . . So the helpful visitor spoke it with variations once, twice, thrice; but the manager shook his head dolefully with the comment that it wouldn't do. . . . Exit the visitor, later identified as George Price, facile imitator of radio and stage. . . .

Ilomay Bailey, getting along much, much better than was expected after that operation, has returned home from the hospital and may be back on the air with Lee Sims in two weeks.

William Brenton, resigned from Columbia's announcing staff six weeks ago to resume his academic courses—but has been retained to participate in the weekly Burns and Allen broadcasts.

Sentiment prompted Don Ball and Virginia Arnold to select 8:30 a. m. as their wedding hour . . . It was just 31 years, to the day and hour, after Don's parents were married.

Vaughn de Leath resumes her stage activities at the end of the month . . . Phil Dewey finally broke 80 at golf after four years of trying . . . Graham Harris turned down a $25,000 offer for his summer fishing camp at Lake Winniepesaukee, N. H. . . . Ray Knight writes and stars in his radio show, operates a syndicate, writes for magazines, is planning to write and direct a series of 12 movie shorts—and still has some spare time . . . George Olsen's business office at the New Yorker hotel is Room 711—for luck.

George Hall, back waving his baton after a serious automobile smashup, confesses to listening-in on the doctor's conversations at the hospital . . . Blithely the medicos discussed the extent of his injuries in their own terms, all unconscious of the fact that Hall had studied to be a physician before taking to music and understood every word they were saying.

ASTHMA DISAPPEARS

Recovery Follows Discovery of Basic Cause of Disease.

All who suffer with Bronchial Asthma will be interested in a letter written by Park A. Wade, of 1114 Orren St., N. E. This letter says:

"I am in receipt of yours of the 8th inst., in which you thank me for recommending Dr. Fugate's Asthma Remedy to Marion L. Otis. She will also thank me for recommending same after she has taken a few doses.

"In regard to the results my son and I both had from your medicine, at the time I wired for the first bottle my son was having a terrible attack of Asthma and had to be closed in a room with a vapor lamp burning all night so as to get his breath. As soon as you got the remedy to us (which was record time), we both started on same and like one of Aladdin's miracles my son slept every night from then on. After taking two-thirds of the bottle we are entirely over the Asthma and have felt no signs of its return. We are very grateful to find something to give us such quick and permanent relief. We are mighty glad to tell our friends and recommend Dr. Fugate's Remedy to them."

PARK A. WADE.

Copies of similar letters, together with an important booklet on Dr. Fugate's discovery of the cause of Asthma and Hay Fever, will be sent free by The Fugate Co., Dept. 8092, 126 E. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind. No matter how serious your case, write for this free booklet.

SALES AND BEER TAX URGED BY BANKERS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 24.—Adoption of a general sales tax with as broad a base as possible and legalization of the sale of beer were declared today as methods that afforded the most ready means of solving the tax problem of the federal government in the annual report of the committee on taxation of the Investment Bankers Association of America which is holding its twenty-first convention here.

After pointing to the fact that the 1932 revenue act will not produce the expected amount of revenue, the committee said that it is manifest from recent experience that the only way to raise additional sums is by broadening the tax base. One tax most likely to be turned to is the sales tax.

COMMITTEE STAND

The committee supports the general principle that the burden should be as broadly spread as possible, exempting only the bare necessities of life.

Based on the consumption of malt liquors in the United States in 1917, approximately 1,885,000,000 gallons were used in the last year of prohibition. If the Canadian tax rate of 12½ cent should be adopted this would produce approximately $235,000,000 a year in revenue.

The committee declared that it has been estimated that a tax on beer up to 40 cents a gallon could be levied without increasing the price to a point which would make bootlegging profitable.

On this basis it is estimated that the tax realized might even reach $754,000,000 a year, a sum roughly approximating three-fourths of the entire income tax collected by the government during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932.

VOLUNTARY PAYMENT

The report said:

"The assistance of such additional revenue would be in the present emergency, representing as it would a voluntary payment constituting a burden only on those who chose to become subject, thereto, cannot be disregarded. From all the data on the present estimated consumption of illegal beer, naturally approximate and subject to wide variations, a very substantial portion of this tax revenue would not represent additional expenditure on the part of the American public but rather a diversion of funds now going into bootlegging channels."

Belief that organizations in the securities business are destined to enjoy a recovery in their business was freely expressed by delegates here.

Among the Pittsburgh delegates to the convention are J. Howard Arthur, of the First National Bank; George C. Applegate, Kenneth M. Crane, of the Mellon National Bank; Charles H. Matthews, Jr., of the Union Trust Company; Joseph M. Scribner, of Singer, Deane & Scribner, Inc., and Theodore F. Smith, of the Chase Harris Forbes Corporation.

Coleman to Fete State Candidates

Candidates for major offices on the state Republican ticket will be guests of Chairman William H. Coleman, of the Republican County Committee, at a reception from noon until 1:30 p. m. Wednesday in party headquarters, mezzanine floor, William Penn Hotel.

Guests will include United States Senator James J. Davis, Auditor General Charles A. Waters, candidate for state treasurer; State Senator Frank E. Baldwin, candidate for auditor general, and Arthur H. James, candidate for judge of Superior Court.

Marine Workers Threaten March

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Eight representatives of the "Marine Workers Industrial Union" today deposited at the White House a list of relief demands, leaving with a verbal statement that "unless something is done we will organize and come back in thousands."

Theodore Joslin, one of President Hoover's secretaries, received the delegation and said their demands would be given to the Chief Executive.

Supreme Court Holds Insurance Tax Legal

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania act imposing a tax of 8 mills on gross premiums received by stock life insurance companies was sustained today by the Supreme Court, in a case brought by the Girard Life Insurance Company.

The Pennsylvania statute exempted mutual reserve life insurance companies. Pennsylvania state courts held the tax valid and that action was affirmed today by the highest court.

Tibbits Funeral.

Funeral services for William Cleveland Tibbits, 54, of 5528 Walnut street, Shadyside, a wagonman at No. 4 Police Station, who died Saturday, were held this afternoon. Besides his widow, he leaves a daughter, Marie Tibbits; two brothers, Herbert and Edwin Tibbits, and a sister, Mrs. Sophia Shaw, of Mineral Ridge, O.

REED PREDICTS O.K. FOR BEER

BUFFALO, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—The December session of Congress will approve the Hoover plan of prohibition revision, Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, predicted here last night at a Republican rally. He said:

"Both parties will join in a determined effort to put an end to the present era of crime.

"The Democrats offer no definite plan. President Hoover's acceptance speech does offer such a plan, and it is evident that along the lines of his policy an amendment of our prohibition law will be made in the near future.

"I personally expect to see this happen in the December session of Congress. I do not expect to see the saloon again in America, but I do believe that within six months it will be possible, in those states like New York, which desire to buy the milder alcoholic beverages, such as beer and wine, without violating the law and without paying tribute to criminals.

"I expect the change to be followed by a soberer and more decent America than we have seen in either the saloon period or the prohibition period."

Pair Seized in Hotel Raid Plead Guilty

Harry Bernstein and Sam Brown, employed in a cabaret on the second floor of the Delmont Hotel, 120 Federal street, were fined $50 each on a liquor charge by Judge R. M. Gibson in Federal Court today. The pleaded guilty to selling drinks in the cabaret, which was raided by dry agents October 4.

TRAFFIC ESSAY JUDGES NAMED

Thirty industrial and civic leaders of Pittsburgh have been announced as judges in the sixth annual traffic essay contest of the Better Traffic Committee, which closes in public and parochial schools of the city today. About 80,000 students from 221 schools took part in the contest, according to Walter Rosenbaum, education section chairman of the traffic committee.

Essay subjects involved mental traits causing accidents, thoughtlessness, recklessness and carelessness—with a different topic assigned to each of the three age divisions.

Among the judges are the presidents of the five colleges and universities of Pittsburgh, each of which has agreed to award a one-semester scholarship to a senior high school winner in the contest.

Death of Holdup Victim Investigated

Detectives today were investigating the death yesterday of Harry Randolph, 72, a Negro, of 2164 Center avenue. A police report Friday said Randolph had been held up on the steps of the Ebenezer Baptist Church, Wylie avenue and Devilliers street. Mrs. Ada Jones, 2004 Wylie avenue, told police she saw him fall when attacked by two men. A post-mortem showed he died of a fractured skull.

EVANGELICALS HOLD FORUM

Representatives of 10 churches were attending today's sessions of the third regional conference of the Evangelical churches of the Pittsburgh district, which opened yesterday in the First Evangelical Church, North avenue, Millvale, and will continue until tomorrow night.

An open forum, seating of delegates, and devotional services marked the sessions yesterday, with a sermon, "Essentials of a Conservative Church Program," preached in the evening by the Rev. A. Dexheimer, of Harvey, Ill.

A delightful diversion in our comparatively simple social life this autumn is the presence of distinguished visitors, who add a fillip to our days.

One such visitor over the week-end was Count Clarence von Rosen, of Sweden, sportsman and noted horseman, who was here on his way East from the Olympics. He accompanied the Swedish athletes on their trip to the games.

He was the house guest of the G. L. Fisks, of Beechwood boulevard, who with their son, Karl, have returned from a year in Europe and the Orient.

Visiting In East

* * *

Now for just a few reminders. The Ogontz Alumnae Association luncheon is being held this afternoon at Fox Chapel Golf Club. Reservations have been made for 50.

Ogontz Luncheon

On Thursday night, don't forget the Sewickley Cot Club's play "The Queen's Husband," to be given in the Edgeworth Club. There'll be dancing after the play.

* * *

Gretchen Rose, daughter of the J. Hanson Roses, will be on the guest list, I'm quite certain, for the holiday debutante parties. Her mother hasn't decided yet on a party to present her daughter, but if she does give one, it will be in the Yuletide, since Gretchen is studying at Smith this year.

May Make Debut

As Mrs. Rose expressed it, with so few parties and such simple ones, being given for the buds this year, the debs are really "thinking themselves out."

Edgewood Club Patronesses Announced

Scores and scores of Edgeworth folks and others are patronesses for the Edgewood Cot Club benefit on Wednesday afternoon and evening in the Edgeworth Club.

In the afternoon there'll be a sale and bridge. In the evening the sale and bridge will be continued and a revue will be given.

Patronesses include: Mrs. Alton Brown, Mrs. E. C. Brown, Mrs. Mathew Bigger, Mrs. E. V. Blankenbuehler, Mrs. F. G. Craighead, Miss Isabella D. Coleman, Mrs. S. G. Down, Mrs. Frank C. Demmler, Mrs. T. C. Donovan, Mrs. W. H. Friesell, Sr., Mrs. Charles Garland, Miss Hannah Gillender, Mrs. E. P. Griffiths, Mrs. A. L. Humphrey.

Mrs. Samuel Hamilton, Jr., Mrs. Arthur Herrington, Mrs. John J. Jackson, Mrs. Julia Leavenworth, Mrs. James E. Lose, Mrs. J. E. McLain, Mrs. J. H. McCrady, Sr., Mrs. M. D. McWhinney, Mrs. Orlando Miller, Mrs. P. W. Morgan, Mrs. H. W. Morrow, Mrs. Pitt Nutty, Mrs. G. Albert Neckerman, Mrs. Charles A. Rowan, Mrs. George E. Stebbins, Mrs. Edward R. Stewart, Mrs. S. M. Smith, Mrs. A. F. Sanford, Mrs. H. L. Stone, Mrs. George H. Taber, Mrs. W. O. Whitmarch, Mrs. Charles E. Willock, Mrs. Edward R. Wendlein, Mrs. Walter Young, Mrs. W. C. Hawley.

Miss Mary Beck, Ford City Man Betrothed

Among the betrothals being announced in October is that of Miss Mary R. Beck, daughter of Mrs. Wesley Beck, of Perrysville avenue, North Side, to Ferd Hansotte, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ferd Hansotte, of Ford City, Pa. No date has been set for the wedding.

Society Gathers For West Hills Race Meet

He turned over a section of his Highold Estate near Woodbury, Long Island, for the annual running of the smart West Hills Race Meet—the magnet each year for hundreds of society folk.

The meet was in charge of a committee headed by Frederic C. Thomas, F. Ambrose Clark, Earl Potter and Robert Young. A fringe of the property of Thomas F. White, which adjoins the Stimson estate, also was used for the steeplechase.

Combining pleaure with philanthropy, fashionables attending the race attended a dance in the evening at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Robbins, Jr., at Woodbury, nearby. Proceeds from the ball—an invitation subscription affair—will go to charity.

Ballot to Name 12 Greatest U. S. Women

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

From the headquarters of the National Council of Women, New York City, word has gone out that the 12 great American women leaders of the past century are to be balloted on by the women of the country. The poll will be conducted by the council.

Any interested woman may vote, naming women, either living or dead, who have worked for the advancement of women during the past 100 years. Pictures of those selected will be displayed in the National Council exhibit at the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition next year.

Further, it is suggested that each woman who votes submit a 300-word article on "The Essential Qualities of the Woman Leader." Ida M. Tarbell, Dr. Mary E. Woolley and Maud Wood Park will judge the manuscripts and four cash prizes are offered for the best.

The quest started, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the council, explains, after the portraits of 12 famous women were selected by the executive committee of the council for use on its letterheads. No sooner were the portraits published than rival claims were advanced by friends and admirers of other women who have attained distinction in many fields. After that it was decided to throw the question open to the women of America and let them determine it. The contest closes December 15.

"Happy Day"

ANY day would be well spent in this jaunty lightweight woolen dress that is a delicious new shade of bright blue called "Polo." Striking contrast is supplied by the deep coral colored tassels and metallic details.

Vivid color contrasts, by the way, are much in evidence in Grabowsky daytime frocks. For example, a woolen frock of vivacious blue is allied with a raspberry red velveteen jacket . . . and a lightweight tweed dress in brown-and-tan check has a multi-colored paisley scarf shot with gold threads.

An interesting variety for miss and matron.

We Should Willingly Hear Both Sides of Argument

Do you dote on arguments?

Do you stir one up every chance you get, and then try to shout the other fellow down?

Mae's hubby does, and it's driving her crazy. She loves him; but, she's beginning to wonder, seriously, how long she can keep it up.

"Why on earth is he like that?" she wails. "Why can't he ever just talk about things, instead of being so positive that he knows it all?"

Can you tell her?

And does her letter maybe give you a tip on why you aren't popular?

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Maybe you'll think this problem of mine is just crazy and trivial and not worth answering, but I hope you won't, because I'm ready to admit it has me about pushed to the wall. I don't know what to make of it. Here's what it is:

"My husband dotes on arguing. He is a very positive person, and he is just chuck full of ideas on all sorts of subjects. I'll admit he is right — sometimes at least—but it is impossible to just talk to him about anything unless you happen to agree with what he thinks. And he certainly believes that what he thinks is authentic.

"If it weren't for this habit of his he would be an awfully interesting person, because he reads a lot and knows just about all that is going on around him. But I just shiver every time we have company, because he always thinks his conclusions about things are the only right ones, and just as sure as the talk turns to any subject that he has an opinion on, the riot begins.

LOSING RESPECT

"I don't mean that he gets what you'd call really angry. He doesn't—or at least, he rarely does. But he simply will not listen to the other side of anything, and sometimes I think he will say anything to make a point.

"Honestly, although he is a very good man, generous and really kind, and I do love him, I wonder just how long I can stand it—or even keep on loving him. I am really losing my respect for him. I've tried not to, but I just can't help it. Every time he shouts someone else's ideals down I look at him, and —well, something just goes, that's all.

"What on earth ails him? I know other people haven't the respect for him that they'd have if he weren't so 'hard-headed.' I have overheard them make quips about it, and it hurts me. Sometimes I wonder, really, whether he is half as much interested in knowing what is true, as in trying to prove he's right. Please help me.

"MAE."

That's a grand letter, Mae—but is my face red! And why? Because I'm one of those big time debaters myself. I, too, like to outyell my opponents on any or every subject. And, a long time ago, I discovered that there is no surer way of making oneself unpopular.

MUST HEAR OTHER SIDE

So I can understand how you feel, Mae; but I can also understand how and why your husband gets that way. And his reasons aren't entirely bad. He's probably much more interested in life than most people; has a deeper hunger for information, a livelier imagination. Current conditions aren't just "dry news" to him. They are a vital part of his own life, and he longs to discuss them. He feels that he is growing and expressing himself when he does discuss them.

All that is natural and right. But he'll have to learn that we can't get ahead very fast in this crowded world unless we also give the other fellow a chance to strut his stuff. And you are the one to help him learn that lesson, sissy; but you can't help him by arguing or scolding or losing your respect for him.

Instead, try a new technique. Praise his fine brain and his healthy interest in life. Tell him how proud you are of him, and how the world needs just such intelligent men as leaders. But hint—ever so gently—that he'll be a better leader if he learns a little more patience and tolerance and diplomacy.

Be a partner instead of a critic, and I'll wager that within a month you'll have one of the most popular husbands in town.

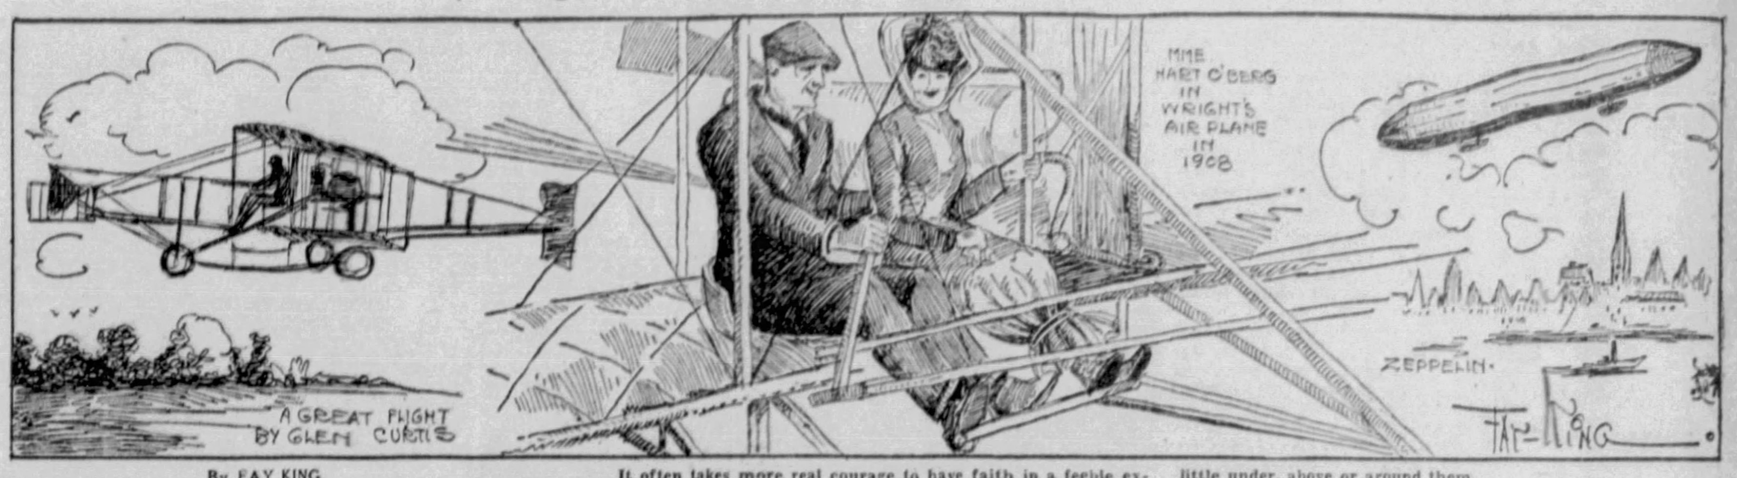
Fay King Praises Aviation's Early Feminine Enthusiasts



By FAY KING

Women who had the enthusiasm and courage to take a short ride in the early "flying machines" deserve a place among the famous women fliers of today.

It often takes more real courage to have faith in a feeble experiment, and face the ridicule and criticism of those who have no faith in it, than it does to rush in and risk one's neck knowing how great will be the acclaim and glory if successful.

Now a pilot may fly "blind," seeing nothing but the cozy cabin of a practically fool-proof plane.

Zeppelins have changed least in design, though many fins and outer frills have been discarded.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

The Use of Laxatives in Infancy

Not so long ago I wrote about constipation and pointed out that sedentary habits, improper diet and personal carelessness are the chief causes of faulty elimination in adults. Today I want to speak about constipation in infancy.

Dr. Copeland

This condition in infancy is different from that found in adult life and must be dealt with in a different manner.

Constipation may afflict an infant at birth, or it may develop very soon after birth. Too often the cause is not determined, and the mother resorts to enemas or laxatives. Such treatments give temporary relief, but later the condition returns.

To overcome constipation in an infant it is important to discover the cause. In many cases it is due to improper feeding, for giving excessive quantities of milk, or what the doctors call a "high protein" diet, will cause constipation.

Another cause often overlooked is the ability of the infant to use the abdominal muscles in the manner necessary for proper elimination. This is due to general muscular weakness, and when this is corrected, normal elimination is restored.

Many infants instinctly avoid elimination because of pain that may be due to a tiny fissure or ulcer. In other cases constipation in infants is due to a constitutional disorder called "hypothyroidism." In this condition there is a lack of secretion from the thyroid gland.

Often constipation is caused by some intestional abnormality with which the child is born, and surgery is the only method of cure. The cause must be determined by a thorough physical examination of the infant, and where necessary, X-ray pictures of the intestines should be taken.

Diet is extremely important. It should include stewed fruits, such as applesauce, prunes and apricots, several times a day, and vegetables should be given once or twice daily.

Coarse cereals, such as whole wheat, oatmeal or hominy, to which a small amount of bran and butter are added, may be beneficial, but if any irritation follows their use they should be omitted. The daily amount of milk should be diminished, and malt soup extract may be added to the milk.

Never give castor oil or other cathartics unless they are prescribed by a physician. It is safe, however, to give mineral oil, which is not a drug. It merely lubricates the lining of the intestine.

To stimulate the muscles of the abdomen massage the baby's abdomen with olive oil after his bath. This may be very helpful.

Please bear in mind that persistent constipation in an infant requires proper medical attention. Enemas and home remedies only provide temporary relief. They do not cure.

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have a girl friend who is to be married for the second time. She is divorced and has a small child. She eloped when she was quite young, so never had a real wedding. Her fiance likewise eloped. Now this is the question: They want to know if she can wear a white wedding dress and veil? They both feel as though they missed such a lot by not having a wedding, and he just doesn't think it would seem like a wedding with her not in white and a veil. Please let us know if it is possible for this, or does she have to wear something else? R.

You make your plea for your friend very appealing, and I wish that I could say that she would be allowed, by the rules of etiquette, to wear the traditional wedding white for her wedding, "complete with veil." But this really can't be done, and shouldn't be done. The traditional white wedding dress and bridal veil are appropriate only for the bride-for-the-first-time. And wearing this wedding finery in this case, where there is a child, would be especially inappropriate. If this bride wears the white wedding gown and bridal veil she will lay herself open to very definite criticism. After all, life is a compromise, and this is the compromise that she must make for the previous situation.

After all, it isn't such a tragic thing to wear a lovely afternoon dress of some charming material and becoming shade! And how lovely clothes of this kind are this season!

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

A mild brightener for blonde hair is camomile. Steep one ounce of the dried leaves in a pint of water for five minutes, cool, strain, pour over the head after the hair has been shampooed.

To the oily skin, atmospheric dust sticks like a friend and a brother. And that's why it is best, even for the buttered-faced lassies, to remove make-up with a cleansing cream before starting the nightly lathering. Sometimes a change of soap will cause oil ducts to ease up on ambitious spouting. Ofttimes the powder contains an oily base that isn't any help in the composition of the lovely porcelain-like effect.

Coiffures continue to follow a formal pattern. Waves run round after each other in good form; they are liquid, natural-looking, silky. New styles are designed with a yen for revealing the contour of the head, make a demand that tag ends at the rear be shorn to such lengths as permit the formation of tight little curls that do not dangle, valance fashion, over the slender, swanlike neck. Coiffure creators have done themselves proud. They reap their reward since every woman must buy her hairdress at the beautery, it being almost impossible to do a good job of finger waving and curly-cueing at home.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

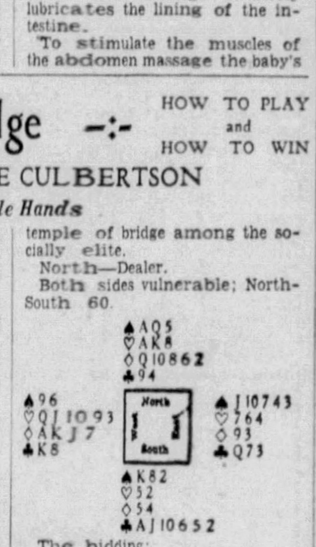
Miracle Hands

Miracles occasionally do happen at the bridge table when a player, expecting a heavy penalty, finds instead that through assistance of his opponents he is able to make his contract.

Such a hand was the one played in a Rubber game at Crockford's Club, New York's temple of bridge among the socially elite.

North—Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable; North-South 60.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
		1 ◇	Pass
2 ♣	2 ♡	2 NT	Pass
Pass	3 ♡	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

West's bid of three hearts was the first evidence of the fact that he believed in miracles. Unless his partner's hand was a complete blank, the contract of two notrump undertaken by the opponents would appear certain to be defeated, and West was risking a heavy set, and, as a matter of fact, could have been defeated 1,000 points had North and South both availed themselves of the best defense. The part-score, however, was West's explanation of his dangerous overbid.

North opened his top club, and South, noting the short diamond suit in Dummy, returned a trump when he won with the Ace. This, no doubt, was the best defense. North continued with two more rounds of trumps, West winning the third round and laying down the King of clubs. West then led a small spade, and North, after slight hesitation, won the trick with the Queen and returned a spade. South, afraid of setting up the entire spade suit in Dummy, refused to win with the King, and West's 9 held the trick. A miracle had happened, and West decided to gamble for game and rubber at this point. He played two rounds of trumps, on which North discarded two diamonds. West now decided that North held the Ace of spades and three diamonds, and at this point led the Knave of diamonds, and North, deciding that his partner held either the Ace or King of diamonds, did not cover, whereupon West took the remaining tricks and made his vulnerable contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What is the correct response to an Opening bid of one notrump by Fourth Hand, Second Hand holding:

♠AJ ♡AJ ◇J10975 ♣7632

Answer: Two notrump. The hand contains 2 plus honor-tricks and the probability of long-card tricks in diamonds.

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—For seasons, fashion writers have been saying that fashions were becoming more individual. Women were beginning to plan more and more their own clothes—not only the clothes themselves, but styles in general. There was to be less of the blanket costume for every woman; each person was to have a finger in the general pie of style.

* * *

THIS YEAR, at last, these statements are thoroughly true. The best of the Paris dressmakers have learned that once a woman knows what clothes suit her own particular characteristics, figure and color, no one can do better than she in the planning of her own clothes. Thus the clothes that Paris plans this year are more adaptable than any they have ever done. They allow more for possibilities of change than any clothes of our generation.

* * *

SCHIAPARELLI, WHO has a very definite style of her own, acknowledges in the clothes she makes that possibility for every woman to develop her own styles. Her suits and dresses, her coats and hats are all of a type that look different on each woman who wears them; they are so planned as to color to allow for many variations in the types of women who will wear them.

* * *

NOTHING IS farther removed from the old-fashioned ensemble than, for example, the Schiaparelli suit in today's sketch. There is a jacket of mustard-colored tweed, a skirt of mottled tweed in black, brown and white, and a blouse of sky blue ribbed material—a combination of colors entirely unexpected and entirely adapted to women of both light and dark complexions. Note how simply cut and how faithful to classic tailored lines are the jacket, and the cleverly plaited skirt. Note also that the jacket fastens in a new way—via a cord through a copper button.

My Girl Friday Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear L. W.: Fifi Widener and Alex Wichfeld, the great Dane, have been in Reno for over a week now—having departed from town with tickets bought under the name of Jones . . . Wichfeld is getting his abrogation papers there, and the long-time talk that Fifi and Alex will wed is now coming true . . . Mrs. Freddie Rich phoned . . . Sophie Tucker called. Says she has been booked into the Paramount Grill for 20 weeks—140 days, and she will wear a different gown each night . . . Not only for the sake of the customers, but because it gives employment to several people . . . Elinson colled with this gag: "Is he a good salesman?" Answer: "Is he? Say, that guy can sell a gag to Milton Berle!" . . . Incidentally, Stan Rechin adds that Milton's last name should be spelled: "Berle-gler."

Roy Benson phoned. He is the magician accused of pirating Cardini's pet tricks . . . Benson proved to me that the tricks were done years before Cardini's time, that they're in magic books, etc. . . . Fair play, Mr. W., fair play . . . I see that the literati section of Variety complains of the inaccuracy of the colyuming craft, etc. . . . Which reminds me that your item of more than a year ago, about Margaret Ravior and George Young (both Marathom swimming champions), planning to elope, was only recently confirmed by the Canuck papers . . . They vigorously denied it at the time . . . That's the trouble—a year in advance is too far ahead. People forget . . . So-o-o-o! . . . Poor Garbo. She doesn't know that they are making a sensational sex story of her old flicker "Streets of Sorrow" . . . In the hinterlands they have named it "Joyless Street" and bill it like a peep show.

There's a gal in Boston who does air chats and bills herself Lady Winchell . . . You can collect plenty on that, feller . . . Milam at the Riviera has staged a chorus number to "Rhapsody In Blue" and they say it's swelegant . . . Marion Benda is not ill. She was! Walter O'Keefe flies to Chicago and his bride every Saturday night . . . Leo Fitzgerald can give that gal a job you mentioned as still being jobless after inserting that ad in the Trib's angony dep't . . . Ask her to call me . . . To keep imposters away tell her to bring receipt of the payment for that ad, which will serve as proof, etc.

Matthew Woll, of the American Federation of Labor, wants an app't. I told him to phone you after the show . . . Poor Bernie . . . The show, of course, had to go on, and after seeing his mother die, he went through his regular routine, cracking jokes, so his listeners wouldn't be disappointed . . . Did you send him a wire? . . . Brooklyn now has a sort of a Mayfair or Pierette, etc., on Satdee nights in the Towers Hotel . . . They's even going to try and drag celebrities over there . . . Or maybe they will concentrate on Brooklyn celebrities—or am I too loud? . . . You critics might have tossed an orchid at the lad who plays the son in "Mademoiselle." He has a small role, but he does it expertly, and I misplaced the playbill and can't think of his name myself! . . . Actors that good should be encouraged . . . It's a grand show . . . "When Ladies Meet" is the No. 1 hit—so far as the ticket brokers are concerned . . .

Osterman phoned. Said he has signed with "The Great Magoo" to play the part of the Coney Island band leader . . . Wonder why showmen never use the "pony" type of chorus girl any more—the tiny girls? . . . Sigmund Klein, middleweight and lightweight champ strong man, is going in for ballet work! . . . Lee Posner is disillusioned again. A cab driver kept telling him how it pays to be square and honest, and, after tipping him liberally, Lee found a Sing Sing quarter in his change which is inscribed: "Do Good"—after the cab went on! . . . James Cowan, the play broker, will join Lasky's staff producing for Fox. E. Ray Goetz may also . . .

A new giggle water spot named the Merry Go Round will open soon . . . It will star a revolving bar!

That Eleanor ("Laugh Parade") Whitney romance isn't with a press agent, but with a local youth . . . You embarrassed the Bostonian by the same tag, but he forgives you. . . . C. Adams offers the florists a swelegant slogan, and you'd think they'd have thought of it themselves ages ago—to wit—"Bouquet, America!" . . . Irene Bordini called. She said that that wrap was borrowed for the event, but it wasn't $12.50—but $19.75—hehehch . . . Eli Hofman called. Said that the man who bought lemons on the Stock Exchange is now selling apples on the curb . . . Also about the Scot who told his wife creepy stories to make her teeth chatter—so that he wouldn't have to buy the baby a rattle . . . Barre Hill, unannounced and not billed at the Capitol, is a grand singer doing five a day. He did four years with the Chicago Civic Opera and shared starring roles with Mary Garden . . . There were plenty of shady doings at Jamaica last week when Papyrograph was disqualified . . . The fix was in, to hear the army of wiseguys argue it . . . Sam Hearn said to Bert Frohman at the Friars: "Bert, all I want in this world is half your money," to which Bert said: "Don't be silly, Sam. I'm just like you. The only reason I'm not in the poorhouse is because my Rolls-Royce can't climb the hill" . . . Nothing else hot, except five new persons who are sore at you. But who isn't?—Ruth.

Young Cast Featured In Sheridan

A cast of youngsters, plus John Haliday, play the leading roles in "The Age of Consent," photoplay feature on the Sheridan Square screen that opened Saturday and will close tomorrow. In it are Dorothy Wilson, Richard Cromwell, Arline Judge and Eric Linden as pricipals. Miss Wilson was taken from a Hollywood stenographer's desk to work in this picture, which is about problems that mix up romance, drama and tragedy.

Chevalier Sails for U. S. Nov. 2

A cablegram received at the Paramount studios from Maurice Chevalier, now vacationing in Nice, France, carried the information that the star sails for America November 2 on the Ile de France. Preparations are being made for the filming of Chevalier's next picture, "The Way to Love," which will go into production soon after his arrival in Hollywood. No supporting cast has yet been named.

Three-Year Contract Given Connolly

Walter Connolly, stage and screen actor, has signed an unusual three-year contract with Columbia under the terms of which he will work for that company each year from June through September, devoting the rest of his time to the New York stage. The agreement also waives the option provisions usually included in producer-actor contracts.

McCrea Gets Five-Year Contract

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24

A very pleased young actor walked into the R-K-O commissary and ordered himself a lunch that stirred envy in many a diet-haunted eye.

It was Joel McCrea and he was celebrating—celebrating a new five-year contract assuring him more money and the bright promise of stardom.

What gives weight to the compliment was the fact that Joel had two more years to go under his old contract. R-K-O might have held him to a salary that isn't commensurate with his popularity. But, after looking at Joel's work in "Sport Page" and other recent films, David Selznick was in a generous mood.

Joel McCrea

INTIMATE GLIMPSES:

Did the wires burn to a famous New York fashion atelier? Commissioned to design a gown for Connie Bennett to wear in "Rockabye," they sent out a gorgeous creation studded with 18,000 sequins. As soon as the set lights were turned on, the cameraman let out a yell. Each sequin flashed a reflection. The full effect was like an aurora borealis. Before the scene could be shot, they had to painstakingly swab each sequin with a dull polish.

A close friend of Clara Bow tells me that the red-head is advertising that she will make no more pictures after "Call Her Savage." She wants to go back on the ranch and take it easy.

Arline Judge

Even in this luxuriously clad community, sable coats are rarities. That's why Arline Judge is so proud of the anniversary present Wesley Ruggles gave her the other day.

Romance or not, Ivan Lebedeff is the constant swain of Catherine Hardie, daughter of the social director at the Hollywood Plaza Hotel. And Ralph Forbes is seen constantly with Betty Kendall, daughter of New York showman. Messmore Kendall. Not forgetting Junior Laemmle's recent attentions to Lillion Roth. Junior, by the way, is one of the Hollywood contingent who chose Palm Springs instead of San Francisco for this weekend. He went to the desert resort with Jerry Horwin. Claudette Colbert, Nancy Carroll and Randolph Scott are other Hollywoodites enjoying the dry air.

Wonder who met Harry Bannister when he got in on a transcontinental plane? According to wires to his friends, Harry is out here to cast that play he bought in London and intends to produce in New York this season.

Carole Lombard in New Screen Role

Carole Lombard has been borrowed from Paramount by Charles R. Rogers to portray the featured feminine role in "Billion Dollar Scandal," which goes into production next Monday under the direction of Harry Joe Brown. Robert Armstrong has the featured male role in the picture and it is interesting to note that this will be the first time these two players have been together since Miss Lombard played her first featured role in "The Racketeer" two years ago.

M-G-M Borrows Star From Columbia

Richard Cromwell, Columbia's young star, has been borrowed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for the leading role opposite Helen Hayes in "Son, Daughter." He recently appeared for the same producers in "Emma" with Marie Dressler.

Make-Up Wizard

Boris Karloff, who, ever since "Frankenstein," has been considered the successor of Lon Chaney as a wizard of make-up, is here shown as "Fu Manchu" in the talkie of the same title, Cosmopolitan production of the Sax Rohmer story.

Smile + Intrigue + Her Pal + Player

Helen Twelvetrees, who was borrowed by MGM to play the feminine lead in "Unashamed," smiles for the birdie.

Ed Wynn and his show, "The Laugh Parade," will be the cause of turning on the footlights of the Nixon stage again tonight. "The Laugh Parade" will rest tomorrow night while Mr. Wynn does his regular radio act, also on the Nixon stage, for the benefit of the Welfare Fund. The musical show will resume at the Wednesday matinee and continue for the remainder of the week, with an extra matinee Friday. Tickets for the public broadcast tomorrow night are going at $1 per, and no more will be sold than the actual seating capacity of the theater.

* * *

"The Vinegar Tree" will open tonight in the Pitt as the week's offering of the Edwin Vail Players. It is a comedy that formerly served as a starring vehicle for Mary Boland. The principal role will be played by Ella Ethridge. Following "The Vinegar Tree" in the Pitt will be "Blessed Event," a comedy success of last season in New York. Since there are 32 parts in the play, the company will be augmented for the week. The action concerns a gossip writer on a newspaper, the type that has come to be known as a "columnist," and more or less a copy of Walter Winchell.

* * *

"Out of the Sea," by Don Marquis, will be presented by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement Players tomorrow and Wednesday nights in the Theresa L. Kaufmann Auditorium, which is the stage of the I. K. S. Little Theater groups. Because of the length of the play, the curtain will rise promptly at 8:15 o'clock and no person will be seated while it is up.

Ed Wynn, reports Head Scout William Pfarr, really started in show business (30 years ago) in Pgh. He recalled Sunday night about a Pgher named Mr. Stemm, who had a store in Penn avenue. Wynn will never forget Mr. Stemm., And he means never. Because, as Wynn says, Stemm helped Wynn to play a dirty trick on Wynn's father. Wynn's father shipped him off to Wharton School (now a part of Penn). Wynn never registered, but, instead, joined a lousy repertoire company. First news of this to Wynn's father came when Wharton School returned to him the check he had mailed for his son's tuition with this admission: "There is no such student enrolled." But after a few weeks Wynn's father rescued the lad from the clutches of the drammer and put him in Father Wynn's wholesale business. As young Wynn puts it, "He put me in business for himself." So Wynn went on the road selling, to Pgh. To this man Stemm Wynn sold all his samples and went back to the stage. This was a pleasant surprise to Wynn's father, no doubt. He has been a headliner for these many years, but the first thing he did on reaching Pgh. Sunday night was to hurry over to the Nixon to see the lobby display. His radio salary is $7,500 weekly, but that is misleading. First, Uncle Sam takes just half. Wynn pays the wire charges (more than $1,000) for the broadcasts from the road.

* * *

Saturday's matinee of "The Animal Kingdom" in the Pitt was a sell-out, which goes to show . . . In London a patron can see two acts of Elmer Rice's play, "The Left Bank," and have his money refunded if no likee. . . . George Sharp is reported as ready to begin rehearsals of "The Scorpion," in New York, same being a play by Vera Montgomery, who is expected to play the leading role. . . . Queenie Smith, of the musical stage, will play her first role in a legitimate play when she takes the title part in a company touring in "Lilly Turner." . . Ina Claire thought she wasn't the type to play a murderess, so didn't take the lead role in "Nine Pine Street," now to be played by Sylvia Fields, who did it in the summer tryout in Provincetown. . . . Rudy Wiedoeft, whose name Rudy Vallee adopted as an honor to Wiedoeft, will be the sax soloist and arranger of sax musical numbers for Roxy in the new Rockefeller Center. . . . Charlie Chaplin is said to be considering giving comedy the go-by and doing a picture about Napoleon as his next. . . . Mary Boland, in Hollywood, is wanted for a road presentation of "Face The Music."

Victim of Runaway Truck Accident Dies

Injuries suffered when he attempted to stop a runaway truck in Duquesne resulted in the death of Walter Widows, 39, of 317 Twenty-fifth street, McKeesport, in the McKeesport Hospital early today, according to a coroner's report.

According to police, Widows attempted to stop the truck of Paul Kelly, of Twenty-eighth street, Chrisy Park, after the brakes became loosened on a hillside last October 18.

Jean Hersholt played in the first picture John Ford directed 15 years ago, and did not see him again until they came together at M-G-M for "Flesh"—although both of them have permanent residences in Hollywood.

Charlotte Susa, M-G-M's latest import from Germany, started out to study both medicine and law, but switched to the stage when the celebrated Max Reinhardt heard her sing and told her she should be in grand opera.

Joan Crawford, who is known as one of the best dancers in the film colony, once injured her right foot so badly that doctors said she would never walk again.

Jimmy Durante developed such fistic skill as a boy through defending the honor of his nose against the jibes of East Side New York youngsters that he once had the intention of becoming a pugilist.

Georges Carpentier Takes Screen Test

Georges Carpentier, the colorful French heavyweight boxer, had no sooner reached Hollywood recently than he was rushed to the Paramount studio for a test to determine whether "Gorgeous Georges," as he was called by Neysa McMein, will be suitable for the Lion man role in "King of the Jungle." The outcome of the tests is unknown.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

The Favor

MACK WAS a cop. Not a good one. Not a bad one. He wasn't exactly smart, and he had never, in his 24 years in the department, made a spectacular arrest. On the other hand, no great crimes were perpetrated on his beat.

So Mack was satisfied. And so were his superiors. For the past few years he had been doing night duty down near the river edge. It was a tough section. A bad section for gang fights.

But Mack didn't mind. Along about midnight, you could usually see his burly shadow moving along the gravel path from the new dock to the signal box. He would stand there for a moment, and remove his uniform cap to wipe the perspiration from his forehead.

Then he would place the cap on carefully and unlock the signal box. He would flash his precinct, and report.

"Mack," he would say, "reporting from post 27. This you, Finnegan? Yeh. All quiet on the western front, me boy." Then he would hang up, lock the box, and walk off into the night.

Nothing unusual about this cop. You'll find his prototype in almost every police department in the country. And, oh yes, I almost forgot. Mack had a weakness.

Booze. It's a popular weakness. No home seems to be complete without it. In Mack's case, it was tolerated for two reasons. Firstly, because he was pretty well liked by his superiors. And secondly because he was an old timer due for retirement soon.

But at home it was different. Mrs. Mack was one of those old fashioned ladies who mother their husbands as well as their kiddies.

"Mack," she'd say, "why don't you lay off the stuff? Retirement is very near now. We've been working for that pension for nearly 25 years. Why take a chance on getting drunk?

"Suppose someone reports you? Don't tell me it can't happen. You remember Lieut. Williams. See what I mean? I get frightened when I think of it. Then, too, you get fighting and mad sometimes when you get drunk. You may hurt somebody some time without meaning to. The time is too short to take chances."

Mack listened to these speeches silently. Then he would blow on the peak of his cap and rub it with chamois cloth.

"Darling," he'd say, "don't bother your pretty head about me. I took care of meself all these years, and I can do it awhile longer. If I take a drink now and then, it's only to keep me heart warm until I see you again. Now run along and get my nightstick. I'm late."

And Mack was right. His arguments in speakeasies never went very far. Sometimes his temper would get the better of him and he'd get red in the face and pound the bar with his fist and shout at the top of his lungs. But that wasn't often. And besides, barroom debating is like that anyway.

One night Mack made his usual midnight report at the signal box. Then he adjusted his cap, and walked off in the direction of Jim's place.

Now, Jim's oasis was a lonely oasis down near the river, where the clammy smell of the water mixed with the faint odor of bad gin and cigaret smoke. The place was never crowded. A few dockworkers and two newspapermen, were there on this particular night.

The place was blue with smoke. The beer pump could be heard pulsating under the floor. A dockworker stood at the free lunch counter picking up slices of ham with his fingers and inserting them between thick slices of rye bread. Two reporters stood at the bar talking and drawing designs with the wet stains under their foamy glasses.

Jim looked up when Mack came in. Mack always thought Jim was the funniest looking bartender in the world. He has a long, red nose. Mack called it a "rum blossom." And Jim always wore a long face as though he were rehearsing for a funeral.

Mack smiled.

"Hello, handsome," he said. Then he nodded to the reporters. "Let's have a ball, Jim. The good stuff. You know."

Mack stood at the bar for two hours that night. Sometimes a customer would wander in, complain of the weather, and pursue his lonely way again. At 2 a. m. the reporters left and so did the dockworker. Jim looked at Mack.

"Mack," he said, "you haven't rung in for hours. They may come down after you. I don't want to butt into your business. But I don't want you to get into a jam, either."

Mack's eyes were red and half-open. He leaned against the bar heavily.

"'Sall right," he said thickly. "'Sall right, Jimmy, you're a great kid. A great kid. But you talk too much, Jimmy. Too, too much. Doanshoo worry about me. I'm all right.

"Jimmy, in one more month I'll be gone. Yessir. I'll be gone. Retired. I'll get a pension 'n' go up in New York state on me father's farm. My oldest will graduate from college next year, and he's going to be the finest lawyer you ever heard of. So doanshoo worry about Mack. He okay."

Mack looked around for a snack of cheese. There wasn't any on the shelf. Jimmy told him that there might be some in the back room. So Mack swayed and tottered as he walked into the dark room and groped for the light.

Mack was still hunting for the light when he heard voices back in the barroom. First Jim's voice. Then a stranger's.

"Sorry, brother. No more customers tonight. I'm closing up."

"Izzat so? Well, I'm here to help you. Stick 'em up and hold 'em up until I tell you to let 'em down! If you move, you're finished!"

Mack reached in his back pocket for his gun. Cautiously, he sneaked toward the door leading to the bar. He kicked open the door, aimed point blank at the man with the gun. The cop's revolver clicked six times. Then came three reports. They were from the stranger's gun.

"I didn't want to get you out of bed," said Mrs. Mack. "But I had nothing in the house and this headache was killing me."

The woman said she was only too glad to oblige. Then she saw a saucer on the table with bullets in it. She turned to Mrs. Mack.

"Are those real bullets?" she asked.

Mrs. Mack smiled.

"Yes," she said. "You see, Mack's been drinking too much of late. He's got such a terrible temper that I'm always afraid he'll hurt somebody when he's drunk.

"So I did him a favor. I took the bullets out of his gun before he went to work." . . .

Cannon to Cast Vote for Hoover

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Bishop Cannon, Jr., said he would probably vote for Hoover, at the annual session of the Virginia Methodist conference here. He said he found it difficult to support Hoover because of their different views on prohibition, however, he felt Hoover to be sympathetic toward the dry cause.

Big Potato Crop Reported at Mercer

MERCER, Pa., Oct. 24.—John McDowell, of near Mercer, reports an 8,000 bushel yield from 34 acres planted in potatoes, sold to a Pittsburgh commission man at 38 to 45 cents. One acre produced 394 bushels.

Ex-Governor Byrd To Speak in W. Va.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Democratic state headquarters announced Saturday that former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, will deliver a campaign speech November 1 at Bluefield. H. G. Kump, Democratic nominee for governor, also will address the same meeting.

Senator Harrison Here for Luncheon

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, will be the principal speaker at a Roosevelt luncheon meet Saturday in the William Penn Hotel. The meeting will be under auspices of the Women's Democratic Committee of Allegheny County.

W. Va. Mayor Turns Traffic Policeman

Byrd Postpones Engagement Here

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, scheduled to speak here Wednesday as chairman of the National Economy League, has postponed the appearance until November 14. He is to be accompanied by Charles M. Mills, executive director of the league.

Spanish War General Dies in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Maj. Gen. John F. Morrison, retired, is dead here from a complication of ailments. Gen. Morrison saw service in Cuba during the war with Spain and in the Philippines. He commanded the 8th Division during the World War. Gen. Morrison was born December 20, 1857, and entered West Point in 1877.

Sauer Kraut Lost In $20,000 Blaze

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Fifteen hundred barrels of sauerkraut was ruined as fire destroyed the Albro Packing Company building at Springboro. Firemen estimated the damage at $20,000.

Refinery to Build New $400,000 Plant

KANE, Pa., Oct. 24.—Construction of a $400,000 gasoline cracking plant at the Quaker State oil refinery, at Farmers Valley, is to start in a few weeks, according to reports. It is said the construction will furnish employment to 100 men for four months.

England Settles Textile Dispute

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—The dispute between workers and owners of the Lancashire cotton mills has been settled. Employers and workers agreed to a 14 per cent reduction in wages which is equivalent to one shilling six pence per pound.

SAFETY SEEN FOR ROOSEVELT

turned 60 per cent or more of their poll ballots for Roosevelt, are classed as definitely sure for the Democratic nominee:

Alabama, 11; Arizona, 3; Arkansas, 9; California, 22; Florida, 7; Georgia, 12; Kentucky, 11; Louisiana, 10; Maryland, 8; Mississippi, 9; Missouri, 15; Nebraska, 7; Nevada, 3; North Carolina, 13; Oklahoma, 11; South Carolina, 8; Tennessee, 11; Texas, 23; Utah, 3; Virginia, 11; Washington, 8; Wisconsin, 12; total, 228.

These states returning 58 per cent or more of their poll ballots for Roosevelt, but falling below the 60 per cent mark, are regarded as reasonably safe Democratic:

Idaho, 4; Illinois, 29; Minnesota, 11; New Mexico, 3; North Dakota, 4; Oregon, 5; South Dakota, 4; West Virginia, 8; total, 68.

POSSIBLE 350 TOTAL

The first and second groups, embracing the definitely sure or reasonably safe Roosevelt states, have a combined electoral vote of 296, giving the 30-vote margin over the required 266. With the addition of the third group, which shows a slight Roosevelt leaning, the potential Roosevelt electoral vote is raised to 350.

Should Hoover get all the Roosevelt-leaning doubtful group in addition to the Hoover-leaning doubtful group, plus the Hoover reasonably safe grop and the Hoover definitely sure group, he would still muster only 235, which would be 31 less than the 266 needed to win.

From this analysis the election of Roosevelt continues to appear a certainty, despite the pickup that Hoover has shown since the campaign swung into October.

5 SURE FOR HOOVER

Connecticut, 8; Maine, 5; Massachusetts, 17; New Hampshire, 4; Vermont, 3. Total, 37.

The first and second groups give Hoover a certain or reasonably sure total of only 57. The third group added to these shows him holding the advantage in states with a total of but 181 electoral votes, 85 short of the required goal.

Presidential Trend By States

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The tabulation that follows shows the total vote thus far recorded for President Hoover and Gov. Roosevelt in the nation-wide presidential poll of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in co-operation with all the other Hearst morning, evening and Sunday papers in the United States. It also shows the majority that each candidate has in each state in which he is leading. In addition it gives the gain of each candidate on the latest returns received from each state as compared with the last preceding report from the state. These state reports are usually a week apart. The final feature of this table shows the net gain of each candidate in each state where he has improved his position as compared with the preceding report from that state.

Impresario Pledges Return of Funds

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Alfred Salmaggi, who disappeared after organizing an opera company to replace Samuel Insull's collection of artists, telegraphed the state's attorney's office today that he will return to Chicago next week and make restitution of any funds that may be missing.

Salmaggi declared he went East to solicit more money to carry on an opera season here.

DEMONSTRATES 'FISH LUNG'

MADRID, Spain, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—A crowd of more than 10,000 persons, including government authorities, Saw Adrian Alvarez, inventor of the "fish lung," submerge himself for half an hour in a park pond yesterday in the cone-like tank he calls by that name.

The former railroad mechanic, whose invention is supposed to extract oxygen from water by a process similar to that of fish gills, returned to the surface earlier than was expected. He said a loose nut had caused a leakage.

While sugmerged he sent radio messages to President Alcala Zamora and other officials in the name of "those lost in submarine disasters."

Alvarez has claimed his invention will be capable of making indefinite submersions.

20,000 HEAR LILY PONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Nearly 20,000 persons heard Lily Pons sing "Lucia di Lammermoor" here yesterday—a city's tribute to a singer unequaled here, observers said, since the days of Tetrazzini.

The new War Memorial Opera House, first and only municipal opera house in the United States, was filled to capacity, hundreds more stood. The exposition auditorium, a block away, likewise held a capacity audience of 15,000, and an overflow stood in the public square opposite City Hall.

Transmission of the opera performance electrically from the opera house stage to the auditorium and to loud speakers over the steps of the City Hall was done by direction of the Board of Supervisors. No charge was made for the auditorium seats.

LINER RESCUES 15 ADRIFT

ABOARD S. S. PRESIDENT GRANT, off Mexican coast, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Under the glare of powerful searchlights, the President Grant early today put a line aboard the fishing boat Mayflower, of San Diego, which had been drifting helplessly for four days off Mexico.

Capt. Wilbur Ross, commanding the Dollar liner, planned to tow the rudderless craft and her crew of 15 to the nearest Mexican port, about 200 miles to the east.

The liner turned from her course to aid the helpless tuna clipper. The President Grant is en route from New York to Manila via San Pedro.

Two Sent to Prison In Bogus Cash Case

Two men pleaded guilty to possessing counterfeiting materials and were sentenced to prison terms in Federal Court, today.

Gabriel Plusheff, alias John Blus, 41, of Brooklyn, was sentenced to three years in Atlanta, and Charles Miller, alias Vasil Dagomiller, of West Middlesex, Pa., to one year by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker.

MYSTERY GIRL SLAIN IN DESERT

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Deputy sheriffs deployed today through small towns on the Mojave Desert seeking clothing stripped from the auburn-haired young woman whose nude body was found by a prospector in the wasteland 40 miles northwest of this city.

Authorities judged the woman was slain Friday night and thrown from a motor car by someone who knew the country, knew that the old wagon trail which he drove was rarely used.

There was a tire track near the body, but no footprints.

The ground lacked a sign of a struggle, but the body bore evidence the woman had resisted until her life was ended by a blow on the head. The body was found by Frederick W. Schwarm, who, driving from a mine to his San Pedro home, took a short cut over the trail.

Investigate Death Of Braddock Man

The Coroner's office today was investigating the death of Joseph DeCesare, 51, The Braddock General Hospital, where he died, reported that DeCesare had suffered a fractured skull falling down the steps of his home at 545½ Cherry way, Braddock. Braddock police pointed out that the skull was fractured in two places.

MAN WHO SPED WAR CALL DIES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—John Taylor Waldorf, 62, whose favorite story was how he hurried the United States into the World War "three days early," died here yesterday, ending a newspaper career that found him employment during 40 active years in 46 states.

Known as one of the "characters" of his profession, Waldorf was enrolling clerk of the United States Senate when the declaration of war came down to the Senate from President Wilson. Approval and routine enrollment and printing usually required three days or more, but Waldorf, working all night, completed the task and saw the document returned to the President the next morning.

Born in Hilldale, Mich., Waldorf came West to Virginia City, Nev. His father, Jacob "Ophir Jake" Waldorf, was a colorful figure in the early Nevada mining camps, himself a miner and a Nevada state legislator.

Waldorf ran away from Virginia City with a circus and later became a tramp printer. Finally, on the old San Jose Mercury, he began his editorial career.

OPERA SINGER SHOT BY MATE

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The soprano star, Gertrude Bindernagel, sang in the tragic opera, "Siegfried," last night, and a few minutes later was the victim of a gun attack by her husband.

The husband, Wilhelm Hintze, a banker, appeared at the stage door and as his wife emerged drew a pistol and shot her.

Early today an operation was performed for removal of the bullet from a kidney, but physicians said the noted singer's condition was "practically hopeless."

Miss Bindernagel, the police said, started divorce proceedings against her husband last week. Hintze submitted quietly to arrest. He told police he "wanted to teach her a lesson." Police said that he tried to commit suicide after firing at his wife, but the gun failed.

Ship Saves Officers Adrift in Storm

ANTWERP, Belgium, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—After being tossed helplessly for two and a half days in a small sailing boat during a storm on the North Sea, three British naval officers finally were rescued by the steamer Romanby which brought them here yesterday.

The trio, Lieuts. Colin McMullen, C. E. Keys and G. F. Blaxland, fired the last cartridges in a gun but it failed to attract attention of the big ship. In despair they began shouting in unison and the cries finally were heard.

WRIGLEY DOLLARS A SURPRISE TO SOME

Wrigley Users Oft'times Dubious.

By MISS MINT

In my travels every day, I sometimes encounter some folks who know nothing about the Wrigley Dollars. They are really inclined to think me a bit "goofy"—"What manner of person is this, who has the idea she can give away dollars?"—so runs their trend of thought. Imagine their reaction when I explain the situation. Thrilled? Of course, and mighty glad to take that dollar bill—with visions of a pair of new hose, necktie or some other little coveted article, not so far away.

MR. HARRY GEIGER, 74 May St., Castle Shannon, is out of town a great deal. He was unaware that I was giving dollar bills away to Wrigley users. "Wrigley's gum has a lasting flavor and does not tire your mouth," Mr. Geiger informed me. "I use it a great deal, especially when traveling. Say, I can't imagine anyone giving dollar bills away. You should be the most popular girl in the world." Thanks, Mr. Geiger, but it's really Wrigley's good gum and those crisp new dollars that deserve the popularity.

I gave Wrigley Dollars to ever so many yesterday. Here are a few names:

HILDA GUSTAFSON, 711 13th Ave., Munhall; H. C. DONALIES, 435 Fisher St.; IRENE M. KUMMER, 67 Amanda St.; AL ODENWALLER, 864 Lockhart St.; LOUIS M. MAIER, 100 Allen Ave.; HOWARD MILLER, 249 East Meyers Ave.

Don't delay purchasing that package of Wrigley's — Get it NOW! Then you'll be ready to collect a Wrigley Dollar when I approach you.

COOK'S EX-AIDE IN U. S. JAIL

LAREDO, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Hatless as usual and expressing concern only over the fact he had been denied a meal of fried frog-legs and beer, S. E. J. Cox was in jail here today awaiting return to Oklahoma City and action on his appeal from a 10-year sentence for mail fraud.

The notorious oil stock promoter, who served 30 months in Leavenworth Prison as an associate of Dr. Frederick Cook in a Texas fraud case, was deported from Mexico.

The arrest was ordered by Herbert K. Hyde, United States District Attorney of Oklahoma, who gave as the specific reason that Cox had left the jurisdiction of the court, pending ruling on his appeal.

Free under $10,000 bond, Cox went to Mexico last February soon after his conviction in connection with operations of the Universal Oil and Gas Company.

Glider Sets Mark With 35 Hours

AKRON, O., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—E. B. Sutherland, of Akron, went "up and over" in his motorless plane 35 times at a glider meet yesterday to establish himself as a claimant of a record for glider loops.

Pilots from glider clubs throughout the Midwest, including organizations from Pittsburgh, watched Sutherland's feat. The 35 loops exceed by four the count Sutherland set up while training for the meet.

May and December Romance Blasted

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—The May-December romance of Florence A. Schnurbush, 16, who married Charles R. Fisher, 50, Cambridge printer, has turned to ashes. The husband refused to bail her out after she was locked up on larceny charges.

The girl bride was accused by Mary Branagan of stealing a ring from her home. Mary had taken Florence in for a night's lodging, she told police, when the husband locked her out recently.

Archbishop's Office Raided in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—A dispatch from Guadalajara said that police had searched the office of the archbishop and subsequently reported they had discovered subversive propaganda. No arrests were made. The Attorney General issued orders for the search.

The same dispatch reported the 26th Regiment had been sent to the Los Altos region of Jalisco to maintain order.

10-DAY VIGIL NETS 3 SUSPECTS AS $15,000 FIRE RAGES

SURVEY SHOWS NEW CONGRESS FOR REPEAL

Submission to States Favored by Ratio of Eleven to One

Candidates for election to the Seventy-third Congress stand 11 to 1 for submission of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the various states, the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform announced today, as a result of its poll of 45 states.

A compilation released from the Washington headquarters of the organization reveals that 553 congressional candidates favored submitting the question of straight repeal, and 79 for submitting repeal with reservations. Fifty-four opposed submitting the question to the states.

ANSWER QUESTION

The question presented to each candidate follows:

"If elected, will you support a resolution for the straight repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the restoration to each state of its power to regulate the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating beverages within its own limits? Such resolution to be submitted to conventions in the several states for ratification or rejection."

Of replies received from nine candidates in Allegheny County all were listed as favoring submission of repeal with the exception of Clyde Kelly, nominee of both Republican and Democratic parties from the Thirty-first district.

WETS JUBILANT

Commenting on the significance of the poll, Mrs. William B. Mason, chairman of the District of Columbia Division, which is the national legislative department of the organization, said

"The arrival of a wet militant group in the new congress is definitely forecast. Wets have real cause to be jubilant.

"Of the many profoundly significant interpretations to be gained from this poll, I think it is particularly interesting that 322 Democrats are standing on their National platform while 135 Republicans, avowed repealists, have parted company with the Republican restrictive plank."

G. O. P. Reminded What 'John L.' Said When Defeated

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Register a free and untrammeled vote against the jolly Republican propaganda of fear and intimidation.

It's terrible. After an administration orator gets through predicting the terrors of the Democratic apocalypse you can't tell whether the listeners are crying or eating grapefruit.

Nobody can blame the Democrats for what happened in the last four years. And with all regards for Republican pessimism it's too dearly to accept a promissory note on the next eclipse.

Why not get a little sporting instinct and fair play into politics, ouldn't the administration learn a little from John L. Sullivan at New Orleans and be glad that the championship remains in America?

Conceding that John was a little groggy when he said it we still claim he was in better mental condition than the present crop of Republican campaign squawkers.

COUNTY RENEWS FIGHT AGAINST HALL SITE

Court Hears Argument For Quashing of Mandamus

The latest chapter in Pittsburgh's $6,000,000 Town Hall litigation today was being written in Common Pleas Court before Judges Ambrose B. Reid, James R. Mcfarlane and Samuel H. Gardner, who are hearing arguments on a motion to quash a writ of mandamus issued several months ago to compel the county to carry out its contract to purchase a tract of land in Oakland involving $1,100,000.

Through Assistant County Solicitor John H. Lauer, the county argued today that the Schenley Farms Company, with which the previous Board of County Commissioners had contracted for the purchase of the tract, cannot convey a title to the property clear of incumbrances, and there is no existing contract.

ATTACKS CONTRACT

Lauer declared that the contract was not binding because the board of directors of the Schenley Farms Company had not formally signed it.

Declaring that "the life or death of the Schenley Farms Company depends upon the outcome of this litigation," Attorney William Watkins Smith asserted a Supreme Court ruling established the effectiveness of the contract with his client.

The ruling, Smith said, decided that in event a secretary and president of a board of directors sign a contract, it is to be considered the contract of the corporation and is binding.

In selling the property to the county, Smith declared, it was understood that all encumbrances on the land could be deducted from the purchase price.

RIDICULED BY JUDGE

Judge Macfarlane, speaking from the bench, said:

"One board (of County Commissioners) said it wanted it. Another board comes along and says it doesn't. The idea appears to be preposterous."

The court also asked if there was any reason to be given why the present Board of County Commissioners was taking the present action. Nobody offered any reason.

MARKET STREET BLAZE LAID TO PLOT

'Tip' to Marshal Pfarr Sets Trap Ending in Arrest of Trio

In a building across the street, Thomas Pfarr, veteran county fire marshal, had waited nearly 10 days for the fire that partially destroyed the warehouse of I. Robbins & Sons, wholesalers of carnival supplies, 109 Market street, early yesterday, it was revealed today.

An "underground" tip told the mashal that the four-story building was slated to blaze, and when the flames leaped from the roof early Sunday the fire mashal ran to an alarm box to call assistance.

THREE SUSPECTS HELD

The trailing of two men, who Pfarr said his men saw leaving the building late Saturday afternoon, led to the arrest of three suspects, who were held for investigation by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today.

They were docketed as Boris Silverman, 810 Bryn Mawr road; Morris H. Levine, 415 Grove street, and Fritz Schweitzer, 311 Carrick avenue. Detectives said they were employes of the warehouse.

Two firemen were injured as a dozen companies fought to extinguish the blaze that swept downward from the roof to the third floor.

When the flames threatened adjoining buildings, a second alarm was sounded, and after streams had been played on the structure for five hours the fire was struck out.

The loss was estimated by Deputy Fire Chief Frank Jones at $15,000.

TWO FIREMEN HURT

John Hart, driver of No. 3 truck, suffered a badly bruised leg when he fell through the roof. A fellow fireman, Robert Old, also of No. 3 company, saved him from the blazing timbers on the floor below, firemen said.

Mike Regan, also of No. 3 company, was removed to Mercy Hospital after he was overcome by smoke.

Sleepless for many nights, Marshal Pfarr was ordered to bed last night by his physicians. His condition was reported as not serious.

He blamed the fire on an incendiary who, he said, set a time arrangement several hours before the blaze was discovered.

WATCHED FOR 10 DAYS

He knew, more than a week ago, that the building was to be fired, he said. It was heavily insured, he said. With a half dozen of his men, all former city firemen, the marshal said he kept a constant watch for the last 10 days.

Late Saturday, he said, his men reported two men visited the building. They were trailed when they left and watched, but it was not until the blaze broke through the roof that they were questioned.

VICTIM BEATEN IN $100 HOLDUP

Harry Stewart, of 1717 Woodmont avenue, New Kensington, attendant at the Marie gasoline station in Freeport road, Cheswick, was recovering at his home today after being slugged into unconsciousness and robbed of more than $100 by four armed men shortly before last midnight, according to a police report.

Stewart told police he was alone in the station when the men drove up and purchased gasoline. He said one of them handed him $5 and that when he turned to open the safe to make change he was slugged in the face with a gun butt. He was treated by a physician and removed to his home.

The same men, police said, are believed responsible for the looting a short time later of the gasoline station of Robert McKay, 62, of Acmetonia.

FLEET OFFICER NABS SUSPECT

In his flight Cacre dropped 10 dresses he is alleged to have taken from a shop at 505 East Ohio street and concealed under his topcoat.

The chase started after a customer had pointed out the Porto Rican and a crowd collected, shouting "Thief." Patrolman Judas joined in the chase and overtook the fugitive at Avery street and Cedar avenue. Cacre said he had come here from Chicago and gave his temporary address as 1232 Wylie avenue.

TWO RUN DOWN BY AUTOS DIE

William Krause, 6, of 615 Grandview avenue, died in a physician's office last night after he was struck by an East Pittsburgh-North Braddock bus at Grandview avenue and Franklin street, East Pittsburgh, police reported.

Injured when struck by an automobile in Second avenue, Saturday, Steve Jumovich, 65, of 4308 Second avenue, died early today in Homestead Hospital.

Two women were injured when two machines crashed in Saw Mill Run boulevard yesterday. They were Priscilla Blair, of Waynesburg, and Mattie Perkins, of Washington.

John Kobus, of 2611 McCord street, was injured yesterday when his wagon was struck by a taxicab, police said, in Arlington avenue.

Mary DeShantz, 10, of 318 Dearsie street, was injured yesterday afternoon when she was struck by an automobile in Liberty avenue, near Ella street.

GIRL CONQUERS PURSE THIEF

Biting, kicking and scratching, Alice Miller, 18, of 5745 Center avenue, fought off a Negro asasilant, who seized her purse last night, police reported.

When the fight was over and the Negro had fled, police found the purse, near the scene of the scuffle.

CHAPTER X.

On one occasion when the Killer's tracks were found they formed a complete circle around the little plot of ground where the Tiger Temple stood. This somehow served to confirm the native belief that the temple could confer an absolute immunity. I always suspected that the old priest might have created some counterfeit tiger footprints, just for the sake of helping business along, but maybe I'm just a natural-born skeptic. Or—in fairness to myself—perhaps I was taking too seriously the hints of a Singapore friend who claimed to know the holy man better than anyone in the district.

At any rate, the Killer's footprints were found frequently and plentifully all around the Kuali district. They were unmistakable, owing to the fact that the inside toe of the animals left hind foot was gone—probably lost in some jungle battle—leaving only three pads. This three-toed imprint had become a symbol of death, and wherever it was found it struck terror in the hearts of the natives. So, while there had been no deaths among Gattle's coolies, a great unrest had come over them and some of them contrived to spend more time in the temple than they did at their work.

While I was in Siam I received a letter from Gattle informing me that the insatiable Killer of Kuali had accounted for eight more lives. This gave him a record of 20 deaths and established him unquestionably as the worst man-eater the world had ever known. In my earlier records, there was a reported case of an Indian tiger that was supposed to have slain 16 people, though I had not been able to satisfy myself that the figure was accurate. But never had I heard anything to approach the wholesale butchery achieved by the demon of Kuali.

REWARD INCREASES

The government, Gattle informed me, had raised its original reward for the killing of the animal from $150 to $250, which is a great deal of money to the average native. While this had spurred them on in their campaign against the enemy, they were meeting with no success. Gattle wound up by begging me to remember that I had promised to visit him on my return to Singapore. Perhaps if I looked the ground over, he suggested, some means of exterminating this epoch-making death-dealer would occur to me.

I still felt that my original advice to Gattle was all I had to offer, but I made up my mind to visit Kuali as soon as I could and see whether anything could be done.

On my return to Singapore I had hardly set foot on the dock when I began getting further news. The Killer had added eight or nine more victims to his tragic score, and the Johore government had increased its reward to $750, an almost fabulous sum in those parts—in fact, any native who could earn it would be a Croesus. As a consequence of this offer many natives from distant points had been flocking to Kuali to take up tiger-hunting as a regular business. But most of them, apparently, had been so frightened by the stories they heard that they had abandoned their new profession promptly and had hastened to the Tiger Temple to purchase immunity from the affluent priest.

Not a night passed without the three-toed trademark of the

Robert Tierney, 20, Swissvale High School rooter, was free today to ponder on the award of the Swissvale-Duquesne High School ball game to gridders of the latter school, 7-0, on the referee's verdict. Angered by a decision, Tierney was said to have attacked "Red" Byers, the referee, resulting in the forfeit.

Saturday night Tierney strolled into the Swissvale Police Station after a crowd of Swissvale rooters had followed him around the street, accusing him of losing the game. He was detained for a time and then released, according to Sergt. W. R. Walker. No charge was placed against him, police said.

3 Women Diners Face Guns in Cafe Holdup

Three women customers were forced to throw up their hands by one of two armed bandits when they entered the Montefiore Sandwich Shop, 3404 Fifth avenue, last night, and robbed the clerk, Joseph Barnes, of $56. It was the second holdup of the restaurant within the past month, police said. The women refused to give their names.

Margaret Voskamp, a clerk in the confectionery of Howard Freland, 5508 Walnut street, was held at bay while two bandits took $8, police reported. She was alone.

The attendant at the United Service Station, at 3039 Bigelow boulevard, was held up and robbed of $40, police reported yesterday.

Police reported four Negroes held up and robbed Robert Burt, of Perrysville, attendant at the Standard Oil Company service station at 4028 Beechwood boulevard early yesterday and escaped with $30.

Whisky valued at $80 was taken from the E. B. Davis Pharmacy, 1913 Crafton boulevard, Crafton, last night, police were notified. Entrance was gained by breaking a rear window and unlocking the door.

The confectionery of Fred A. Bronchain, 1910 Crafton boulevard, also was entered, but nothing of value was taken.

From the office of the Marie Gas Company, 2906 Carson street, thieves forced a window and stole $30, police also were informed.

600,000 State Children Underfed, Club Told

Six hunderd thousand children in Pennsylvania are undernourished, Mrs. Alice F. Liveright, secretary of welfare, said today.

Visiting Pittsburgh to speak at the Hungry Club, today, Mrs. Liveright quoted Dr. Appel, of the state health department, for her figures. She said:

"There is one undernourished child in Pennsylvania, today, for every two unemployed workers. Latest figures of unemployment show 1,200,000 idle in this state.

"It would take $800,000 a month to keep these children adequately supplied with milk, alone. At the present rate, we have about $200,000 for the purpose.

"Contrary to the statement of Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, all is not well with the children of the country. And conditions this winter will be worse than ever."

Mrs. Liveright urged continued support of public institutions set up for care of the distressed and said that generous giving is necessary for relief work to be successful. She declared:

Pennsylvania has placed too great importance upon institutions for child care and care of the infirm. Much of the institutional effort spent could be better spent on preserving the family by conducting work in homes.

"Our state penal and mental institutions, however, are overcrowded and economy should not be allowed to cripple them."

RUNAWAY GIRLS 'STAGE STRUCK'

Pittsburgh police have been asked to search for a Wilkinsburg stamp collector of international reputation, and two "stage struck" Uniontown girls.

Attracted by accumulated mail in his novelty shop, neighbors reported the disappearance of C. Barney Simms, of 411 Pitt street.

He has been missing from his business for three weeks. He is not known to have relatives here.

Mary Zuka, 17, and her companion, Dorothy Rassano, 18, are headed for "the big city to become stars," they said in a note to their parents, police said. The name of the "big city" was not stated, but they started on foot yesterday, police said.

STUDENT HOUSE ON DISPLAY

Seventeen students of the senior home management class of the household economies department, Carnegie Institute of Technology, will be hostesses to the public this week at a display of their student-furnished house, 401 Sulgrave road, Chatham Village.

In co-operation with the Buhl Foundation and the Pittsburgh Housing Association, the students have furnished one of the foundation's model homes on a $1,500 budget, emphasizing economy of household expenditures and labor required to care for the house.

Many labor saving gadgets have been included in the exhibition house, and the girls every day this week between 2 and 5 p. m., will explain to their guests the reasons for their arrangement of the furniture and appliances.

All equipment has been loaned the students by Pittsburgh department and hardware stores.

NOTED DIVA, 71, ON '4-A-DAY'

DETROIT, Oct. 24. — (AP.) — Ernestine Schumann-Heink, acclaimed for a generation as the greatest contralto in the opera world, today is doing "four-a-day" vaudeville, singing her best and "making no apologies and asking no sympathy," because she needs the money.

The shining light of Wagnerian opera of other years, "Mother" Schumann is emphatic, vigorous and unequivocal in her statement. She is 71 years old, still has a sparkling eye and ruddy cheeks, and is as outspoken as the Schumann-Heink of another day. She observed:

"Eyebrows were raised and nice people sighed when I said I was going into vaudeville. Some women in New York said: 'This is terrible!' or else behind my back they say, 'What a comedown! From grand opera to vaudeville.'

"I said, 'You! You have rich husbands. And your husbands are jumping out of 10-story windows these days. That is a comedown, hah?'"

Vets Resent Bishop's Charge of 'Menace'

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Bishop Edwin D. Mouzon, president of the Virginia conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, today received a telegram of protest from a group of World War veterans, who replied to a charge made by the bishop at the Virginia conference in Richmond that the American Legion is the "great American menace," and that the bonus seekers are "beggars and robbers of the public treasury."

MRS. ZIEGFELD DIES AT 84

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—(Universal.)—Mrs. Rosalie Ziegfeld died unaware that her famous son, Florenz Ziegfeld, had preceded her in death.

Mrs. Ziegfeld, who passed away early yesterday, was aged 84, and had been a partial invalid for several years. When her son, the theatrical producer, died last July 23, she was critically ill, and most of the time in a comatose condition. Because of the effect it might have upon her, no attempt ever was made to inform her that Florenz had died.

She will be buried in the family lot at Graceland Cemetery here. Billie Burke, widow of Florenz, was notified of her death by long-distance telephone to Hollywood. Miss Burke announced she would start East in two weeks with her husband's body for a burial in New York.

It was in the family home here that Ziegfeld and Billie Burke were married.

Mrs. Ziegfeld was the widow of Florenz Ziegfeld, Sr., founder of the Chicago Musical College.

MINE OFFICERS UNOPPOSED

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 24. — (INS.)—Present international officers of the United Mine Workers of America will be unopposed for re-election, it was announced by international headquarters of the organization here today.

The announcement was made following a check of the report of tellers of the union. The election will be held on December 13.

Present officials, President John L. Lewis, of Springfield, Ill.; Vice President Philip Murray, of Pittsburgh, and Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Kennedy, of Hazelton, Pa., thus will head the ballot which will be sent out from the offices here on November 15 to all local unions within the jurisdiction.

Those elected will serve two years, beginning April 1, 1933.

Youth Admits Killing Newspaper Auditor

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—William Raymond Ryals, 22, today pleaded guilty in Criminal District Court to the slaying of A. G. MacGuerty, of Winchester, Mass., a newspaper circulations auditor. Ryals will accept a 99-year sentence. The youth confessed he killed MacGuerty in a robbery and took the body to Galveston, burying it under a seaside cottage. Arrested a week later, he directed officers to the crude grave.

New Gold Strike Brings Stampede

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—A stampede to the Banks of the Kawarau River in Central Otago, has followed disclosure of a gold strike described as the richest find of alluvial gold known in this generation. It was the find of two unemployed miners.

Wedding Beer Blast Injures Keg Tapper

DETROIT, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Tapping a keg of beer for a wedding party may cost the lofe of Sam Giannola, 39. He is in Receiving Hospital today with a fractured skull suffered when he attempted to open the keg at the home of his cousin, Charles Noceri. The beer exploded, a stave striking Giannola in the head.

Jobless Pool Efforts To Get Winter Coal

Abandoned Mine Is Operated With Success

Because 35 unemployed men have been able to pool their efforts and pennies, their families and many neighboring families in the Sixteenth Ward will have enough coal to keep them warm this winter.

The mine, near the foot of Sterling street, already has provided 1,500 sacks of coal, each 100 pounds.

Organization is the secret of the mine's successful operation, according to John Foster, 2317 Spring street, president of the executive committee.

Foster also acts as foreman of the mine force. His associates on the executive committee are Joseph Barru, vice president; Regis C. Dominic, secretary, and Joseph Schaffer, treasurer.

Each of the 35 co-operating families receives five sacks of coal at every division, according to Foster who explained that a number of other families, in which the men weren't able to work in the mine, were given coal.

Work at the mine starts promptly at 8 a. m., and continues until darkness. The abandoned mine was turned over to the men by Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation, Foster said. Tools for mining the coal were supplied by Cyril Sprung, a hardware dealer.

Plant Spray Drink Causes Man's Death

An autopsy last night revealed that Edward F. Haberland, of 11 Ruth street, had died from the effects of drinking a concentrated plant spray containing a poisonous substance. His daughter, who found him, said he had been ill.

Hit-Run Victim, Accused Driver Hospital 'Pals'

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Struck by a hit-and-run driver, Ralph Conway was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull. Police charged Raymond Throckmorton operated the machine and promptly escorted him to jail.

Throckmorton developed an attack of acute appendicitis. As he opened his eyes in the hospital he found Conway in the next cot.

BANDIT POISON STORY DOUBTED

The story of Robert Miller, Stowe Township baker, that he had been forced to drink poison by two men in an automobile was discredited by county detectives investigating his death in the Ohio Valley Hospital.

He told the story on his death bed after he had been found on the Pine Hollow road, near his home. Detectives said he had been missing since he appeared before an alderman to have his will drawn. An empty bottle, from which detectives said he drank, was found near him. He had been in ill health.

Vandals Blamed For Church Raid

Vandals today were blamed in the ransacking of the Simpson Methodist Episcopal Church, Lockhart street, North Side. The pulpit and chairs in the church auditorium were overturned, and a screen in the rear of the church had been slashed, police were told by the Rev. John Ward, the pastor.

'GUILTY,' PLEADS ROXIE LONG

Three hundred defendants, most of them indicted for liquor law violations, were brought into Federal court today to sign their pleas in 223 criminal cases.

Among those signing guilty pleas was Rocco DiPippa, better known as Roxie Long, one of 45 under indictment on a charge of conspiring to violate the national prohibition act.

Long and others of the 45 will not be sentenced until after the trial of those defendants who entered not guilty pleas.

Those who pleaded guilty to charges in the other cases today were to be taken immediately before Judges F. P. Schoonmaker and R. M. Gibson for sentence. Defendants pleading not guilty will be tried at the November term.

Mysterious Fire In Home Probed

County officials today are investigating a mysterious fire that destroyed the home of Francis Stanley, near McKeesport, early yesterday.

Stanley told county detectives he and his family were asleep when he awoke to find the basement in flames. He said he saw a man unknown to him flee as he was helping his family to escape.

Plan to Catch Man-Eater In Trap

Killer being found somewhere in the surrounding district. Two of Gattle's employes were among the latest toll of victims, but the natives insisted that they were agnostics who had not kept up their regular dues in joss sticks and prayer papers.

I had several urgent business matters in Singapore, and it was three days before I could arrange my affairs so as to make the trip to Kuali, which is about 60 miles from Singapore. Gattle seemed to have aged since I had seen him. "It's getting on my nerves—and then some," he admitted as we sat down in his living-room for a discussion of the situation.

Gattle called in his Tamil "shooter," a boy named Johoral whom he regarded as the most intelligent and dependable of his native workers. A "shooter," I might say parenthetically, is a sort of watchman on a rubber plantation, whose principal duty is to keep moving about the estate all night and scare off the deer that are in the habit of feasting on the young rubber trees. He walks up and down the lanes between the long rows of rubber trees letting out weird cries and frequently shooting into the air to keep these antlered poachers on the move, at the same time maintaining a sharp lookout for tigers. In his cap he wears an acetylene lamp that throws a beam of light by way of giving him his bearings and helping him to locate the game.

HUMAN BAIT

Johoral was one of the few "shooters" in the Kuali district who had stuck to their jobs night after night despite the fact that there was a killer loose. Johoral actually seemed to relish the idea of an encounter with the jungle assassin. He had made up his mind to get that $750 reward if such a thing was humanly possible.

Johoral was an upstanding young man, and I liked him from the minute he started talking, at Gattle's suggestion—giving me the complete details of each of the recent killings. He hadn't missed a single significant point, and I hardly needed to ask him a question when he concluded.

He was sure that the Killer did not touch any other food than human flesh. Three or four domestic animals had been killed around Kuali during the past few weeks, but Johoral had investigated each case, and was satisfied that the man-eater had not been responsible. This confirmed my feeling that it would be no use trying to bait the striped murderer with goats or lambs.

I renewed my pleading with Gattle to leave out a dead body, and Johoral listened solemnly to my argument. I had learned from questioning him that what remained of the latest victim, the twenty-ninth, had not yet been buried, and I begged Gattle to have this body taken back to the spot where it had been found. There two or three crack shots could set up a day and night vigil.

SUGGESTION REJECTED

"The chances of getting the Killer will be at least fair," I urged. "There is always the possibility, of course, that he will get wise to the fact he is being watched and beat a retreat. But there is also a fair chance of his being drunk with his success in battling man. And if he comes, the rifle bearers can pump him full of lead."

"Buck," said Gattle, shaking his head, "once more I'm tempted to take your advice, but I'm afraid to. Don't forget that it was the Chinese who were responsible for the passage of the law which makes it a crime to use a human body as bait. If we run counter to their respect for the dead, which goes beyond that of any other race in the world, we'll have trouble. I don't want a delegation of them going down to the capital at Johore Bahru with a complaint to the Sultan that we're breaking his laws."

"All right," I said, with a sigh of resignation, "have it your way. What can I do to help?"

"You said something weeks ago about building traps," was Gattle's reply. "The natives have set out a few, but I doubt if they've studied the movements of that tiger enough to know just where the traps should be placed. How'd you like to look the ground over and make some suggestions?"

IRREGULAR HABITS

I agreed, not too enthusiastically, to try it.

"Thanks," said Gattle. "Johoral will go out with you, and later on I'll join you. He's the only boy around here who really knows just where that three-toed calling-card has turned up on this plantation, and he can be of real help to you."

Johoral and I set out for a point where Gattle's plantation borders on the jungle and here—in terms of the animal's past maneuvers, as related to me by the boy—we selected two sites for traps. Our task might have been simplified had the tiger been accustomed to using any regular path or game trail in crossing or entering Gattle's estate. For then we could have dug a pit, camouflaging the opening with leaves and branches, at a location where the animal could be counted upon to tumble into the hole the next time he came our way. But this fiend of the Kuali jungles seemed to have no regularity whatsoever about his habits or movements, as tigers usually have. He was as likely to turn up in one corner of the estate as another, though his tracks showed he did at frequent intervals visit that section of the plantation which bordered immediately upon the uncleared jungle.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

GOLD POSITION SAFE SAYS MOODY'S

Our gold position is now virtually impregnable and fears of a serious outflow of gold, such as again might threaten our gold standard appear to have no foundation at this time, according to a statement issued by Moody's Investor's Service.

Dollar funds of foreign banks had been reduced by the middle of last June to about $600,000,000, or barely the amount of necessary working balances. Since then our gold stock has been increased by over $300,000,000 and if the export movement were to be resumed, we could lose the $300,000,000 without being in any worse position than last June. The only other major source of foreign withdrawals would be the proceeds of sales of American securities held by foreigners, and at present depreciated values for stocks and bonds, this movement would be much smaller than is generally imagined. The statement says:

"As against such possible withdrawals, the Federal Reserve system possesses over $1,100,000,000 of potential 'free gold' over and above all reserve requirements, while an additional $300,000,000 in gold could possibly be obtained from replacement of part of Federal Reserve notes by national bank notes."

The recent passing weakness in the dollar, which was linked to various disturbing arguments produced by the heat of the electoral campaign, is a reflection of a natural nervousness of financial markets, on the eve of elections, over the prospects for our federal finances. What is needed to allay this nervousness is the assurance that the current Treasury deficit will not grow to unmanageable proportions.

U. S. DEBT WELL UNDER PEAK

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—The total outstanding interest-bearing debt of the United States Government as of October 16, based upon the latest official figures, is still $6,000,000,000 less than the peak total reported during 1919, despite the fact that the total debt has been increased by some $4,300,000,000 since January, 1931, says the First of Boston Corporation. The total interest bearing debt now stands at $20,500,000,000 against $16,000,000,000 in January, 1931, the low point since the war, and compares with a wartime high of $26,600,000,000 reported in 1919. The outstanding debt, maturing within one year, included in the above total, is now under $3,150,000,000 or 16 per cent of the total. This compares with a floating debt of $5,735,000,000 equal to 22 per cent of the total peak debt reported in 1919.

The recovery in prices of United States Government bonds during the past year, in the face of unfavorable national and world economic events, has brought the callable Liberty bonds back to 1930 levels and long-term Treasury bonds to prices better than those of 1929.

Stocks of Cocoa Reach New Record

NEW YORK, Oct. 24. — New York warehouse stocks of cocoa on October 21 totaled 602,000 bags, an increase of about 20,000 bags in the past week, and a new record figure in the history of the New York Cocoa Exchange.

GIVES MACHINE AGE WARNING

CHICAGO.—(INS.) — Preventing the machine age from destroying all cultural diversity will be the supreme task of the future, Dr. Raymond Fosdick, of the Rockefeller Foundation, declared at the dedication of Chicago's new International House.

The $3,000,000 structure on the University of Chicago campus will be open to all foreign students of colleges and universities in Chicago.

Dr. Fosdick said:

"The attempt of man to tame his own machines is without a doubt the focal point of most of the problems of this age. It is increasingly self-evident that this world cannot remain half mechanized and half free."

Among those who heard Dr. Fosdick's address was John D. Rockefeller III, son of the donor of the building.

HODGE SPEAKS TO GAS MEN

Saner heads in the advertising business are calling upon their erring brethren to wake up from their present night mare and to get back to the first principals of propriety, good taste, good sense, truth, sincerity, decency and fair play, William H. Hodge, chairman of the publicity and advertising section of the American Gas Association, told the commercial section of the annual convention of the association. Mr. Hodge said:

"The public—any public—even the American public, resents being made a fool of. It's defense to the delirium tremens but none the less effective. It simply learns to pay no attention to such advertising and spends its pennies, nickels, dimes and dollars, without benefit of advertising suggestion.

"What does advertising need today?

"In the first place the kind of advertising which has lowered accepted standards needs to learn to respect the consumer—the public—and not to hold him and his wife in thinly disguished contempt. It should respect the consumer's brains; respect his morals; respect his obligations to his family and himself and give him credit for being something more than a sheep who can read. Above all it should respect his pocketbook, and what his pocketbook may or may not contain."

Chamberlain Sees Employment Rising

LONDON, Oct. 24. — Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the British exchequer, in an address, notes signs of a return to better times. Indications in various quarters are that the rising tide of unemployment has been arrested, he says.

Wholesale and Jobbing Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Tabloid review of wholesale and retail business conditions and the state of crops as reported by Bradstreet's last week from the following centers, on the basis of comparisons with conditions in the same areas in the corresponding week last year:

	Whole. and Job. Trade	Retail Trade	Mfg. and Industry	Collections
Pittsburgh	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Chicago	Good	Good	Fair	Fair
Cleveland	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Detroit	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Indianapolis	Fair	Fair	Fair	Slow
Louisville	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Milwaukee	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Des Moines	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Kansas City	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Minneapolis	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
Omaha	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
St. Louis	Quiet	Quiet	Quiet	Slow
St. Paul	Fair	Fair	Fair	Slow
Baltimore	Fair	Fair	Quiet	Slow

Pittsburgh—Retail men's and women's apparel selling well; wholesale orders more numerous, but collections continue hard to make; coal operations on uptrend; glass production irregular.

Chicago—Merchandising trends slightly mixed, but still on upgrade; steel orders continue to improve; rehabilitation of manufacturing plants generally favored, due to low costs.

Cleveland—"Applaud the buyer" movement to be launched to overcome conservative trading; gasoline prices increase throughout state; steel production rises above 20 per cent of capacity for first time in many months.

Detroit—Cool weather promotes volume in retail trade; wholesaling continues to lag; automobile industry marking time; refrigerator manufacturing continues brisk; federal projects constitute main building activity.

FIRM ABSORBS STATIONERY BUSINESS

With the announcement that the commercial stationery department of the William G. Johnston Company has been transferred to and the inventory acquired by the McCloy Company, McCloy's becomes one of the largest stationery firms in Western Pennsylvania.

While the McCloy organization is busy assimiliating the Johnston stationery inventory with the help of Samuel Seemann, for 43 years manager of the Johnston Company's stationery department, the Johnston Company is actively devoting its entire facilities and energies to the growing demands of its printing, lithographing, engraving and school supplies business.

Yielding to the dictates of an age of specialization, these two of Pittsburgh's oldest stationery firms, have decided to concentrate on specific phases of their hitherto diversified businesses.

The William G. Johnston Company had its roots in Pittsburgh's earliest development. Three years after the treaty of Ghent in 1815, ended the War of 1812, a printing firm known as Eichbaum and Johnston modestly began a business career.

In 1824, William Eichbaum disposed of his interest to R. C. Stockton and the firm was known as Johnston and Stockton. Samuel R. Johnston, one of the original partners, was the father of William G. Johnston, who entered the business in 1845. In 1857 the firm name was changed to William G. Johnston and Company. The growth and development of the printing, lithographing and engraving business has gradually crowded out the stationery department, according to William A. Shields, president.

The McCloy Company, scarcely less venerable in Pittsburgh affairs, was founded in 1879 and has steadily progressed until the name of McCloy has come to stand for a definite quality of service to business men everywhere within a radius of 100 miles of Pittsburgh.

Upon the advice of John A. Beattie, management counsellor for the McCloy Company, plans are being considered for the inauguration of from 25 to 30 branches throughout Allegheny County, according to W. K. Morris, acting manager. He said:

"An 80 per cent increase in cash sales since June, 1932, not only warrants this contemplated expansion, but indicates that business has turned the corner. McCloy's is getting ready for prosperity ahead."

STORAGE OIL'S VALUE GAINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The tremendous significance of the recent advance of approximately 14 per cent in crude oil prices must not be considered only in the light of present additional compensation on oil that comes out of the ground, it is pointed out in the T. S. Hose Petroleum Review. The Review continues:

"There have been two increases this year, namely, one on April 1 of 15 cents per barrel, and one on October 15, of 12 cents per barrel. The advance on April 1 increased the inventory value of crude oil stocks alone held by the various companies in which the public of this country are as stockholders vitally interested, of approximately $49,367,400. The increase on October 15 means an additional increase in inventory value of stocks of approximately $37,783,320. In other words, so far this year stocks of crude petroleum have been reduced nearly 5 per cent, yet their value has increased approximately $87,150,720.

"The recent increase in crude is going to mean to the industry, $264,000 a day. Of that, $33,000 a day will go to the farmer or royalty owner; $231,000 per day will go to stockholders of the oil companies, a group that have already turned their balance sheets from red to black."

Rubber Production In Malay Declines

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—The Rubber Exchange of New York learns that crude rubber production in British Malaya declined during September after increases in July and August. Production last month was 33,315 tons against 36,408 in August.

TRADE GAINED DURING PAST MONTH

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Business activity in September showed significant advances over conditions in August, with gains extending into producers' goods industries, according to the National Industrial Conference Board.

The composite upward movement of basic factors of production and trade was of more than a seasonal nature. The advance in September following hard upon business improvement in August is the second monthly gain since the spring of this year.

EXCEEDS NORMAL

The aggregate physical volume of production in September improved by an amount of more than seasonal proportions, though the upward movement was not widespread. The automotive industry continued to contract its output during the month by an amount greater than usual at this time of the year. While building and engineering construction per day of operations in September increased over daily average awards in August, the gain was less than seasonal. The steel and iron industry, on the other hand, stepped up its production rather markedly in September, when no change over August is normally seasonal.

Bituminous coal produced revealed an increase of more than seasonal proportions. Anthracite shipments also showed more than the usual seasonal gain between August and September. Electric power generated also increased more than usual during the month as a whole, but the improvement in the last week of September and the first half of October showed some signs of slowing down. The textile industry continued to step up its activity during the month by more than customary proportions.

RAILS BUSY

Distribution of commodities by rail freight showed a sizable gain in the past month. Total carloadings, averaging 573,000 cars per week, increased 10 per cent in September over August as against a normal seasonal gain of 3 per cent observed in recent years. Merchandise and miscellaneous items shipped, averaging 379,300 cars per week in September, increased 7 per cent as against a seasonal gain of 4 per cent in recent years.

Department store sales in September, measured in dollar values, increased 40 per cent over sales in August as against a seasonal upturn of 30 per cent. On an average daily basis they were 18 per cent under their level of September, 1931; but the decline is due almost entirely to a decline in prices. October reports to date indicate a probable retention of gains made in recent weeks. Five and 10-cent store sales increased 7 per cent as against a 1 per cent seasonal decline.

OWENS-ILLINOIS EXPANDING

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—William E. Levis, president, announced the Owens-Illinois Glass Company has acquired the Root Glass Company, of Terre Haute, Ind., with its three furnaces and machinery.

The board of directors of both companies have approved the purchase and Owens-Illinois has applied to the New York Stock Exchange for permission to list 55,000 additional shares of its $25 par value common stock to be issued in connection with the acquisition, Levis said.

In connection with the purchase, Owens-Illinois also issued the earnings report for the 12 months ended September 30, 1932, showing net profit of $2,030,573, equal after preferred dividends to $1.68 a share on the 922,173 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with $2,792,841 in the corresponding period last year or $2.51 a common share.

Wives Sometimes Object To Life Insurance! Widows Never Do

Wives of today don't think about life insurance the same way their mothers did. They know that the family must be supported no matter what happens. They know that they would need life insurance to take care of the children, to pay off the mortgage, to settle up debts.

Modern wives who realize these things are setting out to familiarize themselves with the facts about life insurance. To help them, we have prepared an interesting booklet.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Panther Far Below Par. • Bottomley Named Again.
Irish Show Rare Power. • Mason Sees No Grebs.

PITT MUST BRACE TO ESCAPE ROUT

Lew Hinchman

To ask why they didn't do this or why they didn't do that at certain stages would be only second-guessing. It is unnecessary to go into any criticism of the choice of plays, though there is plenty of room. What was clear to everybody was that the Panthers played like a freshman team during most of the afternoon, were guilty of a lot of stupid football, appeared to have forgotten everything they ever knew about interference, and rarely did anything right even in a mechanical sense.

POSSIBLY THE EXPERIENCE will serve to arouse the Blue and Gold gridders and enable them to make a better showing against Notre Dame this week than would appear likely on the strength, or weakness, of their work last Saturday. The fate of Carnegie serves to show what may be expected unless there is a tremendous brace.

That wasn't the worst defeat in Tartan history. Yale beat the Skibos 44 to 0 in 1920, and Penn State crushed them 61 to 0 in 1910. But a team that can roll up 42 points so easily against the Scots even in a year when the latter have fallen below expectations—this makes 177 points in 180 minutes for the Irish this fall—clearly is a marvel of power, and if they don't rise miles above what they displayed against Ohio State the Panthers will be in for a rout.

IN SPITE OF the absence of any Hibernian suggestion in that famous backfield of Jaskwhich, Sheeketski, Lukats or Koken and Melinkovich, Notre Dame insists that her football squad as a whole is mainly Irish. The original squad of 110 this fall showed 30 all-Irish lads, six German-Irish, and eight others classified as French-Irish, Italian-Irish, Bohemian-Irish, American-Irish, Scotch-Irish, English-Irish, Welsh-Irish and Canadian-Irish, a total of 44.

In all, however, there were 27 nationalities represented on the squad. The Germans took second place with 18, exclusive of six German-Irish and one Bohemian-German. There were nine Italians, eight Englishmen, five Poles, three Spaniards, two Slovaks, two Hungarians, and one apiece of Austrian, Portuguese, Jewish, Belgian, Bohemian, Lithuanian, Swiss, Swedish and Greek representatives.

Jim Bottomley

HAVING VENTURED A guess, in turn, that each of the leading 15 applicants for the job would be the new manager of the Cincinnati baseball club, the dopesters are now going over the list again. The latest report is a revival of one of the earliest—that the appointment will go to Jim Bottomley, Cardinal first baseman.

Some time ago it was said that Bottomley had been definitely eliminated and was out of the running. Now the story goes that he is not only back in, but has the inside track and is to get the post. He will be obtained from St. Louis, it is said, in exchange for Pitcher Silas Johnson.

THE CINCINNATI CLUB has informed all would-be purchasers in the past that Johnson was not for sale, but it is held that the business relations between the Reds and Cards are such that the St. Louis club can get almost anything it wants.

THAT THERE ARE baseball fans, or any other kind of fans, who have no use for money in these times may tax your credulity, but the evidence is contained in the fact that more than $8,000 still remains in the possession of the New York American League club unclaimed by the holders of tickets for a sixth world series game at the Yankee Stadium. Ed Barrow, Yankee business manager, says tickets will keep coming in for a year. And even that may be a low estimate, for only last week he received a request for a refund on a ticket purchased for an unplayed sixth game in the world series of 1928.

COMES ANOTHER LETTER from James Mason about fight doings around Chicago. "When I get a look at some of the fighters at the Stadium here," he writes, "including several listed among the first 10 heavyweights of the present day, it certainly is a laugh to see one of them billed occasionally as a second Harry Greb. Max Baer, a wonderfully built man, and Ernie Schaaf were examples here.

"They are two of our leading heavyweights of today. My, how I'd like to have Greb around to meet such fellows. Can anyone imagine King Levinsky, another of the first 10 heavies, in a fight with Greb? He would not hit Harry once in 10 rounds. I have been thinking of Greb every day the last week or two, as it was six years this month that he passed away.

"Another sorry showing here Friday night was that of Battling Battalino. Keep an eye on Barney Ross, who defeated him. I am convinced Ross has the makings of a champion. Battalino and Tommy Loughran ought to retire and enjoy their money while they're safe. One smart fighter who knew when to quit for a life of ease and comfort on what he had made was Packey McFarland.

"One of the greatest fighters of the last 25 years was McFarland. He was never allowed to win the lightweight title because they insisted he ought to make 133 pounds ringside whereas Benny Leonard and others later weighed 140 at that hour. McFarland was head and heels over all other lightweights of his day, and if he had been permitted to come in at the weight they made for Leonard, 133 at 2 p. m., he would have walked away with the championship."

Max Baer

IN THE BREAK between Max Schmeling and Madison Square Garden, with Schmeling threatening to pass up a title match with Jack Sharkey and fight Max Baer next June instead, while the Garden serves notice it will sign Baer to meet Sharkey, boxing men believe that the one sitting pretty, while the others are out on a limb, is the youthful Baer. If the Californian elects to fight Sharkey, it seems Schmeling will be out of luck. If Baer decides to string along with Schmeling, Sharkey will have little prospect of cutting into a big gate, even with his title, as there is no other worthy opponent in sight. So unless some other young heavyweight comes to the front with a rush this winter, the most obscure member of the trio may dictate to the world champion and the latter's logical challenger.

PANTHERS HAVE SLIGHT CHANCE WITH IRISH

By JESS CARVER

Pitt and Waynesburg remain the only unbeaten elevens in the tri-state district today, but the chances are that by next week at this time, the Yellow Jackets will be out in front all by themselves. Pitt may beat Notre Dame here this week, but if it does, it will have to crack down the greatest blocking eleven in the land and one of the most powerful Irish teams in history.

Hunk Anderson, the Irishers' coach, didn't need to broadcast that he was going to let his team score all the touchdowns it could this year. What Hunk should have said was that he could not stop his boys from scoring. He taught 'em to block and block they do. Competent critics who watched the Ramblers crush Carnegie Saturday proclaimed the team to be the greatest blocking eleven in Notre Dame history, which is about the same as naming it the greatest blocking eleven ever.

TWO LOCALS LOSE

Thanks to Notre Dame, Ohio State and West Virginia Wesleyan, there is little, if any joy, rampant on the three campuses today. The Bobcats started the city off on a dismal football weekend by beating the Dukes here Friday night. Then, on Saturday, the Irish crushed the Plaid and the Buckeyes erased Pitt from the untied list. Pitt should have won the ball game, according to all reports, but the famous hare should have caught the turtle, too.

Carnegie never had a chance against the Irish. That was apparent from the start. The Plaid has no scoring punch this year and with the Notre Dame attack what it is, I doubt if there is a team in the country with a defense capable of stopping the Irish from scoring at least twice. If Pitt happens to snap out of the lethargic and hit-or-miss condition it has slipped into during the last two weeks, and beat Notre Dame, look for a big afternoon of scoring.

The entire Notre Dame cast this fall is a stellar one, but the player who will surprise you the most is the veteran Charley Jaskwich, the first-string quarterback. Last year and the season previous, Jaskwich was just an ordinary quarterback, but this year he's a wow. He cuts 'em down like a scythe, passes, punts and runs like a Schwartz and, so far, his only tactical error was in picking up the wrong helmet when Coach Hunk sent him into the game.

FULLBACKS STRONG

Then those two fullbacks—Banas and Melinkovich. Banas, a powerhouse ball carrier, fine punter and good pass receiver, is just a step behind Melinkovich, who has only a bit of finesse on Steve. The fullbacks are so good that for once, the Notre Dame halfbacks are being overshadowed, but don't think Messrs. Lukats, Brancheau, Koken and Sheeketski can't play football. This Lukats is a honey. If you didn't know different, you'd swear Marchy Schwartz was back there again, and if you didn't know he was in New York, you'd bet all the tea in China the gent wearing No. 12 was Marty Brill and not Brancheau.

About the only reason Alexander is on the first eleven as center is because he's a senior. Kitty Gorman looked like the better ball player against Tech. Kosky and Host are having one dickens of a job holding down their end jobs; Krause and Kurth can play tackle all afternoon and be as tough at 5 o'clock as they were at 2 and Greeney and Harris have the situation at the center of the line very well in hand.

It will be tough picking an all-American at Notre Dame this year . . . they're all good, but Jaskwich is going to make a serious bid for the quarterback honor.

The only bright spot in the play of the Tartans was the punting of Joe Mihm, the sturdy sophomore. Joe averted better than 41 yards on his nine punts. The Tech linemen covered the Irish quarterbacks fairly well on most occasions, except of course the time Jaskwich brought Joe's boot back 59 yards for a touchdown. He never should have passed midfield.

IRISH PLAY PRAISED

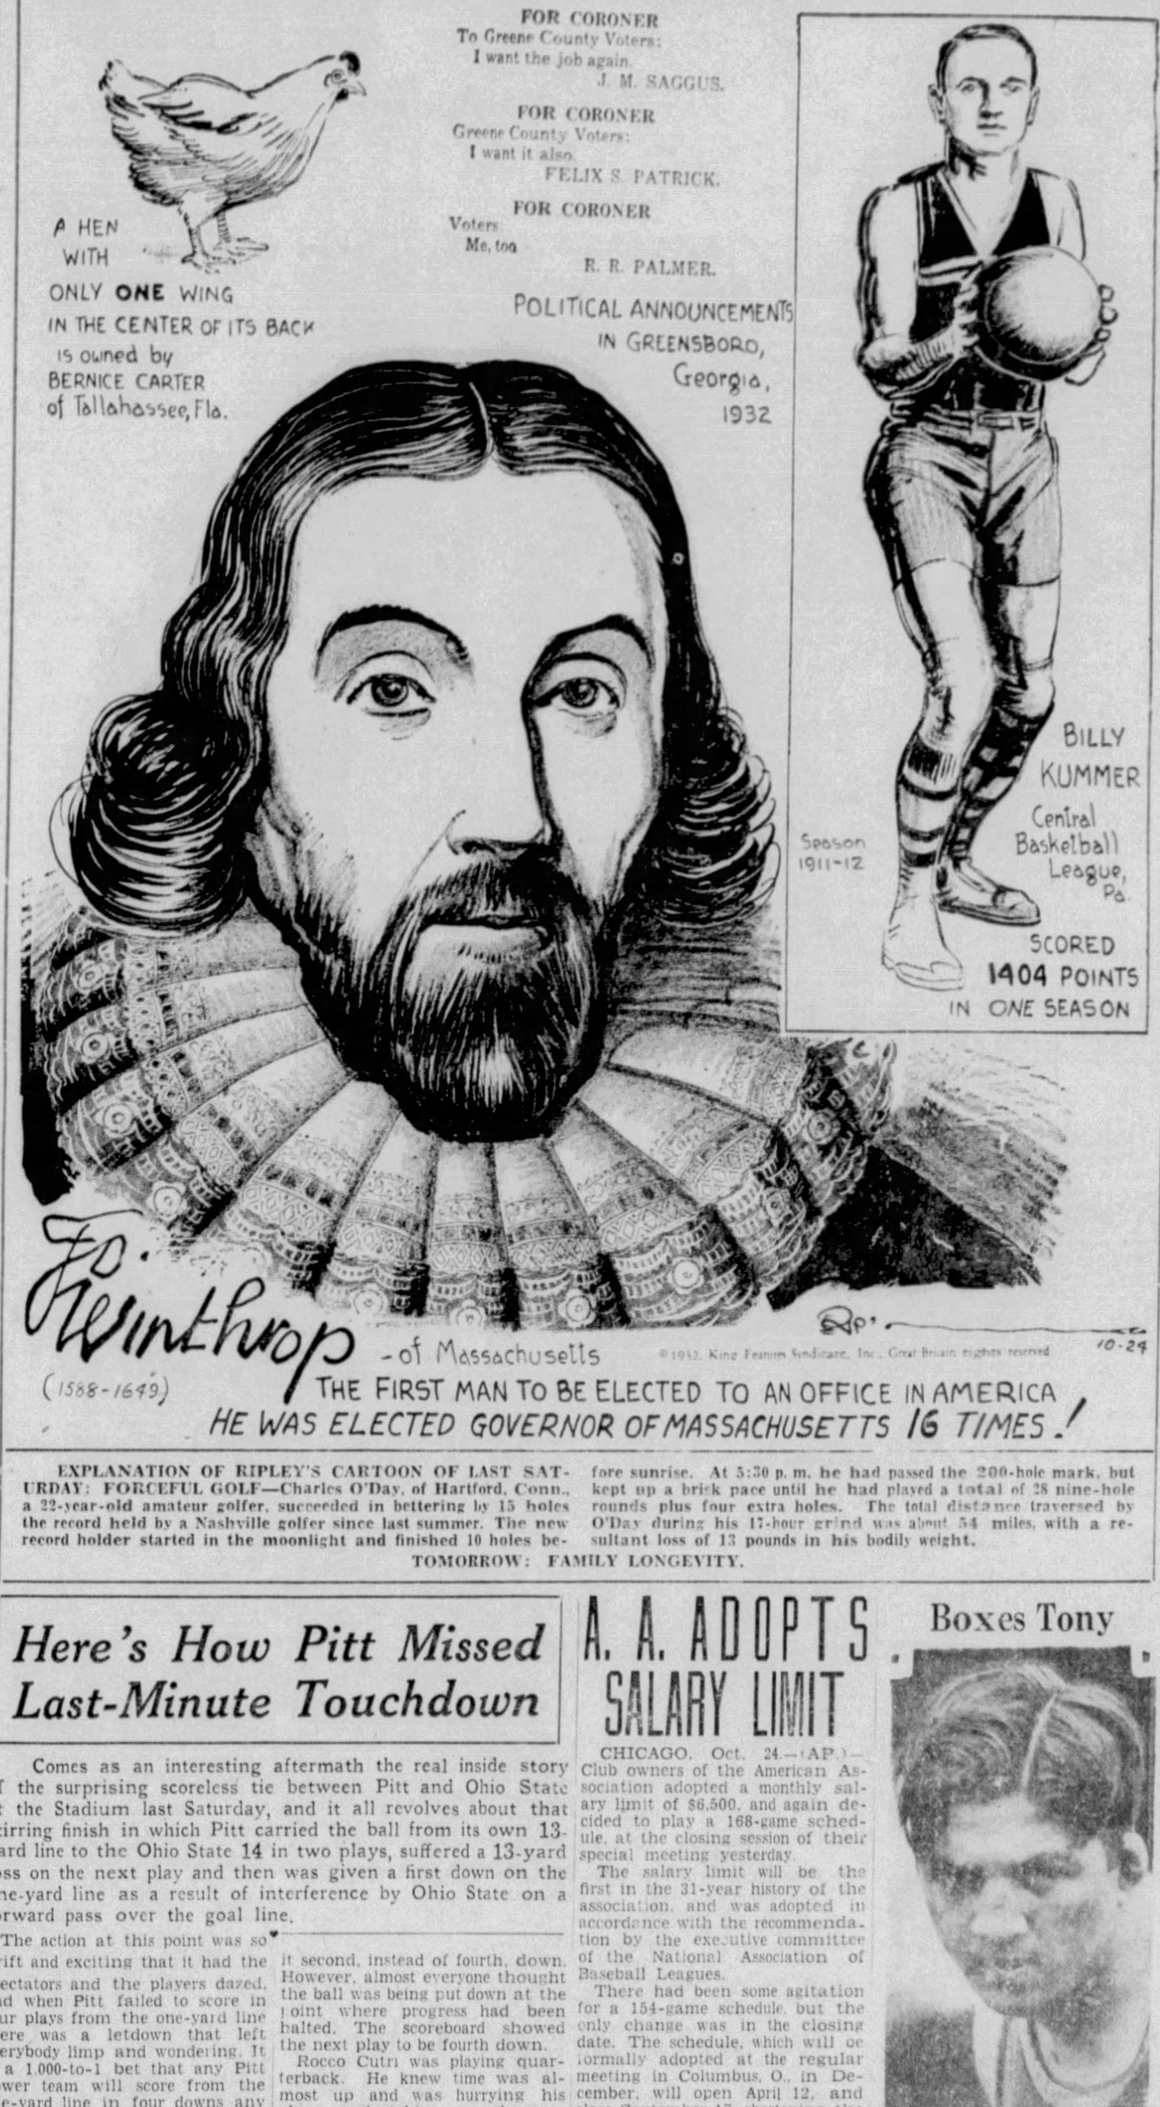
"I saw the Notre Dame stadium from more different angles than you get in four years in the school of architecture."

There were no upsets recorded in the district over the weekend, unless you count the Duquesne-Wesleyan result as such. Albright figured to beat Davis-Elkins and did. Detroit trimmed West Virginia and Wash-Jeff ran over Xavier. Westminster made a plucky fight against St. Bonaventure and Thiel was two touchdown better than Bethany.

Waynesburg continued its fine play by beating Grove City, Geneva laced Boston University; Fairmont tied California; Dickinson was lucky to take Allegheny and Glenville upset Slippery Rock.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT (Reg. by U. S. Patent Office) By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)



EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: FORCEFUL GOLF—Charles O'Day, of Hartford, Conn., a 22-year-old amateur golfer, succeeded in bettering by 15 holes the record held by a Nashville golfer since last summer. The new record holder started in the moonlight and finished 10 holes before sunrise. At 5:30 p. m. he had passed the 200-hole mark, but kept up a brisk pace until he had played a total of 28 nine-hole rounds plus four extra holes. The total distance traversed by O'Day during his 17-hour grind was about 54 miles, with a resultant loss of 13 pounds in his bodily weight.

TOMORROW: FAMILY LONGEVITY.

Here's How Pitt Missed Last-Minute Touchdown

Comes as an interesting aftermath the real inside story of the surprising scoreless tie between Pitt and Ohio State at the Stadium last Saturday, and it all revolves about that stirring finish in which Pitt carried the ball from its own 13-yard line to the Ohio State 14 in two plays, suffered a 13-yard loss on the next play and then was given a first down on the one-yard line as a result of interference by Ohio State on a forward pass over the goal line.

The action at this point was so swift and exciting that it had the spectators and the players dazed, and when Pitt failed to score in four plays from the one-yard line there was a letdown that left everybody limp and wondering. It is a 1,000-to-1 bet that any Pitt power team will score from the one-yard line in four downs any time.

HOW IT HAPPENED

Well, here is what happened:

Only about a minute of playing time remained when the ball was put in play on the one-yard line. Pitt was not given a touchdown on the interference because the rules say no score can be made on a penalty.

Instead of being fourth down when Cutri threw his forward pass incomplete into the end zone to give the ball to the Buckeyes for two scrimmages from their 20-yard line before the final gun, it was only second down, and thereby hangs another tale.

The Panthers failed to gain on their first try at the line. On the next play, the Ohio line charged offside to smother the rush. It was smart football, inasmuch as the usual five-yard penalty could not be invoked and there was a chance it would prevent a score. The foul was called and Ohio was penalized half the distance to the goal, a matter of 18 inches. That left it still second, instead of third, down.

SECOND OFFSIDE PENALTY

On the next play, the same thing happened, and this time the penalty moved up the ball half of the remaining 18 inches and still left it second, instead of fourth, down. However, almost everyone thought the ball was being put down at the point where progress had been halted. The scoreboard showed the next play to be fourth down.

Rocco Cutri was playing quarterback. He knew time was almost up and was hurrying his plays and taking no chances. That is why, on what actually was second down, he called for a forward pass, which he himself threw, although Heller, the halfback, pleaded with him to send Sebastian around the Pitt left end, with the Ohio right end playing close in.

A "BREAK" OF GAME

Had there been more time, Pitt could have organized itself for a better conceived plan of carrying the ball over the final chalk mark. It was one of the "breaks" of the game—and what a break!—HARRY KECK.

Six Teams Certain For Central League

DAYTON, O., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—At least six teams will be in the Central Baseball League in 1933, it was announced by President Frederick Howell, after a meeting here yesterday.

Representatives of Evansville, Fort Wayne and Terre Haute, Ind., and Youngstown and Dayton, O., were present. Teams from these cities and Erie, Pa., will comprise the league's membership next season, Howell said. He added that two other cities may be added to the loop.

A. A. ADOPTS SALARY LIMIT

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Club owners of the American Association adopted a monthly salary limit of $6,500, and again decided to play a 168-game schedule, at the closing session of their special meeting yesterday.

The salary limit will be the first in the 31-year history of the association, and was adopted in accordance with the recommendation by the executive committee of the National Association of Baseball Leagues.

There had been some agitation for a 154-game schedule, but the only change was in the closing date. The schedule, which will be formally adopted at the regular meeting in Columbus, O., in December, will open April 12, and close September 17, shortening the season one week.

The spring training period, the length of which previously has been at the discretion of individual club owners, will be limited to four weeks. No action was taken on a proposal to cut the player limit from 20 to 17 men.

A committee, headed by L. S. MacPhail, president of the Columbus Club, was appointed to work out a plan to insure the maintenance of the same eight clubs which have been members of the league since its founding.

Dutras First, Second In Coast Tourney

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The golfing Dutra family, Olin and Mortie, made the Southern California open golf championship a one-two affair yesterday, Olin adding the open crown to his P. G. A. championship and Mortie winning second honors.

Olin finished the 72-hole test at Brentwood Country Club with a total of 277, and Mortie came home with a 283.

Olin Dutra clipped under par 71 figures on all but his fourth round, which saw him take a 71 because of a six on the thirteenth.

Sports Editor

Battling Gizzy, of Donora, district lightweight champion, pits his milling style of battling against the ring skill of Tony Herrera, Mexican flash, of Chicago, in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden tonight, and we shall see what we shall see.

Tony Herrera

There are those who say a boxer of Herrera's rare attainments, plus a punch, will find the Gizzy buzz-saw a very easy job, indeed.

And there are others who contend they all look alike to Gizzy and that the better they are the worse and easier he'll beat them.

The only way to prove which side of the argument is correct is to pit the two forces against each others' and let things happen.

HERRERA HEAVIER

Truth to tell, Herrara, taking on weight, and losing a bit of his speed in the process, didn't appear to be at his best in his last few showings here. He has undergone a rest period since. He'll need all of his old speed and his old trick of dropping in a high right hand to hold off Gizzy and beat him to the punch.

If Gizzy wins this one, he'll be set for a few other big bouts here within the next few months. If not, he'll have to go back to boxing the local talent.

Both Herrera, who arrived here yesterday with his manager, Ray Alvis, and Gizzy today pronounced themselves fit and anxious for the gong that will send them into action.

JARRELL BOXES GROVE

Tonight's show will be the first in a month at the Garden, and, because of the attractiveness of the main bout, figures to draw well. The windup is backed up by an eight-round semi-final introducing Pee Wee Jarrell, of Terre Haute, against Davy Grove, North Side welterweight, and two six-round preliminaries, between Sid Silas and Matty Oldach and between Andy Kosel and Charley Burns.

The first bout is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

Between Rounds

Unknown Winston, the Negro heavyweight, who added Ernie Schaaf to his list of victims in Boston the other night, may show soon at Motor Square Garden.

Ray Foutts, manager of Ted Yarosz, reiterates that he will let his welterweight fight anybody in his class. He has made this standing offer to all of the local promoters, who, however, are unable to lure the big stars here to battle his undefeated boxer.

Farmer Bill Schwerin will box Andy Grogan, Eddie Lloyd will meet Buster Lowsletter and Al Somonsky will take on Harry Fege in three of the bouts on the amateur card at McKeesport, Thursday night.

Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, is rounding out the preliminary card for his Buck McTiernan-Jimmy Belmont show next Friday night. He has Ray Lyle, of Akron, and Jack Wilson, North Side middleweight, in the eight-round semi-final.

Bunny Buntach is concentrating upon the development of the Clements brothers, Lloyd and Jerry, these days. Lloyd is ready to box Jack Collins, the Negro heavyweight, who has been challenging him.

Joe Marcus is out with a challenge to the winner of the Tony Herrera-Battling Gizzy bout tonight. He holds a win over Johnny Datto and the decision for Gizzy in their recent bout at the Arena was disputed by the fans.

Al Fay, of Charleroi, last of the fighting Fay brothers, who included Harry and Ray, meets big George Godfrey, Leperville Negro giant, in the main bout of a show at the Arena in Philadelphia tonight.

Ban on Wrestling Lifted in Charleston

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—After a meeting of the State Boxing Commission and representatives of the Charleston Post of the American Legion here last night it was announced that the Legion will continue to conduct boxing bouts and wrestling exhibitions as heretofore.

W. E. Connell, Jr., deputy commissioner ordered wrestling matches halted here some months ago, pending a meeting of the commission on the matter. At that time Connell said the wrestling matches had fallen below standard.

HARPSTER LAUDS COURAGEOUS BATTLE OF BUCKEYES

PANTHERS FIND O. S. U. DEFENSE TOO STRONG

By Howard Harpster

Geneva College Coach; Carnegie Tech All-America Quarterback, 1928.

From all reports, it appears the Ohio State Buckeyes were the most courageous gridders in action on any field last Saturday.

Howard Harpster

Entering the game with a record that was anything but impressive, on the short end of the odds, and doped to be just another stepping stone for Pitt's great team, the Buckeyes held the Panthers in check during the first period, took the play away from them in the second and third, and, at the end of the game made a goal-line stand that was truly remarkable.

If anyone ever had as much as intimated to a Pittsburgh football fan that this year's Panther could be prevented from scoring in four chances from the one-yard line, said person immediately would have been recommended to the home for the feeble-minded. But the Staters did it—they stopped Pitt four times with only a yard to go for a score.

FOOTBALL UNCERTAIN

Football is a most peculiar game and one practically impossible to figure out, so far as correct dope and probable winners are concerned. To prove how uncertain the game can be and to show that there is no basis upon which to accurately figure the future play of any team, let us review the last three minutes of Saturday's battle in the Stadium.

Pitt has the ball on its own 13-yard line. A forward pass, Heller to Sebastian, gains 54 yards, and, on the next play, Heller runs to Ohio State's 14-yard line, a total gain of 73 yards in two plays. The next try Pitt is thrown for a loss, and, on the following forward pass attempt, the Panthers are awarded the ball on State's one-yard line with four downs to make the score. That makes a grand total gain of 86 yards in just four plays, and now the Pitt team has four more plays in which to add just one yard, and thereby win.

Now, doesn't it seem logical that the State team would crack and go to pieces after Pitt had torn it apart for 86 yards in four tries, and with a first down on the one-yard stripe, it appeared as if Ohio's great fight of the entire game was going for naught? And wouldn't it only be natural that the Panthers, seeing the game change in four quick plays, and sensing victory and an unblemished record, would force the ball over that last yard by sheer unstoppable strength? But they didn't get over that last white line, and football continues to be the world's most uncertain sport. Ohio State didn't go to pieces, she just fought back harder than ever, made the best goal line stand of several seasons, and, accordingly, proved herself one of the country's most courageous teams.

IRISH SWAMP TECH

Out at South Bend, Coach Hunk Anderson's Notre Dame point-a-minute team turned on the power and swamped Carnegie Tech, 42 to 0. The Tartans were helpless against the fury of the Irish attack, and threatened only once. Pittsburgh fans will get a glimpse of this high-scoring Irish team next Saturday, when the Ramblers meet Pitt at the Stadium.

Geneva found the Boston University defense rather weak against passes, and proceeded to throw the ball all over the field for a 39-to-6 win. This week's game with Marshall College will be a different story, and if Geneva isn't right, it will find itself on the 6 end instead of the 39.

Hotel Men to Close Golf Season Today

The Hotel, Club and Restaurant Golf Association will bring its 1932 season to a close today with a tourney at the Wildwood Country Club, scheduled to get under way at 1:30 o'clock.

Following the golf, a dinner party will be held with further entertainment in the evening.

GRINS From the GRID

By O. W. (Red) Severence

Noted Southern Football Official.

No. 12.

A smart defensive lineman would rather have a leaning halfback in the enemy backfield than a set of their signals.

Games have been lost and coaches have lost their minds over a brilliant ball carrier who couldn't keep from giving away the attack by leaning in the direction of the play before the ball was snapped.

Out at Iowa University in a practice scrimmage one day, the offensive team was being smothered on every play, blocked at every turn. Three and four tacklers were greeting the ball carriers before he could reach the line of scrimmage.

Suddenly Coach B. A. Ingwersen discovered the trouble. The right halfback was "leaning" and giving away the plays as he waited for the center to snap the ball. He yelled at the back:

"Say, you're leaning on that play and tipping off the defense."

Came this unexpected reply:

"No, I'm not, coach. I don't know where that play is supposed to go myself."

CHICAGO, Oct. 24. — (AP.) — They are getting ready at Michigan to nail the 1932 gridiron championship of the Western Conference to the old flagpole.

The Wolverines, undefeated and untied, have rolled over Northwestern, Ohio State and Illinois and have only Indiana, Chicago and Minnesota to conquer to have undisputed possession of the title. Followers of the Wolverines proudly argue that Indiana Chicago, and Minnesota have shown nothing to indicate that they might possess enough power to stop them.

Minnesota and Chicago, however, have gathered momentum since the season opened and there is a possibility that one, or the other might come up with an inspired game to knock the Wolverines over. Michigan must be defeated or tied to permit Purdue, tied by Northwestern Saturday, to get into the championship situation, as it did last year.

Michigan battles Princeton at Ann Arbor next Saturday. Purdue, having defeated three of its toughest foes, gets its first opportunity to relax in meeting New York University, beaten by Colgate yesterday, at New York City.

AUBURN AT TOP

ATLANTA, Oct. 14. — (AP.) — Auburn's Plainsmen, essaying one of the greatest comebacks in Dixie football history, today rank with Tennessee as twin favorites for the Southern Conference gridiron championship.

Virginia Poly, North Carolina State, South Carolina and Louisiana State also are unbeaten in the Conference but the rigors of hard November campaigns leave rocky roads ahead for these teams.

Auburn Saturday ended the four-year Tulane dynasty with a convincing 19-to-7 triumph and hurdled what appeared to be the highest barrier in its way to a perfect season.

Virginia Poly handed Kentucky its first defeat, 7 to 0, and North Carolina State eliminated Florida, 17 to 6. Tennessee scored at will against little Maryville College and won, 60 to 0.

NEBRASKA IN TIE

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Oklahoma and Nebraska, taking advantage of desperate but ill-starred aerial attacks launched by their opposition Saturday, remained in a tie for the Big Six football leadership, while Oklahoma's victim, the Wildcats, of Kansas State, dropped to third place out of a three-way deadlock.

GUNNERS VICTORS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The Battery A Gunners, of St. Louis, defeated the Cleveland Buildogs, 33 to 0, in a professional football game here yesterday, and scored their fifth straight victory of the season.

The Rise of Joe Cronin

From High School Team to Pirates at 18
—Manager of Washington Senators at 26

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

NO. 1—THE BOY SENSATION

"Say, Mister Conductor—I wish you'd ask that engineer to step on it a little. I'm on my way to the Big Show and Judge Landis and the other moguls will be disappointed if I am late."

An 18-year-old kid with dancing eyes, a bewitching smile yet a fighting square-set jaw, let fly with that fast one as he addressed the conductor of a Southern Pacific Flyer that was doing better than 60 miles per hour out of San Francisco in the direction of the Paso Robles camp of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The exuberant kid had yet to see a major league club. That was in 1925. A few days ago, the boy arrived far ahead of his schedule on a record flight that probably will stand for some time in the national game. The youngster dropped his pleasing smile for a moment to write a bold "Joseph Cronin" on a contract, the echoes of which reverberated into the furthest reaches of baseball's vast domain. And Judge Landis must have picked up his share of the echoes, inasmuch as Cronin was the youngest player in the history of the sport to win such high honors.

DEFIES TRADITION

Burt L. Standish and Horatio Alger, representing the League for the Protection of Realistic Fiction, will testify that it cannot be done. Frank Merriwell could not make this grade, and who is he that will dare outstrip Frank and his brethren? Well, the expert opinion will have to be tossed out of court in this striking case. And you may search diligently the archives of the sport and nowhere will you find anything to match "The Rise of Joe Cronin."

The bright sally of the San Francisco boy to the train conductor brought a smile on the features of the man responsible for the advent of Cronin into the realm of professional ball. Joe Devine, another native son, had watched with admiration as Joe Cronin flashed in the short field as he captained the Sacred Heart High School team of his home city. On the same train and also sponsored by Devine was Eddie Montague, who, like Cronin, was a brilliant infielder on the high school lots and who was to vindicate the sleuth's judgment as he rose to the majors.

DEEP LOVE FOR BASEBALL

Two cleaner and smarter boys have yet to enter a major league training camp. Pirate Manager Bill McKechnie had rules which said all hands must be abed before midnight and in the dining room before 9. When the hour hand of the big hotel clock approached 9 in the evening, Joe and Eddie would disappear, but they invariably beat the 7 a. m. gun for breakfast.

Devine reports that their love for baseball was so deep the two lads would discuss the game in their sleep. Joe would be awakened from his slumber to hear loud shouts like: "Stay in there, old boy!" and similar cries of encouragement to a pitcher or another player.

Naturally, much of the gossip of the camp revolved around the lively infants from San Francisco. Joe and Eddie were too light and too green to be considered as immediate major leaguers, but the concensus of opinion appeared to be that both would make the grade in time on account of their skill and love for the game. One morning the ability of Cronin was up for discussion. The majority boosted Joe, but one dissenting vote in the forum doubted whether Cronin could make the grade.

DEVINE PROVES PROPHET

Through all the talk Devine sat silently until the adverse criticism popped. This stung Joe, who turned to the player in question and remarked:

"You don't think he'll make it, eh? Well, I tell you something, brother—Cronin not only will be a big league star; he'll be a big league manager! Kick that around for awhile and it will help you to get in shape!"

RAIN CURTAILS SANDLOT CARD

After enjoying a month of delightful weather, the expected break came yesterday and the heavy rain during the morning caused practically all of the leading sandlot football games in the district to be postponed.

In the West Penn Conference, Managers Vusky and Chris McCormick called off the J. P. Rooney visit to Bellaire. At McKeesport, Managers Evans and Schulties postponed the Olympic and West View contest.

In the lightweight conference, the two outstanding games featuring Rox Rangers and the Etna Sycamores and the Oakland Community and Tarentum Firemen were called off. Both these games will attract banner crowds, and the managers were smart in not trying to buck the elements.

The next game in the West Penn Conference is scheduled for Wednesday evening, when the Bellaire Eagles make the trip to New Kensington to meet the Burns eleven.

Tomorrow, the East Liberty-Paulson club will meet the Sto-Rox team at Greenlee iFeld.

While most of the major elevens were held idle, many of the smaller aggregations saw action. The Aliquippa Indians, defeated last week, regained their victory stride by beating Coraopolis, 14 to 0. Snee hung it on Marshall Tech, 19-0, and the J. J. Veronas defeated the Twenty-seventh Ward Traders, 13 to 0, in a thrilling battle.

The Broadway Mounts played fine football in downing Allison Park, 13-0; the McBrides downed the Webers, 12-0; Knapils beat Marquette, 6-0; Soho Oakleafs nosed out Hays, 6-0; Brookline Merchants upset the Williams A. C., 12-0; Corpus Christi defeated Frankstown, 2-0; Export downed Verona, 13-0; Glenshaw won over Westinghouse, 13-0; Sto-Rox landed a win over Millvale Amici, 7-0, and the Garfield Eagles toppled Leetsdale, 6-0.

SCHEMICK GAINS ON LEADERS IN GRID SCORING

Two newcomers edged their way into the first 10 in the tri-state college scoring race over the week-end as the leaders failed to add to their laurels.

Bill Schemick, of Thiel, counting twice against Bethany, went into a four-way tie for fourth place with Deacle, of Wash-Jeff; Johnson, of St. Vincent, and Kavel, of Tech. Each of the four have scored 24 points.

Warren Heller, of Pitt, the leader; Shorty Troiana, of Geneva; Izzy Weinstock, of Pitt, and Deacle, Johnson and Kavai all failed to tally. Johnson was idle as St. Vincent did not play.

BUSH GAINS

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Louis Bush, of Massachusetts State, increased his scoring lead in the race among the stars of Eastern football Saturday by adding three touchdowns to his big total and bringing it up to 84 points. He has crossed the opponents' goal line 14 times in five games this season.

His nearest rival, Cliff Montgomery, tallied only twice against Williams, but held second place easily with 10 touchdowns and two extra points for a total 62 points. Audie Mills, of Baltimore, was held to a single touchdown, his eighth, but he gained undisputed possession of third place on the list with 48 points. The scores of the leaders:

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

By GIB MARSH

Those sportsmen who prefer the pleasure of the chase rather than the kill will have their favorite pastime offered to them in full measure this week. At the thirty-seventh annual field trials of the Central Beagle Club, opening today at Saxonburg, they will observe in action the best beagle hounds of the East, routing and trailing the cottontails over the fields and through the thickets of that section of Butler County. The trials will be concluded Saturday.

The trials will open with the events for those wonderful 13-inch dogs, today and tomorrow being assigned for the smaller beagles to match their wares. On Wednesday, both the 13 and 15-inch derbies will be determined. On Thursday, the 15-inch types of rabbit chasers will be thrown together in the fields, and on Saturday the pack running events will be determined.

PIONEER BREEDERS

The Central Beagle Club is one of the pioneer organizations of its kind in the East and its members in past years have bred and trained many champion National field trial performers and bench show champions. And to the members of this club must be given the credit for improving the strain of that famous sporting hound. The fanciers of the Central Club in past years imported many dogs from Europe, and, by practical cross-breeding, have developed a type of hound now noted for its stamina, courage and tracking ability.

Three large tracts will be at the command of the field trial marshals, assuring fresh hunting grounds for each contest. The field awards will be made by G. Minor Cecil, of Pikesville, Md., and Earl J. Shord, of Hobart, Ind. Horace F. Shearer, secretary of the club, and E. J. Gordon, field marshal, will direct the activities.

CONDITIONS GOOD

As rabbits are plentiful in that section of Butler County and the recent rains have moistened the ground, making trailing conditions more favorable, the galleries no doubt will witness some interesting chases. All patrons of the chasing sport are welcome to attend and will find the galleries at the Mineral Springs Hotel, the quarters and kennels of the club.

(Another article on the Great Outdoors by Gib Marsh will be published Wednesday).

GRID INJURIES FATAL

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Thomas Bagwell, 16-year-old high school football player, died yesterday of a fractured vertebra suffered in a game October 14.

Bagwell, playing left end for Soldan High School in a game against Christian Brothers' College, was injured when he plunged into a "wedge" formed by players of the opposing team to run interference for the ball carrier. Several players of the opposing team fell on Bagwell when the group went down in a heap.

SANDLOTTER KILLED

The fatal accident occurred in a pile-up of players following a line smash. Temple was on the bottom of the pile. Prosecutor William H. Frankhauser questioned the players, but none was able to tell just how the injury was received.

ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL

ALHAMBRA, Cal., Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Robert Houtz, 18, was dead today of a broken neck suffered in a game between his Alhambra High School football team and the University of California freshmen Saturday. An inquest may be conducted today into the first gridiron fatality of the season in this region.

U. S. POLOISTS TIE

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Four members of the invading United States polo team played a 9-to-9 tie with an Argentine four yesterday. The North American side was made up of Michael Phipps, Elmer Boeske, Winston Guest and J. C. Rathborne. The game was played in rain.

By JULIUS LEVIN

Eliminations in the races for the class A and class B championships of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League were in order during the past week-end, with contenders in both divisions falling by the wayside.

As a result of the machine-gun barrage laid down by Old Man Upset, three contenders from class A and one from class B are missing from the championship picture today.

Startling upheavals in the dope bucket removed Butler, Swissvale and Scott High, of North Braddock, from the class A championship fight, while Youngwood, making a bid for the class B crown, was the solitary victim among those contenders.

Swissvale High, riding along on the crest of a championship wave, saw its hopes for the class A championship shattered by a plucky Duquesne eleven in a game that was marked by a riot over a ruling made by Referee Red Byers, former University of Pittsburgh star.

GAME FORFEITED

Ed Paulie, coach of Swissvale, rather than risk the chance of serious injuries to fans and players, agreed to forfeit the contest to Duquesne, which was leading at the time of the dispute, 7-0.

New Brighton High, coached by George Rourke and beaten by Ambridge and Rochester, blasted the title hopes of Butler in one of the biggest upsets of the day. Butler had scored class A victories over Vandergrift, Ellwood City and Tarentum before bowing in defeat before New Brighton, 13-6.

Scott High, of North Braddock, coached by Johnny Reed, found Homestead its Waterloo, the Reedmen losing a 13-6 decision in a night battle on Friday. Homestead, apparently, has taken a new lease on life since it was humiliated by a scrappy Glassport eleven three weeks ago. Since that setback, Homestead has taken over Mt. Lebanon and Scott in impressive fashion.

Mt. Pleasant, engaging in its first class B game of the season after meeting four class A opponents, shattered the title dreams of Youngwood by winning, 12-0.

THREE-WAY DEADLOCK

With Jeannette and Greensburg turning in victories over Wilkinsburg and Clairton, respectively, while New Castle was engaging in a non-Conference battle with Ellwood City, the Class AA Conference race now is a three-way deadlock. New Castle, Jeannette and Greensburg each have won two games without meeting defeat.

Apollo High, a class B team coached by Charley Buzzard, which has been making life miserable for a flock of class A opponents this season, met a sad fate in its battle with Leechburg and lost the decision, 6-0. Beaten three times, once by an alumni team, and tied on another occasion, Leechburg was not figured to give Apollo much trouble, but Forrest Ford's team nevertheless was good enough to ruin any title aspirations of the Greek Gods.

School Notes

The Schenley-Westinghouse battle at Westinghouse Friday appears to be the outstanding local contest of the season. Westinghouse is setting the pace in Section I with Schenley right on its heels. The two teams appear to be evenly matched and followers of the two teams are anticipating a gruelling battle from start to finish.

District 10, of the P. I. A. A., is taking steps to organize a conference similar to the Class AA Conference operating in this section. A plan is afoot to award the championship along the same lines as in the W. P. I. A. L.

According to reports from the Allegheny valley, Bill Younkins is about ready to relinquish the coaching reins at Tarentum High School. Tarentum fans will regret the move, as Younkins has been a popular mentor at Tarentum for three years.

Glassport High, leading the way in the class B race with 111¼ points, expects a tough battle from Elizabeth at Glassport Friday. Elizabeth is an old rival of Glassport and always puts up a stubborn fight against Roy Hickes' eleven.

Ambridge, leading the way in the class A race with 125 points, resumes its fight for the title after a week's layoff by engaging Nate Lippe's Aliquippa team at Ambridge Saturday. This game is regarded as one of the feature attractions in the Beaver Valley and is expected to attract a capacity crowd.

Beaten for the second year in a row by the Dragons, of Donora High, the Charleroi Cougars, coached by Steve Stepanian, face another tough assignment Friday night when California is the attraction at the Magic City. Jimmy Russell's Dragons appear to take extreme delight in defeating Charleroi. Carl Aschman's Californians promise to give the Steppers plenty of football in their game Friday.

There is no chance of breaking the three-way deadlock in the class AA Conference this week-end as New Castle, Jeannette and Greensburg are not scheduled for league competition. New Castle goes to Altoona, Greensburg to Connellsville and Jeannette is idle.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENT IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The stock market zigzagged quietly in a narrow trading range today, as Wall street awaited United States Steel's dividend and earnings reports, to appear after the close of tomorrow's trading.

The list slid off a point or more in the early trading, rallied in the late morning to show gains of 1 to 2 here and there, then slid off again in the early afternoon, some issues recording losses of 1 to 2 points.

Pronounced heaviness cropped out in some of the food stocks, with National Biscuit, Loose Wiles and Hershey losing 2 points or so. Selling began in some of the rails after midday, with Union Pacific and New York Central losing a point or more. American Telephone lost a 1-point rise, to sell off as much. The tobaccos recovered for a time, with American Tobacco "B," Liggett and Myers "B" and Reynolds "B" up about a point, before sliding off again. United States Steel common moved narrowly. The preferred, however, pushed up more than 2 points.

The slump in some of the food stocks took Wall street somewhat by surprise. Earnings have receded somewhat in this group, but recent statements have shown that earning power has been relatively well maintained. Hershey has just reported earnings of $4.27 a share for the first nine months of the year, against $7.62 in the like period of last year. National Biscuit last week ordered its regular dividend. It was suggested in some brokerage quarters that bears who had been successful in the tobacco stocks recently were now turning to some of the foods.

Notable among the day's financial developments was a further drop in the pound sterling, to a new low since last December. The slump in this currency in the past week has been viewed as somewhat unsettling in Wall street, but interpretations vary. It is pointed out that further cheapening of the currency tends to restrict British imports, by decreasing her purchasing power abroad, and at the same time increase exports by lowering prices at which she may sell in world markets. Some observers have pointed out that by helping British world trade, it might well tend to expand her purchases of American raw materials, such as cotton.

Freight car loadings reports continue to provide one of the more encouraging aspects of the business picture. Although the seasonal peak is usually reached around October 1, Santa Fe today reported that loadings for the week ended October 22 amounted to 30,593 cars, against 29,291 for the previous week. St. Paul reported a similar small gain. This was on top of the favorable report for all class 1 carriers for the week ended October 15, issued last Saturday.

WHEAT DROPS TO NEW LOW

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Bearishly affected by a severe break in British exchange, wheat today fell to a new low price record for the season. Removal of United States government trading restrictions had no apparent immediate market influence. Opening unchanged to ⅜ lower, wheat afterward dropped all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ to ¼ off and subsequently held near the initial limits.

Although Canada was offering nearby shipments of wheat at prices lower than those of any other country, Argentina was reported offering for deferred shipment at prices well under those of Canada. Notice was also taken of falling off in domestic and Canadian wheat receipts. Corn and oats were relatively firmer than wheat, owing to recent active shipping call here for corn. Provisions eased a little, responsive to the course of hog values.

Soft Coal Output Continues Upward

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Output of bituminous coal during the week of October 15 totaled 7,888,000 net tons, an increase of 633,000 tons, or 8.7 per cent over the preceding week and comparing with 8,148,000 tons in the same week of 1931.

Anthracite production in Pennsylvania during the week amounted to 1,238,000 tons, as against 1,188,000 in the previous week and 1,587,000 in the same seven days of 1931.

September Steel Exports Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—September exports of iron and steel products were 36,038 gross tons, or an increase of 3,083 tons over August, the Department of Commerce reports. Exports for nine months total 433,306 tons or 56 per cent of the 1931 shipments for the same period.

Imports of iron and steel products amounted to 29,241 tons in September, a gain of 5,613 tons over August.

Steel Board May Announce Dividend Cut

By B. C. FORBES

THE UNITED STATES Steel Corporation directors will not omit the preferred dividend when they meet tomorrow, but the possibility is that the full 7 per cent rate may not be declared.

B. C. Forbes

Production has increased 100 per cent from the recent minimum, but activities are still so restricted that the preferred dividend is not being earned. The directors could continue the regular rate by dipping into surplus. But, my information is that such action is considered by certain influential directors unwise under existing uncertain conditions.

The dividend being cumulative, whatever reduction may be made—if any is made—will, of course, have to be paid in full before anything whatsoever is paid on Steel's common shares.

NOR, CAN General Motors' dividend prospects be regarded as entirely satisfactory. This writer, on a recent visit to Detroit warned against expecting very much in the way of earnings by motor manufacturers during the remainder of 1932. The final quarter is likely to prove quite disappointing for holders of shares in various motor companies. Sales figures also are likely to prove unsatisfactory. Leading producers are determined to close the year with unusually small stocks on dealers' hands. Main interest is being centered on 1933 models.

You will be given an opportunity to buy cars at lower prices than ever before available. Two manufacturers have told me they are to offer cars below even the present Ford prices.

Two distinct—and one might say opposing—trends have developed in this country.

The financial powers-that-be have been trimming sail ever since the Maine election and mean to keep close in shore between now and November 8. They do not relish the political outlook.

On the other hand, more or less betterment continues to be recorded by retail trade, by a majority of industries, by payrolls, by railway car loadings, by construction activities, by bank clearings.

IN THE INNERMOST citadels of finance the hopefulness which was making substantial headway during July and August have given place to caution. The best expected during coming weeks is irregularity. Few, however, predict anything very terrible. I know no outstandingly important man of affairs who expects this country to re-sink to its mid-year depths.

The more optimistic heavyweights claim that foreshadowed political developments have already been "discounted" and that, should the election returns cause a bearish flurry, the opportunity would be seized to make attractive investments, and other expenditures.

SEASONAL BUSINESS improvement has been gratifyingly maintained in most, but by no means all, directions. Whereas the trend one year ago and two years ago was distinctly downwards, the trend this year has been upwards. The betterment has continued somewhat beyond normal dates, but whether political influences will or will not shortly prove a temporarily unsurmountable handicap remains to be seen.

COMMODITY MARKETS about held their own last week. Stocks and bonds lost some ground, but it was flagrantly evident that sudden dips in stocks were produced mainly by professional ears, supplemented by moderate selling by Europeans who don't like the political portents here. The foreign attitude is reflected by the marking-down of the international "value" of the American dollar following restoration of more than $400,000,000 to our stock of gold.

Our national finances admittedly are in far from inspiring condition, due to vast extraordinary relief expenditures, continuation of chronic governmental wastes and acutely disappointing returns from tax impositions. However, the next congress is likely to adopt a fairly substantial sales tax.

This should be added:

Corporations and other large employers court more risk by unduly cutting down working forces than by exerting themselves to spread employment.

Chain of 10 Banks In West to Reopen

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Through aid in loans and advice from officials of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the string of 10 Crawford Moore banks in Idaho and Oregon will be ready to reopen about November 1, it was announced by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The First National Bank of Idaho and its affiliates suspended business on August 30 on the order of the banks' directors.

The banks are located in Boise, Buhl, Caldwell, Emmett, Meridian, Nampa, Rupert and Weiser, Idaho, and Ontario and Vale, Oregon.

U. S. FINANCIAL CONDITIONS IMPROVE

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Plus signs and optimistic comments are beginning to appear in the periodical financial and business analyses of the Federal Reserve Board.

In the October Bulletin, issued today, was found a picture of a great improvement in financial conditions, including increases in gold stocks, heavy reduction of hoarding, increase in reserves of the reserve and member banks and a notable drop in bank failures.

FAILURES DECREASE

September bank failures numbered 65. It was the best record with the exception of 47 failures in March, and 64 failures in April, 1931, in two years.

Between June 15 and the end of September reserve funds of member banks have been increased continuously from additions to the country's stock of monetary gold, amounting to $275,000,000, the board said.

This has carried the gold stocks to $4,200,000,000 and the excess reserves of the Federal Reserve banks to $1,200,000,000.

HOARDING REDUCED

Since July 20 there has also been a release of currency from boarding estimated at $250,000,000. This estimate is based on the fact that the amount of money in circulation declined by over $130,000,000 at a time when it usually increases by more than $110,000,000.

Member banks have reduced their indebtedness to the Reserve banks by $200,000,000 in recent weeks, and at the same time increased their reserves in excess of the legal requirements to approximately $400,000,000.

Tanners Protest Leather 'Dumping'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—(INS.)—Dumping of calf leather uppers in the United States by German producers resulting in heavy losses to the American tanning industry was charged before the customs bureau today.

A committee appearing for the tanners said German leather was being sold at prices with which domestic producers could not compete.

Customs Commissioner F. X. A. Eble said an investigation was being made. He suggested, however, that since this type of leather carries a 15 per cent duty the American industry might find more effective relief by application to the federal tariff commission.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—What transpired on the Curb market today called for very little comment in view of the market's extreme dullness. The market appeared to sink deeper into its autumn slumber, and transactions during the forenoon totaled only 50,000 shares.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Huntington Hospital For Vets Dedicated

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Oct. 24.—(AP.)—The new government hospital, to care for war veterans of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kentucky, was dedicated yesterday before federal and state officials, representatives of service organizations and residents of the tri-state area.

Erected at an approximate cost of $1,000,000, the institution was designed by Phil M. Conley, of Charleston, representing Gov. Conley, as a memorial to veterans who lost their lives in battle. Dr. Charles M. Griffith, of Washington, was the principal speaker.

Torturers Rob Man, Lock Up Daughter

BEAVER, Pa., Oct. 24.—County detectives and state police are searching for two youthful bandits who held up James Nickle and his daughter, Katheryne Nickle, of Hanover Township, robbed them of $7.50 and then tortured Nickle by burning his feet with matches to force him to tell where other money was hidden.

The girl was locked in another room while the father was tortured.

Auction Ends Farm And Fruit Exposition

FRANKLIN, Pa., Oct. 24.—An auction patronized by hundreds of housewives marked the closing of the twentieth annual Venango farm and fruit products show. Experts from other counties joined in acclaiming the apple display as the largest ever held in Pennsylvania.

Mines' Reopening To Give 1,500 Work

DULUTH, Minn., Oct. 24.—(INS.)—The Pickands Mather Company announced that it would reopen 18 mines on the Mesaba, Cuyuna and Vermillion ranges in Northern Minnesota, giving employment to 1,500 men throughout the winter.

UNITED BISCUIT SALES TREND UPWARD

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—United Biscuit Company passed the low point of its 1932 business in July. Since then both its tonnage and dollar volume of trade have steadily increased up to the present time. Tonnage business is now closer to normal than in several months, although the pickup in dollar volume has not been so pronounced.

Notwithstanding this improvement, it is not likely that United Biscuit will be able to earn for the year the regular dividends of $1,000,000 or $2 a common share, which have already been paid. Nevertheless, the company will have to take only a small part of dividends needed from surplus.

DIVIDEND NOT COVERED

While present prices are relatively stable, improvement in dollar volume has not been great enough to produce in the fourth quarter the $354,000 profit which will be required to cover dividends fully.

Net profit for the nine months ended September 30 totaled $646,795, equal after preferred dividend requirements to $1.27 a share on the common. Dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred stock for the nine months were less than $75,000.

For the first nine months of 1931 the company reported net profit of $1,329,571, equal to $2.78 a share on the 450,325 shares of common stock at present outstanding. Final quarter results last year were equivalent to 93 cents a share, and net for the full year 1931 was $1,778,997, or $3.71 a common share.

HOME "COMPETITION"

Normally the third quarter is one of the best of the year, with the final quarter about equaling it. Business of United Biscuit in the final quarter is benefited substantially by the holiday trade which demands special cakes and biscuits. In 1930 and 1931, however, profits from the cake field were somewhat restricted by increased competition from bakers and restaurants, which is a condition the company faces, this year.

A course of competition outside the industry which has affected the biscuit bakers this year has been from the consumers themselves. With sugar, flour and other ingredients of cakes, cookies and biscuit selling at levels which offer the housewife the same opportunity in the market as the big biscuit factories, home baking has naturally increased.

One of the greatest soccer games of the season was flashed yesterday when Morgan and the Shannon Zoneys, of the Keystone League, battled to a 2-all in the qualifying round of the National Challenge cup at the Bridgeville Speedway. The game went 20 minutes over the regulation period.

Petrolini scored for Shannon early in the game, Urbanic crossing a pass that was turned to account. This tally stung the Morgan club, and shortly after the kickoff, the Millers' Run team opened up and Prentise equalized.

This score stood until 90 minutes of play had elapsed. Referee O'Connor ordered an extra period played. In the first minute of the extra time, Grilli took a clever pass from Dave Matthews and Morgan again led.

With one minute to go, Shannon forced a corner kick, the ball landed at the feet of Urbanic and he flashed the ball past Bunnaby to tie up the count.

It is likely the replay will take place at South Park next Sunday.

In the Keystone League, Cecil defeated Valley Camp 1-0 and Curry beat the Rosies, 2-0. In the Allegheny Valley circuit, the Athletics tied Barsotti, 1-1, the result being the big surprise of the day; Curtisville defeated Kinlock, 5-1; Harwick and Millvale tied, 4-4, while Springdale defeated Tarentum, 2-0.

In the Washington County League, Atlasburg beat Penowa 3-1, and Donohoes stopped Langeloth, 2 to 1.

McKnights swamped Primrose 10-0 in the Panhandle League; Sygan beat Steubenville, 5-1; Moon Run nosed out Gallatin, winning 2-0; the Véronas beat the Vuleans in a free-scoring game, 5 to 3; Local Union swamped Coverdale, 5-0, and the Braves tied Leesdale, 2-2. The Zoney-Morgan lineup:

Morgan—2.		Shannon Zonies—2.

Miss Madison Sets Four Pro Records

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Helene Madison, Seattle swimmer who held just about all free-style swimming records for women as an amateur, began an assault on professional marks yesterday and set four standards.

Miss Madison swam four distances, 50, 60, 75 and 100 yards against time. She bettered the recognized world record for amateurs for 60 yards and equalled the amateur standard for 75 yards. At 50 and 100 yards her marks were slightly slower than her best times as an amateur, but will stand as professional records, officials announced.

St. Louis Purchases Former Detroit Star

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—(AP.)—Purchase of James Romley Hughes, for two years defense star of the Detroit Cougars in the National Hockey League, and a star with the Syracuse (N. Y.), club of the International League last season, was announced yesterday by Harry B. Taber, president of the St. Louis Hockey Club.

Hughes will replace Burr Williams, drafted by the Chicago Blackhawks, in the St. Louis club's defense. Taber recently acquired Pete Pelangio, also of the Syracuse club.

THREE WOMEN

By FAITH BALDWIN

Lennox Reproved by Mother For Reading Poetry On the Sabbath

CHAPTER IV.

Lennox dreamt. Girls should have square little faces, and gray eyes under a cloud of golden hair; girls should have warm, small fingers and dimples to the left of pink, upcurling mouths . . . like Sally.

You can drug yourself with words. The boy, curled up in a leather armchair in the shadowy corner of the library, had discovered this dangerous magic. His lean finger underlined the letters as his eyes followed them, his undetermined mouth formed them silently,

"My heart aches and a drowsy numbness pain
My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk."

"Come, Lennox. Is your hair brushed? Stand up, do. You will ruin your eyes. Hurry, the carriage is waiting."

Church time. He rose, tall, angular, his shoulders stooped under the weight of 14 bewildering years. One hand endeavored to order his rebellious crest. His blue eyes fled appealingly about the dim, cool room; his sharply cut nostrils drew in, gratefully, the old, familiar scent of books, of leather.

MOTHER DISAPPROVES

Louisa Sheldon turned him about with a practiced hand. She dusted him off with an air of studied casualness, cast a look of sardonic disapproval at the fat volume of Keats, picked it up and shot it accurately into its appointed gap in the shelf. She said, with patient severity, "You could employ your Sunday mornings better, Lennox."

He murmured, "Yes, m'am," mechanically. He felt a little dazed, dragged abruptly from the singing twilight of his poet, out into the hot sunlight of a Sunday in May.

The carriage was at the door, the bays tossing their heads. Thomas, the footman, Henshaw, the coachman, were erect upon the box. As the door opened and their mistress appeared Thomas was galvanized into action. Mrs. Sheldon came down the steps, slowly, her prayer-book in one tightly gloved hand. Lennox trailed wearily behind her.

"The Metropolitan Temple," she ordered, unnecessarily.

Louisa sat upright. Once she said, sharply, "Don't slouch so, Lennox." And Lennox pulled himself into a more conventional posture. He was sleepy, dreary from too much late breakfast, drowsy from his hour over the Keats.

LENNOX TROUBLED

They had arrived. Lennox marked his mother inclining her head to this or that person. He snatched off his hat, in a panic lest he appear belated in courtesy. A vision in robin's egg blue halted him as they entered the doors. Sally Morgan whispered, "You're coming to supper—"

Her curls danced from under the ridiculous, tilted hat. Her eyes were veiled by demurest lashes. Something troubled his breast, and suddenly the sunlight was amazing. He blinked at the abrupt transition as he followed his mother into the dark caves of the church. An organ swelled from pleading into command. There was colored light.

His head bowed, he sat beside his mother while she prayed. The church was full of restless sound, the scraping of men's shoes, the rustle of women's dresses. The tall man in the pulpit was speaking. What was he saying, so confidently?

LOUISA IS PROUD

His thoughts swung to Sally Morgan. They would have Sunday supper with the Morgans tonight. His mother had said nothing to him, she never did. She ordered, when the time came, "Come, Lennox," or "Go, my son." He wondered, with a little spurt of amusement, what she would say, how look, if he ventured to make, to carry out, a plan on his own account. What was she praying about? He stole a look at her. Her strong profile was carved from tinted stone. Her thin lips moved.

Sally. God in His House. Lennox's thoughts swung between the two.

The church was crowded. It was very warm. Lennox could smell the odor of clean humanity, of soap and violet essence, rice powder and eau de cologne, of Russian leather, of silk—silk, he thought, had a hot, stuffy smell, yet it was cool to the touch. As they stood up to sing his slim length almost matched his mother's. Each one held a side of the hymn book.

Louisa was aware of the boy's nearness. She could feel his breath upon her cheek and a shudder shook her, her hands trembled on the page. This sentient being, this being of infinite possibilities who sang a hymn in God's praise in an uncertain voice, was hers. She had created him. . . .

Later, the congregation billowed uneasily in the streets, gentlemen uncomfortable in frock coats, ladies poured into princess gowns, children stiffly starched, calling to one another. The carriages were lined up, shiningly imposing. Louisa's progress to her own was halted often. People spoke kindly to Lennox. He answered, a little at random, with his shy, attractive smile. He was looking for Sally, but she had gone.

Reaching home, he disappeared into the library. His mother would go to her room now and rest before dinner. He was familiar with her routine. She would sit by her window now, in the Boston rocker which he knew she had brought with her from her father's house. She would put her booted feet on a hassock and read in her Bible, or perhaps a chapter of Ruskin. Perhaps she would drowse a little.

At the library door, she said, remindingly, "You have six days in which to read poetry, Lennox."

But he did not read. He stood for a long time at the windows which gave on the street, watching the people go by. The stiff lace of the curtain fretted his face, a lock of hair fell forward into his eyes. Over the house silence brooded, almost tangible. Cousin Henrietta had been in her room, nursing a headache, since breakfast. His mother sat in her rocker, reading. He was alone, shut in, shut out.

He did not think. Now and then, he felt. There was Sally and her blonde hair. Thinking of her was not thought, entirely. He would see her tonight. He wondered if he could hide the Keats about him, take it to Morgan's without his mother seeing, if he and Sally could creep off somewhere after supper and read. She might sit close to him, her curls brushing his cheek—he would read aloud to her.

It seemed strange, unfair, to him that he could not read aloud as he read in his mind. In his mind, his voice was resonant, beautiful, unabashedly emotional, yet when he spoke, it was unsure, it wavered, rose and fell along the scale. He was ashamed of his voice.

Synopsis

New York in the middle 80's, a sumptuously furnished home on Washington square, and Mrs. Louisa Lennox Sheldon, the first of "Three Women." She is aristocratic, aloof, even cool towards her husband, George, and almost jealous of him over their infant son, Lennox, her "god." She realizes that George's first choice was her sister; the latter had led him on coquetishly and then—married the other man. Louisa accepted George as a husband, ignoring his flirtatious ways with frigid disdain for 10 years, when he died, leaving her a sorrowing widow but inwardly happy that she alone could now mold her 9-year-old "god." Louisa decides not to let her son go to Harvard as his father had planned.

Now Go On

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Is Pleased With Philip Veritzen

We made several rounds of the dancing floor before Philip Veritzen spoke on the subject in which he was most concerned. As I expected, he was most artistic in his way of leading up to a discussion concerning Avis.

"You and Lillian should be very proud," Mr. Veritzen said at last. "Your husband's niece and her daughter are the most attractive girls in the room."

I hope he did not hear the little catch of my breath at this pronouncement. He had been so outspoken in his admiration of Avis before, so insistent on contrasting her with Mary, to Mary's disadvantage, that I could hardly believe I had heard him aright.

"I have surprised you, I know," he said, "but because I told you before of my preference in the matter of Noel's marriage, it is due you now that I speak of my changed opinion."

He paused, and I fairly held my breath. Was it possible that he meant to acknowledge himself in the wrong concerning his strictures on Mary?

"Of course," he began, "I can make no outspoken criticism of my dead friend's daughter, but I want you to know that I take back what I said to you a few weeks ago, when I told you that I infinitely preferred her to Mary.

"Not that I approve wholly of Mary," he said. "I still believe that there will be no lasting happiness for Noel in marrying her. But my opposition from this time on will be passive only, and I shall get Noel away from Long Island as soon as possible."

GOING TO CITY

"Most of us will be away from Long Island by the end of next week, I said demurely.

"Bless my soul, so we will," he rejoined. "I had not realized—but you did promise you would go into the city as soon as your young people left for school, and I overheard your husband's nephew say they were going the first part of next week."

"All our young people are," I said, "and most of the older people as well. Everything is ready except the last packing, which will take less than a half day. The Underwoods and my husband and myself are going to take suites in a little old hotel overlooking Gramercy Park."

"That schedule suits me perfectly," he said, ignoring what I had said last. "I'll send Noel up day after tomorrow and plan to go myself early next week. You think we can begin work a week from Monday?"

"I am certain of it," I answered, with a mental comment that he was losing no time in getting Noel away from Avis.

"Thank you," he said, just as Dr. Jim Paige touched Mr. Veritzen on the arm and smiled engagingly at him.

"I didn't know this custom of cutting in when I was a boy," he said, with his fascinating southern drawl, but it has many points in its favor. I trust you will excuse me, suh."

EDITH TO LEAVE

Mr. Veritzen distinctly did not relish the interruption. I knew that from the look in his eyes. But his smile and manner were perfect as he released me. Dr. Jim Paige chuckled, however, when we were safely out of earshot of the great producer.

"That old gentleman feels more like putting a stiletto between my shoulder blades than like smiling," he said. "But I couldn't help it. I just naturally had to talk to you before we go. We're driving back to New York, you know, and we must start pretty soon."

"Oh, that can't be!" I said, for I knew that Edith Fairfax had brought an overnight bag with her.

"But it's true," he reiterated. "I think Edie meant to stay at first, but she must be at the office at nine in the morning. Of course, in that case, it would be better for her to go back tonight than to start as early in the morning as we would have to for that long ride."

I suppressed the comment that there was no reason why Edith should get to the office at 9 o'clock, as if she were a clerk punching a time clock. I knew perfectly well that she was giving Dr. Paige her usual impression of being the overworked partner, making up for Dicky's indolence, but in my position I could say nothing.

"Is there some place we could go for a few moments and talk?" Dr. Paige asked. "Edie won't miss us for a few minutes, and there is something I must ask you."

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The sudden change of temperature Saturday caused an unusually large attendance at the Enright Junior Komic Club Chapter meeting. The "regulars" were all on hand, as well as many members who were out of town during the summer, and nearly everyone was sporting winter coats.

As the initial feature of the day, and with the thought in mind of helping the children in school, each members was presented with an Educator Map—one of those trick maps that answer many interesting questions about these United States in which we live.

SACK RACE

The promising program of activities was started with a thrilling handicap race for both the boys and girls. The girls were given preference and were first to occupy the spacious Enright stage. They were teamed up in twos, each girl having one leg in a large gunny sack.

After three or four false starts they were off down the straightaway to a huge ovation by the non-participants thronging the sidelines. The race was replete with every thrill imaginable. Girls fell, became tangled and did almost everything but run the wrong direction. After much conjecture as to what the outcome would be the coveted prizes were captured by Jean Schechter and Ruth Rieck.

EXPERT RACERS

The boys, then a little more expert than the girls in such affairs, took possession of the stage and lined up for the great race. Again it was a fun-filled affair, but there was little doubt as to who would win from the start as Eugene Pagano and Bill Treece took the lead in the first lap and never once relinquished an inch of their lead.

The girls then lined up for their dancing lesson. After diligently going through their various routines and learning a few new steps the most attentive pupil of the day, Molly Eiseman was awarded a "chic" little ladies' keycase and miniature notebook.

TIRED AFTER CONTEST

The boys patiently awaited the completion of the dancing school without any great evidence of restlessness, as they were quite tired from their previous exertions, and when the stage was again cleared for them they selected teams for a "dribble ball contest."

After much clamoring, the Pagano Twins were chosen captains of the two teams, and in these Enright Chapter activities blood-ties count for nothing and it is "may the best man win."

While it is sometimes difficult to get the boys off the stage under ordinary circumstances, today was an exception—they had cake to eat and no amount of urging could have kept them there—so the girls were again given the floor to participate in a handicap race.

WALNUT RACE

Each of the 30 girls competing was given an American walnut and a small paper spoon with which to push the walnut across the stage.

Dorothy Broudy started slowly, but it soon developed that it was a "turtle race" and the slow, but sure policy proved the best. She never once ceased moving or pushed her walnut out of bounds and came in a full three feet ahead of her nearest competitor. Her efforts were rewarded with the prize for the event, a pair of roller skates.

The meeting was concluded with the announcement of the Enright's Junior Komic Club Halloween party scheduled for the next meeting at which time the club members will be treated to an unusually exciting entertainment and a record attendance is anticipated.

The Power Trust Loses

The Supreme Court Decision in the Clarion River Case Is a Victory for the People.

That the Federal Power Commission has ample authority to determine "the actual legitimate investment" of all power companies in hydro-electric projects built under federal license and to require such companies to keep books as the commission directs, is the unanimous decision of the United States Supreme Court.

This is the effect of the refusal of the great tribunal to review an appeal of the Clarion River Power Company from decisions made within the last year by the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

The ruling represents an unconditional victory for the foes of the Power Trust, upholding as it does the constitutionality of the Federal Power Act.

Had the decision of the United States Supreme Court been against the Federal Power Commission, the commission, as its general counsel truly says, "might as well have closed its doors," for the Federal Power Act would have been destroyed.

Instead, however, the ruling removes the last obstacle to the enforcement of that act in the way that the Congress which passed it intended that it should be enforced.

If the Federal Power Act is not henceforth enforced as Congress passed it, Congress and the courts will not be to blame. The blame for nonenforcement will be shared by the Power Commission and the appointing power responsible for its make-up.

Must Not Be Forgotten

Armand J. P. Vandermyn, president of the Propeller Club of Pittsburgh, rendered a service in his recent radio address by calling attention to Pittsburgh's need of adequate river terminals.

We have been demanding for years the improvement of our waterways to make them suitable for navigation at all seasons, that we might get lower freight rates. A large part of what we have been demanding has been granted: the Ohio, like the Monongahela, is open the year round, and navigation is being extended farther and farther on the Allegheny. But we are not prepared to make full use of these facilities because we do not have as yet satisfactory terminals at which freight can be exchanged between the rail and river carriers.

The steel and coal corporations have their own terminals, but the general public is without them, and it is the duty of the city or the county to remedy the deficiency.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that no such projects should be undertaken at this time because of the taxpayers' inability to bear the existing burden.

It is well, however, to keep the terminals in mind. They should be included in any program for new public works that may be adopted when times become normal. Eventually they will not burden the taxpayers because the users of the terminal will have to pay for the privilege, which should return more than enough revenue for their maintenance.

A Chance for Action

It is gratifying that the Duquesne Light Company's system of valuing its investment for rate-making purposes at $152,000,000 and for taxation purposes at $112,000,000, or $40,000,000 less, has been brought to official attention at the very outset of the Senate Utilities Committee's investigation. It furnishes a chance for action.

It is no new discovery. The Sun-Telegraph had called attention more than once to the fact that the Duquesne Light Company had "written up" the amount of its investment, so that it could claim that its rates were yielding it a return not greatly in excess of 7 per cent.

But the situation was not until now presented to an official body from whom corrective action might be expected.

Buy Home Products

You Will Be Contributing to Your Own Prosperity by Buying Things of Local Manufacture.

The Pittsburgh branch of the Community Builders of America has launched a worth while movement in its campaign to persuade the people of Allegheny County to buy Pittsburgh products.

Consumers will contribute to their own prosperity if they spend their money on things made here and thus assure that the money stays here. If they purchase the products of manufacturers whose mills and offices are located elsewhere, a considerable part of the money will leave this community and not be available for the employment of Pittsburgh workers.

There are a number of local products that are just as good as, if not superior to, similar articles manufactured elsewhere which are better known because more extensively advertised.

If the local manufacturers will advertise their products, Pittsburghers will be glad to buy them.

A Valuable Harvest

The Thrift Gardens of Allegheny County Have Proved a Fine Investment for the Unemployed.

There is good cheer in the report of the Thrift Garden Committee of the Allegheny County Emergency Association. The committee's efforts have resulted in the production of $800,000 worth of garden products for the tables of the unemployed during the approaching winter.

Owners of vacant land let it be used without charge. The Emergency Association spent $35,000 on tools and seed. The jobless men cultivated the land, and from all this there has been reaped a harvest valued at four-fifths of a million dollars.

It was an exceedingly profitable investment, and will encourage the thrift gardeners next year to even greater efforts.

Like an oily gold brick dealer
Selling brass for burnished gold.
He is full of bunk and twaddle,
Slick and smooth and up to date,
But he sells the same old model
Made in 1928.

Once he promised to abolish
All the evils that prevail;
Now he smears a coat of polish

Nothing but a faded dream.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

What Is 'Normalcy'?

Everybody is predicting that, at the present rate, we'll "get back to normal" in 1933—or 1934—or "by Christmas"—or "by spring."

* * *

All right, choose your own pet date. But, what IS "normal?" I'm burning to know!

* * *

Things were perfectly "normal" back in the Gay Nineties, when Mother was a girl, and paid twenty cents a dozen for eggs, shampooed her own hair and wore lisle-thread stockings, at three pairs for a dollar. And if she paid five dollars for her shoes, she was "snobbish."

* * *

You could rent a whole big house, in the swankiest neighborhood for $75 a month—and if you paid your cook $12 a month she was "overpaid."

If your "best beau" wanted to show you a swell evening, he took you to the theater, paid three or four dollars a pair for orchestra seats and treated you to a "supper" of oysters and mineral water. And if he took you in a hansom-cab, he was "a prince of spenders!" No kisses required as indemnity or "luxury tax."

* * *

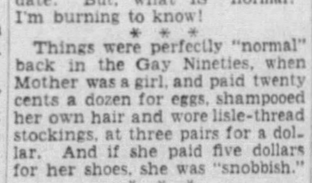
* * *

If you wore a smart tailored suit, white kid gloves, patent-shoes and a bunch of violets pinned on your muff, you were sufficiently dressy to call on Mrs. Astor. Or to go anywhere except to a ball.

* * *

Things were perfectly "normal," too, when "SUCH-a-bright-young-girl" got her first newspaper job, and lived in a Washington Square hotel—two-rooms-and-bath with three delectable meals a day—for $28 weekly.



But, oh, the difference in 1928—just before we all went broke! when two-rooms-and-bath cost over three hundred a month, a "decent fur coat" set me back a thousand, and I cheerfully paid $1.50—and tip—for a club sandwich. When I bought my white gloves by the dozen, had a hat for every costume and a new evening gown every week. And then was always apologizing to "The Joneses" because I "lived SO simply!"

* * *

Now, what or WHICH is "the normal," to which we are going to "get back?"

* * *

Personally, I prefer the first "normal"—when everybody owned his own home, shack or mansion; when you never heard of anybody being hungry or unable to pay his rent; when nobody jumped out of skyscraper windows; and shooting your husband was "MOST unusual."

* * *

"Prosperity," as it was laughingly called, made no hit with ME! The SIMPLE LIFE is so much easier on your nerves! And five and ten jewelry doesn't keep you awake nights, listening for burglars—like that from Fifth avenue.

AT SEA DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

AT SEA, Oct. 24.—We flew over the choppy English Channel early for a returning ship at Havre. Once you crack Havre's shell of dead masonry, it becomes quite exciting. An ancient seaport, languishing in constant fog, its scurry of streets and jetties puff a treble uproar of passion, brawls and merriment.

Every vice is exploited for sailors. There is a placid Havre, of course, prosaic with tree-arched boulevards and millionaire mansions overlooking the sea. But the Havre of hurrah, debauchery and wild lusts is the seaman's Lorelei, beaching many on its roaring reefs.

This morning we counted a half dozen crumpled along curbs and gutters who had wound up a night out in stupors, mouths agape and snoring. In its infamous street, lined solidly with brothels, the ground floors were being aired and cleaners were at work. Passersby could peer in.

Reception rooms seemed a tawdry glitter of mirrors, nude paintings, capacious divans of red and green plush and ponderous crystal-dripping chandeliers. Stained glass insets in doors and electric signs proclaimed The Moon, Love's Dream and The Good Night. Morning had not swept away cloying waves of musk and exotic scents.

On another visit, I passed along this thoroughfare at night. It was a barbaric jangle of mechanical pianos, cries of ciceroni, beckoning smiles at windows, staggering blacks, whites, browns. This morning its torpor was remindful of a hideously glutted snake, napping after its kill.

* * *

Around docks and starlings are jinkle-jumble of bars, cafes, blowsy hotels, poolrooms, fire-trap cinemas and gambling hovels, all ringed in haze. Prix fixe meals with wine at 2 francs 50 are profuse. Even at 10 a. m. many denizens were a bit maudlin. Grisettes, cosmetically brilliant, weaved in and out, flashing come-hither smiles. A coal-black Senegalese in a zebra-striped ensemble of yellow succumbed to sidewalk blandishments of a gayly bedecked girl—a hollihock among the weeds.

* * *

In one district, a Cockney guide veered us through jungle alleys steeped in squalor. In one "Black Hole of Calcutta" bagnios were in cellars, a row of faces edging the pavement level in odd bloat, resentful of tourist gazing. Several shrieked monitory curses and I lipped a prayer gas would hold out. Frequently the guide, pointing to a shamble, ripped a finger across his throat in suggestive salute.

* * *

One alley, dug out in the vortex of the hurricane, offered the proverbial pinch of calm. The precise geometrical dazzle of tinsel-tipped bouquets of violets and roses seemed out of tune in the diabolical tumult. It was a flower depot for spindle-legged children hawking posies to honky-tonk drunks at night.

* * *

While in Havre, we called on our old Paris concierge, now with her son here. We found her rocking away in the littered court of a tenement rookery with a grinning beam of utter incomprehension. "Mere est folle!" sighed the son sadly. She was quite mad.

* * *

In the heart of the surf of slums, and opposite a police station, is a jewelry shop, featuring baubles for cocottes. It was shuttered and a smear of red had not been washed from the doorway. During the night it was robbed and its proprietor bludgeoned. The gloom symbolized the dark bouillon cube of life that is Havre.

* * *

We hoped to catch an hour's sleep before embarking, but because of an opalesque blur in the harbor it was impossible. An anvil dingus zing-zunged in dolorous incessance and harbor fog-horns were in continuous screach. Topping this, on the beach side of the Hotel Frascati, a comic French band bellowed brassily for a fete. So in a motor boat we putt-putted to tiny Honfleur to the teeny-weeny cafe where a foppish poet tittered a triolet, and Tuffy, a cute pony, came to the table to nose us for sugar lumps.

* * *

Again the ship heaves to sea—homeward bound and could I skin the cat! Scarcely outside land, some American correspondents have had their quip. One radioed: "Would you consider conducting a column for London's most influential paper for $5,000 a week?" I zipped back a Scotch wireless: "Yes." And as I finish this, the thus and thuses send a laconic: "We thought you would!" Home Parkinson! and spare not the equines!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The "other fellow's shoes"—how surprised you'd be if you could stand in them for just one day!

Seeing the other fellow sitting so proudly, or striding by so powerfully, in his easy, handsome "shoes," you're filled with envy.

"If I only had his breaks!" you say to yourself. "It must be wonderful to live like that; to do the things he does! But he has all the luck, and I have none.

"What chance have I ever had? The same old drudgery, day after day. Doing things I hate to do. Tied down like a slave. Always seeing the same old faces. Gosh, I'm sick of it! And it isn't fair! It isn't fair that things should be so easy for him and so hard for me."

If only you could be in the other fellow's shoes. How many times has that angry, envious wish crossed your mind?

And yet, suppose you could?

HOW LONG WOULD YOU BE WILLING TO WEAR THEM?

AND HOW GREAT A PRICE WOULD YOU BE WILLING TO PAY?

I'm thinking of Dorothy. Dorothy's 23, bright, pretty, restless, ambitious. She hopes to be a writer some day. Once she had a little article accepted. On the strength of that, she fixed up a "studio" at home and began to spend mysterious periods therein.

But nothing ever came of it. Something always happened to prevent Dorothy from starting upon her career. Mabel would phone, or Jack would blow his horn outside the window, or there'd be a wonderful sale down at The Elite, or a new show at the Majestic—and, of course, you simply can't pass up things like that!

But Dorothy still wants to be a writer, and every time she visits me she is frankly consumed with envy. How she'd love a job like mine! What fun it would be! She knows she could do it. She has talent. Why should I have such a gorgeous opportunity, when she hasn't any?

All these thoughts I see jostling behind Dorothy's lovely discontented eyes as she watches me hammer out an article.

One day I tried to answer them. I told her what "being a writer" really means; how it isn't fun at all, for it means much more than HAVING talent. It means USING that talent. HAVING a talent is a lot of fun, but USING it is generally a pain-in-the-neck.

Sitting still, year after year. Writing on schedule, to meet a "dead line." Never doing the silly, lazy things you'd like to do. Passing up friendliness and fun.

All of this I told to Dorothy; but not one word of it did Dorothy believe.

"Aw, you don't understand," she cried. "It's easy for you to do those things, for that's the way you are; but I simply couldn't endure to live like that."

And Dorothy's answer was only human, for none of us who "wish we were in the other fellow's shoes" ever do believe that the other fellow has a hard time earning or wearing those shoes.

We don't WANT to believe it.

We want to believe that everything was made easy for him and hard for us, because that excuses our own laziness and restlessness.

We want to believe that he had all the breaks, because that gives us such a lovely opportunity for self-pity.

And if we see him working while we're loafing, sacrificing while we're indulging ourselves, we want to say: "Oh, that isn't hard for him. He's made that way. If I were made that way, I could have his luck, too. But I'm different. I could never stick to things like that. I'm too high strung. It would drive me crazy."

The other fellow's shoes—how brightly they shine; how soft they seem!

BUT HOW LONG WOULD YOU BE WILLING TO WEAR THEM?

Isn't It So?

A girl's idea of sensible shoes is the kind that she can slip off every time she gets her feet under a table.

When Discretion's the Better Part of Valor

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

With all the polls indicating a Roosevelt sweep, the Hoover forces, driven to despair by the approach of pay-day, are now resorting to desperate devices, all of which are vicious and some of which, in most states, are criminal. We have before us the names of two concerns in Chicago that are threatening their employes with dismissal unless Hoover is elected. There is just one place for employers of this type, and that is the penitentiary.

More vicious, because dangerous to the nation, is the plan to convince the people that the election of Mr. Roosevelt will mean the abandonment of the gold standard. Secretary Hurley, whose dinner engagement with the American Legion in Colorado has been canceled because of his use of tanks, bayonets and gas against a hungry, ragged army in Washington, has just made that astonishing assertion.

Mr. Hoover's speech to the effect that in February we were within two weeks of going off the gold standard until he, solitary and alone, saved it, set the pace. That claim has been demonstrated to have been recklessly false by financial writers and bankers; it brought the market down here and the dollar down in Europe, and did more to destroy confidence than anything thus far said or done. The Hurley statement is an even cheaper piece of demagogy.

Publicly Denounced As a Lie

It was Secretary Hurley's assistant in the War Department who resorted to a criminal libel of Mr. Roosevelt in a charge that many years ago a firm with which he was associated had indulged in disreputable business in a stock transaction. The attorney at the time, announcing that he is a Republican who will vote for Hoover, has publicly denounced this as a lie in a full statement of what occurred.

Mr. Hoover has not rebuked the member of his official household for giving circulation to that libel.

If it is the desire of Mr. Hoover to enter into the private careers of the Presidential nominees he will open a field that is not without its richness. Senator Norris has just quoted from some of Mr. Hoover's writings for the Mining Magazine, of May, 1912, to illustrate his concept of business ethics.

100,000 Workingmen and Never Had a Strike

In his speech at Cleveland, Mr. Hoover charged that the Democratic National Committee had given it out that he had been an importer of Chinese coolie labor for his mines in South Africa. And the committee did nothing of the sort. But in his speech the candidate impressively pounded the table and asserted that no company of his had ever imported coolie labor.

We have said in these columns that he did employ coolie labor, but we had the Chinese mines in mind. Four years ago he made the boast that he had employed 100,000 men and never had a strike. That was a fair assertion, if true, in that it would illustrate his attitude toward labor.

It is just as fair to inquire as to the character of this army of workingmen. Some years ago, when Republican leaders were making more damaging attacks on Mr. Hoover than have ever been made by his political opponents, Senator Willis asked the question:

"What American workingmen did he employ?"

And Senator Norris has just commented on that question:

"This question so far as I know has never been answered, and it seems to me that the American people have a right to have the question completely answered."

Assuredly it has the right if a point is to be made that he employed 100,000 workingmen and never had a strike.

Memory May Be At Fault

Had he not made such a point of denying that his firm had ever imported coolie labor and coupled his denial with a nasty attack on Democrats, it might well be passed in silence. But there are documents available to the public that indicate that his memory may be at fault.

As early as 1898, in referring to the high cost of mining in Australia, he wrote an article published in the Engineering and Mining Journal of December 17, 1898, page 426, in which he said:

"The directions from which changes should come in order to lower the working costs is the . . . removal of restrictions on Asiatic labor."

The Importing of Chinese Coolies

And Mr. Hoover's firm did make a business of importing Chinese coolies to South Africa. He was a director of the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company from 1903 to 1912. In the Daily Consular and Trade Reports of the Department of Commerce and Labor of the United State of January 3, 1906, is set forth a report from American Consul General Ragsdale, of Tientsin, on the system that had been established with the consent of the Chinese government for the transportation of coolie labor to the Transvaal. In this official report, page three, we read that:

"Contracts for this work were given to two British firms in Tientsin—William R. Forbes & Co. and the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company."

Thus it appears, from the record, that while Mr. Hoover was a director, his company did have the contract for transporting coolie labor to the Transvaal.

At a meeting of the Chinese Engineering and Mining Company, September 13, 1904, the presiding officer reported on the "advantages offered by the port of Ching-wan-tao in connection with the shipping of coolies from North China to the Transvaal;" and Mr. Moreing, of the company, said:

"Although I say I was the originator of the enterprise, I know that the shareholders and directors owe a great debt of gratitude to two men in bringing this business to a successful issue, namely my partner, Mr. Hoover and Mr. de Wouters, of Brussels."

It was at this very time that the importation of coolies became an acrimonious subject of partisan discussion in Parliament, and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal leader, said in debate:

"This policy was an outrage upon the white man of the Transvaal who, under the sham and bastard form of self-government that had been extemporized, had not been able to make their own views known. Certainly I said, and I shall say it again that in many of its features it is indistinguishable from slavery."

No Place in The Campaign

So much for that. There is very much more in articles signed by Mr. Hoover which we prefer to pass in silence.

But it appears that Mr. Hoover's savage attack on his political opponents, as far as party organization is concerned, was entirely out of place, and that his memory is defective.

And the moral is that Mr. Hoover's Board of Strategy will do well to abandon the field of personal attack on the business integrity of political opponents. It has no place in the campaign. The libelous attack on Mr. Roosevelt by a member of Mr. Hoover's cabinet dragged in this phase. But if that is the plan of campaign it certainly will be met—and that will not contribute to the dignity of the campaign, nor to the advantage of Mr. Hoover.
